The scenes in Schenley park yesterday were typical of an immense good-natured crowd out for a good time, and the throngs certainly enjoyed themselves.

ALLEGHENY FIREWORKS.

Magnificent Displays Set Off Simultaneously on Monument and Spring Hills.

Allegheny fireworks were set off on both Monument and Spring hills at 8:30 last night and were pronounced by all of the 30,000 people who saw them to be the finest ever seen in that city.

They began with the ascent of a number of mouster balloons, which exploded at great heights, sending out tri-colored streams. These were followed by mortar rockets, sky rockets, etc., in profusion. The displays closed with Mt. Pelee volcanic eruption imitations and a set piece representing Niagara Falls.

The usual fireworks display was given at the City home, under the direction of Barton Grubbs, director of the department of charities.

Recorder John R. Murphy set off a rope of Chinese crackers at City hall at 10 o'clock. A large crowd collected.

MIGHTY THRONG DOES HONOR TO THE PRESIDENT

Pittsburgh's Celebration of Independence Day Without a Parallel in History.

NO SERIOUS ACCIDENTS MAR DAY OF REJOICING

The greatest Fourth of July that Pittsburgh has ever known has passed into history. The president of the United States was here and was seen by over 600,000 people as the parade passed from the Union station to Schenley park. The city's honored guest delivered an address that stirred to patriotic applause a living mass of 100,000 men, women and children who were massed before the presidential stand built for the occasion at the foot of Flagstaff hill, and who went away believing that the words "patriotism" and "country" carried with them more meaning that they had realized before.

The great feature of the day was the presence in the city of President Roosevelt. His promise to speak in Pittsburgh had been welcomed with joy by thousands throughout Western Pennsylvania because the opportunity was given them to see ad to hear the man who is now guiding the ship of state and whose patriotic deeds and faultless record peculiarly qualified him to speak on the anniversary of the day when American independence was proclaimed.

The Traffic Enormous.

The railroads brought visitors to the city by the train-load, each person anxious to catch a glimpse of the chief executive. Between morning and midnight over 750,000 people visited Schenley park, the city's great pleasure resort. The streets were crowded and estimates based on the Pittsburgh Railways company's earlier reports showed that during the day over 1,000,000 fares were collected, breaking all records for a city of Pittsburgh's size.

And with all this crowd, with all the noise and excitement incident to a Fourth of July that had never been equaled before, no serious accidents were reported. The city's fair name was tarnished by no cowardly exhibitions of hatred or displeasure for any one of the prominent guests. The traction company handled its immense traffic so smoothly that its immensity was not noticed by the casual observer. The railroad companies hauled the crowds of sightseers into the city and, after it was all over carried them back to their homes, with no serious accidents to mar the pleasures of the day.

Fun Provided for All.

There were games for the youngsters at Snyder's orchard. There were fireworks at night that made a stirring spectacle for young and old alike after darkness had settled down over the city. There was noise everywhere. Even the Pirates arose to the requirements of the day and shut out the Brooklyn team twice just to show what they could do.

"No American deserves greater honor than the men who wore Uncle Sam's blue."—Theodore Roosevelt.

The streets were crowded from morning until after midnight with a throng of Pittsburghers and visitors from out of town who had journeyed to this city to have a part in the great day.

Some were caught in the showers and looked a little the worse for wear. Some showed signs of having wandered away from the shade, but all were good-natured and all looked as though the celebration had done them good, and made them think just a little less of business and other worries, and just a little more of some of the real things of life that are sometimes forgotten for a time in the struggle for existence.

The real celebration of the day opened with the arrival of President Roosevelt at the Union station, and from the moment when his carriage emerged from the big porte cochere of the Pennsylvania's terminal until he left the Hotel Schenley late at night to make the journey to Oyster Bay his reception by the people of Pittsburgh was a continuous ovation.

Greeted by Thousands.

From the station to the park the line of march was crowded with thousands who greeted President Roosevelt with wild applause as his carriage rolled into their line of vision. At the park, where he made his address, the slopes of Flagstaff hill were packed with people who had been patiently waiting to hear him. The applause that was sent up from these thousands of throats as the orator of the day stirred their patriotism and again as he said warm words of praise for the man who represents Pittsburgh in his little body of advisers, made the temporary grandstand shake and shake again.

At the home of Mr. Frick the president was again greeted cordially. Here he spent several hours in quiet and was given a chance to rest. In the evening came the dinner tendered to the city's guest by Attorney General Knox. Here he met captains of industry, men whose capital and brains have made Pittsburgh what it is today. He met, too, men who represent the workers and who head their unions. Some of Pennsylvania's representatives in congress were there and the two men who are to fight the political battle for the office of chief executive of the state were also present.

The End of the Day.

There was a reception and a short speech by the president and then he went quietly to a room, changed his dress for one more suitable for traveling than evening clothes and departed for his train after a day of patriotic rejoicing such as he had never witnessed before.

At Schenley park, after darkness had fallen, there was another record crowd eager to see the magnificent display of fireworks that had been provided by the committee. In the downtown section the streets were thronged with merrymakers and the din of the firecrackers and torpedoes made thought almost impossible. Even after midnight the streets were crowded with those who were loath to finish the fun of a glad day.

In spite of the fact that the throngs in the city were record-breakers the railroad companies reported that the traffic out of the city was also enormous. Thousands of old-timers who prefer a rod and line and a quiet spot beside some country brook to the heat and hard work made necessary by the presence of a crowd took advantage of the holiday to spend a day or two in the country. These missed the chance of a lifetime for burnishing up a patriotism possibly grown a trifle rusty, but they will probably return with stories wild enough to match the big story of Pittsburgh's record Fourth.

COACHMAN JOHN BROOKS AND THE PRESIDENT

Has Been Driving for Them Since Campaign of 1872—Fast Clip From Park.

John Brooks, who drove the four sleek blacks drawing the landau occupied by President Roosevelt yesterday, has had his experiences before in driving for presidential candidates and presidents.

His first, he remarked, as he was sponging off his boots at the Frick stables yesterday, was Horace Greeley in the famous campaign of 1872. Brooks is in his 54th year. He bears the evidence of his British ancestry, but was born in New York.

"Yes, I have driven a good many of them," he said. "There was a dozen or so, I would say, without counting."

He mentioned Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, James G. Blaine, Gen. John A. Logan, Samuel J. Tilden, George B. McClellan, Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, and then said slyly, after a pause:

"You may add Belva Lockwood. Some of this driving was in New York, some in Buffalo, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. How does it happen? No, it is not the president's who pick me out. It just happens. I always engage with the best liverymen of any city and get the assignments through them.

"Which would I rather drive? Well I should say Cleveland. After four hours driving six gray horses in Buffalo for him he handed me a fresh $20 note. Others have been nearly as kind, but their fees usually came through or from others interested. Mrs. McKinley sent the footman and myself $10 each after a short drive."

"Some of the Sheridan troopers say you led them a pretty lively chase on the way from the park?" The coachman laughed.

"Well, yes, we went at about fifteen miles an hour over block-paved streets and some of the cavalrymen dropped out. It was no mean piece of riding on the part of the cavalrymen though. Their horses are not used to such riding and it was a trying, humid heat in the middle of the day."

The horses of the cavalrymen, it may be noted, are their own, brought from Tyrone in a special train which covered the distance in two hours and forty-five minutes. Capt. Jones' black horse "Phil," Lieut. Crawford's "Pete" and Lieut. Fleck's "Dandy" were with the troop in Porto Rico. The horses taken there were almost of a uniform bay and all of Virginia stock. The government sold them at the return of the troup.

Mr. Roosevelt Talked to an Audience That Covered Acres.

SAYS PEACE REIGNS AMONG THE FILIPINOS

Fortunate were the people—over 70,000 of them—who managed to get within earshot of President Roosevelt while he was speaking at Schenley park. Fully 70,000 more were in the park at the same time. No matter what their religious or political creed may be, those who heard him could not help but benefit from the words of wisdom which fell from the lips of the first man of the land.

President Roosevelt is also to be congratulated. Never before in the history of this greatest county in the union of states has there been such a magnificent audience to greet a man. Thousands of men, women and children braved the blaze of the July sun to pay homage to the American and drink at the fountain of his wisdom.

It made Mr. Roosevelt glad to look out over that sea of humanity and know that in every heart nestled the kindliest feeling for him. Partisan affiliations were forgotten for the time and every man showed his appreciation for his ruler in his own particular way. Had the opportunity been afforded every one in that al-

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID THE CITY BY PRESIDENT

Its Growth the Most Striking Phenomenon of Our Day.

HERE ARE FACED GREAT PROBLEMS

From Pittsburgh Comes Man Capable of Solving Them, Attorney General Knox.

EACH GENERATION FINDS NEW DUTIES

President Roosevelt, in his address, paid a high tribute to Pittsburgh and to Pittsburgh's members of the cabinet, Attorney General Knox.

With prosperity of labor and capital the great national issue, the president quickly turned his attention to that issue as it affects this, the greatest industrial center of the nation, probably of the world. Combinations of capital were discussed in reference to their necessity and the evils that may be an outgrowth, and it was in reference to this that Mr. Roosevelt paid a glowing tribute to the attorney general.

His career in the midst of the energies of capital and labor well fitted him for the duties of his high office, in which he is called upon to decide momentous questions of right, and when he sees the right of the point at issue his high character and knowledge of the law quickly show him the correct methods of procedure.

Given Great Ovation.

The president was given a great ovation by the assembled multitude as he stepped to the front of the platform to begin his address. He said:

Mr. Mayor, and you, my fellow-citizens, my fellow-Americans, men and women of Western Pennsylvania:

You have just listened to the reading of the great document which signals our entry into the field of nations 126 years ago. That entry was but the promise which had to be made good by the performance of those men and their children and their children's children.

Words are good if they are backed up by deeds, and only so. (Applause.) The declaration continues to be read with pride by us year after year, and stands as a symbol of hope for the peoples of all the world because its promise was made good, because its words were supplemented by deeds, because after the men who signed it and upheld it had done their work, the men who came after them, generation by generation, did their work in turn. (Applause.)

The document promulgated in 1788 un- be supplemented in the first place by that great instrument of constructive and administrative statesmanship—the constitution under which we now live.

Following the Right Path.

The document promugated in 1788 under which Washington became our first president supplemented, necessarily supplemented, the declaration of 1776.

We showed in the revolution that we had a right to be free; we showed when we constructed the more perfect union of the old confederacy that we knew how to use this right is it needed to be used. (Applause.)

And then 70 years and more past there came again upon the nation the days of iron need. There came again the days that demanded all that was best—the life itself of the bravest and the truest of the nation's sons—and with Sumter's guns awakened our people and America, until then the incarnate genius of peace, sprang to her feet, with sword and with shield, a helmeted queen among nations.

When the thunder of the guns called the nation's children they sprang forward to do the mighty deeds which, if left undone, would have meant that the words to which we have listened today would have rung as meaningless platitudes. (Loud applause.)

Those were the two great epochs in the nation's history, the epoch of the founding of the Union and the epoch of its preservation; the epoch of Washington and the epoch of Abraham Lincoln. (Loud applause and cheers.)

There Are Tasks for All.

Those two generations had the greatest tasks to do, but each generation has its tasks and woe to the generation which regards the deeds of the mighty men of the past as an excuse for its failing to do in its turn the work that it finds ready to hand. (Applause.)

The great deeds of those that have gone before us must ever serve, not as a reason for inaction on our part, but as the keenest of spurs to drive us forward on the path of national as it needed to be used. (Applause.)

We have had our tasks to do in the last four years, or, rather, we have had, as every generation must have, many tasks to do, tasks affecting us abroad, and one of those tasks being done as it has been, has signalled our entry into a larger world. (Applause.)

And it is most appropriate that on this Fourth of July this anniversary of the birth of the nation, it should be our good fortune to have promulgated the declaration establishing peace in the Philippines and the acknowledgment of the army of the praise so richly due to our fellow Americans who wear the uniform of the United States for all that they have done in the tropic islands during the past four years. (Continued applause and cheers.)

We said Cuba should become a republic, and we have kept our word. (Loud applause.) To have turned Cuba over to the hands of its own people immediately after the withdrawal of the Spanish flag would have meant ruin and chaos. We established a government in the islands.

Saved Cuba from Ruin.

We established peace and order; we began to provide for the payment of the Cuban troops, who had fought against the misrule of their oppressors; we instituted a public school system, modeled upon that which has been so potent a factor in our own national progress. (Applause). We cleaned the cities in Cuba for the first time in their history (applause); we changed them from being the most unhealthy to being among the healthiest cities of the civilized world. We introduced a system of orderly justice to succeed one of irresponsible and arbitrary despotism. So that any man, rich or poor, weak or strong, could appeal to courts and knew that he would receive his rights.

And then, when in the fullness of time we felt they could walk alone, we turned over the government to them and now the beautiful queen of the Antilles has started on her course as a free republic among the nations of the earth. (Applause.)

But there is one thing. Our policy toward Cuba has not yet met with its entire fruition. It will meet with it. (Applause.)

The course of the last few years has made more evident that ever before that this nation must in time to come have pecuniary interests on the isthmus connecting the two Americas and in the waters and among the islands adjacent thereto. (Applause.) Nationally we cannot occupy the position toward these regions that we did toward others, where our interests are far less, and this is doubly true now that congress, with great wisdom, has provided for the building of an inter-oceanic canal. (Applause.)

Cuba must occupy a peculiar relation to us in the field of international politics. She must in the larger sense be a part of the general political system in international affairs, of which this republic stands as the head.

Still Have Duty to Perform.

She has assented to that view, and in return this nation is bound to give her special economic privileges not given to other nations. (Loud applause.)

I regret that a measure of reciprocity with Cuba is not already embodied in statute or in treaty, but it will be just as sure as fate. (Loud applause.)

And now, a word as to the Philippines. There are yet troubles in the Moro country, the country of the Mohammedan tribes. But in the Philippines among the Filipinos, among the people who have been in insurrection, peace now reigns. (Applause.) It may be—I think unlikely, but it is possible—that here and there some seemingly dead coal of insurrection may be for the moment fanned into a live piece of ember, and burst into a fitful flame. If so, that flame will be stamped out. (Loud applause.)

But speaking broadly and generally, peace has come. Our army has received its reward. (Applause.) And what was the reward of our army? The reward of the consciousness of duty well done. (Loud applause.) Our soldiers have fought, have toiled, have struggled, so that when victory came they might turn over the government to the civil authorities. (Applause.)

Then Came Victory.

Victory came. Today the proclamation of peace and amnesty has been promulgated and at the same time our generals have been notified that the civil government is supreme in the island. (Applause.)

Does not that speak well, oh my brethren, for our army, for our troops, for a triumph which is to put the power into the hands of the civil authorities?

By law we are allowed an army at a maximum of 100,000 men and at a minimum of 60,000 men. While this war has gone on we have steadily reduced that army, until now, by orders promulgated, its limit is 66,000, and, as a matter of fact, we have two or three thousand fewer men actually under arms. That speaks well for our institutions. It speaks well for the triumphs of the policies with which as a nation we have been identified during the past four years.

And, men and women of the United States, it shows how slight was the warrant for the fears expressed by those of little faith as to what would follow authorizing even the small army that was authorized. (Applause.)

No body of our citizens deserves franker and more generous recognition at the hands of the country than the officers and enlisted men who wear Uncle Sam's uniform. (Applause.) For there is no body of our citizens which gives more disinterested service with less thought of a material reward.

One Task of Many.

And now, my fellow citizens, I spoke of the task which has culminated thus in Cuba and the Philippines as being one of the tasks which this generation had to face. It is only one. We have great problems at home to face. I am speaking in one of the great industrial centers, not merely of America, but of the world. (Applause.) A million people stand grouped in a small radius around the spot where we now are. The growth of your cities within this radius has been one of the most striking phenomena of this day, and here, therefore, you are brought face to face with those problems which affected our entire civilization at the opening of this new century.

The tremendous rush of our industrial development which has brought in its train so much that is good and also of necessity brought somewhat its evil, the very intensity of the progress that has been made, has meant that new and infinitely difficult problems have arisen which we must strive to solve as best we may. Under our form of government, with its great decentralization of power, some of those problems must be solved through the work of private individuals working by themselves; others by the association into organized bodies of groups of private citizens, and others yet through the various governmental agencies, municipal, state and national.

Problems of Combined Wealth.

Especially great, especially difficult, are the problems caused by the growth and concentration of great individual and, above all, great corporate fortunes.

It is immensely for the interests of the country that there should be such individual and corporate wealth as long as it is used right, and when not used right then it becomes a serious menace and danger. (Applause.)

The instruments and methods with which we are to meet these new problems must in many cases themselves be new, but the purpose lying behind the use of these methods, of these instruments, must, if we are to succeed, be now, as in the past, simply in accord with the immutable laws of order, of justice and of right. (Applause.)

We may need, and in my belief will need, new legislation, conceived in no radical or revolutionary spirit, but in a spirit of common sense, common honesty and a resolute desire to face facts as they are. (Applause.)

We will need, then, new legislation, but while laws are important it is infinitely more important that they should be administered in accordance with the principles that have marked honest administration from the beginning of recorded history. (Applause.) In the last analysis the most important department of civilized government is the department of justice. Think what it means.

department of justice, justice which means that each man, rich or poor, big or small, strong or weak, shall have his rights and shall not be allowed to do wrong to his fellows. (Applause.)

And you here of this city have a right to feel proud of your representative in the cabinet, the man under whom we can guarantee that the department of justice will be such in fact as well as in name. (Loud and continued applause and cheers and cries of "Knox, Knox.") When it comes to practical work the ounce of performance outweighs the ton of promise (Applause), and under Mr. Knox there has been very much more than an ounce of performance. (Applause.)

Oh, my fellow-countrymen, as we face these infinitely difficult problems let us ever keep in mind that though we need the highest qualities of the intellect in order to work out practical schemes for their solution, yet we need a thousand times more what counts for many, many, many times as much as intellect—we need character. (Cries of "That is it" and applause.) Character, that compound of honesty, and courage, and common sense will avail us more in the long run than any brilliancy on the stump or any advising legislative means and methods.

Need Courage and Character.

The brilliancy is good. We need the intellect; we need the best intellect we can get; we need the best intelligence, but we need more still—character. We need common sense, common honesty and absolute courage. (Applause.)

We need what Mr. Knox has shown—the character that will refuse to be hurried into any unwise or precipitate movement by any clamor, whether hysterical or demagogic, and on the other hand, the character that will refuse to be frightened out of the movement which he thinks it right to undertake by any pressure, still less by any threat, express or implied. (Cries of "Hear, hear," and applause.)

Gentlemen, we have great problems. We can only solve them by degrees. We can only solve well each particular bit of work as it comes up for solution. Much can be done along the lines of supervision and regulation of the great industrial combinations which have become so marked a feature in our civilization, but if we recklessly try, without proper thought, without proper caution, to do too much, we shall do nothing or else we shall work a ruin that will be felt most acutely among those of our citizens who are most helpless. It is no easy task to deal with great industrial tendencies.

Malice Invites Disaster.

To deal with them in a spirit of presumptious and rash folly, and above all, to deal with them in a spirit of envy and hatred and malice, would be to invite disaster, a disaster which would be so widespread that this country would rock to its foundations. The Mississippi sometimes causes immense damage by flood. You can't stop the floods, but you can regulate them and control them by levees, you can regulate and control the current, you can eliminate its destructive features, but you cannot do it only by studying what a current is and what your own powers are. (Applause.)

It is just exactly so in dealing with the great tendencies of our industrial civilization. We cannot turn back the wheels of progress. If we could it would mean the absolute destruction of just such industrial centers as this. We will either do nothing or we will do damage if we strive ignorantly to achieve the impossible.

But that fact does not excuse us for failure to strive to do what is possible. Special legislation is needed, some of that legislation must come through municipalities, some through states, some through the national government; but above and beyond all legislation we need honest and fearless administration of the laws as they are on the statute books. (Applause.)

Honest and fearless administration of those laws in the interest neither of the rich man as such, nor the poor man as such, but in the interest of exact and equal justice to all alike, and such administration you will surely have while Mr. Knox remains as attorney general in the cabinet at Washington. (Applause.)

WHAT MR. KNOX SAID AT SCHENLEY PARK.

(From the notebook of W. C. Latta, stenographer to the president.)

Remarks of Attorney General Knox at Schenley park, Pittsburgh, Pa., July 4, 1902:

"My Fellow Townsmen and My Friends: It has already been agreed by the recorder of the city and the president that I am to be entitled to credit upon my speech for all of the time that I have stood upon the platform.

"Therefore, having already unexpectedly occupied your time for the last ten minutes, I can do no more than merely to acknowledge my gratitude to the president for the too generous estimate that he has placed upon my most willing services in trying to uphold the aim of a strong and good man in his determination to do right." (Applause.)

This is the transcription Mr. Latta will make for the personal reminiscences of the president from his stenographic notes, taken on the speakers' stand. The utterance was in reply to a glowing tribute paid Mr. Knox by the president, which the attorney general referred to as consuming ten minutes.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED BY SENATOR QUAY

Climbed Through Roof and Poured Water on a Blaze at His Beaver Home.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER, Pa., July 4.—During an electrical storm this afternoon the fuse was burned out of the electric wires on Senator Quay's home. About two hours later the roof of the residence was perceived to be on fire and an alarm was turned in. Mr. Quay attempted to find a ladder, and, being unsuccessful, climbed out through the roof and began to pour water over the flames. The fire was extinguished with but little loss. The blaze caused great excitement for a time.

Senator Quay was prevented from attending the celebration at Pittsburgh because of a severe cold. Dr. J. H. Wilson of Beaver, his family physician, would not allow him to leave town, but it is likely he will be able to go to Pittsburgh Saturday.

Mr. Quay will make his headquarters at his home here for two weeks.

most countless host would have been glad to have grasped him by the hand.

History-Making Day.

It was a history-making day not only for Allegheny county, and not only for the union, but for the lands beyond the sea. Those who could hear the president, and thousands did, learned of the restoration of peace in the Philippines. They were told that the war was over. Perhaps this came directly home to many who have relatives fighting in the far east for the glorification of the Stars and Stripes.

From the commander in chief of the fighting forces of the greatest world-power, first-handed, came the news that peace reigned among the Filipinos. The day of military rule is over and the civil government is now supreme in the Philippines. The standing army of 100,000 has been reduced to less than 66,000 and the United States, after four years of war, is again at peace with all the world, ready to assist in the upbuilding of another government as she has done for Cuba.

Strong Trust Declaration.

Now that Cuba has been made free and the bloody rivers of war have been dried by the declaration of peace in the Philippines. President Roosevelt announces that he will turn his attention and the great force of the administration to matters close at home.

Those who heard him declare his position on the trust question yesterday could not help but believe that the great vigorous, manly man meant every word he uttered. He does not promise to cause revolution. He has no desire to bring on quarrels between capital and labor. He simply promises that by legislation any wrongs which may exist will be made right.

It was while on this subject that the president of the United States took occasion to pay a justly deserved tribute to his cabinet officer, the attorney general, Philander Chase Knox of Pittsburgh. In so doing he struck a popular chord. Mr. Knox must have been a happy man when that great audience as one man demanded that he step into view. He obeyed the commands of his friends and in that inimitable happy manner of his repaid the compliment.

It is difficult to put in words the picture which presented itself to President Roosevelt in Schenley park yesterday. The president's stand stood just beyond the electric fountain. Stretching from it toward Flagstaff hill is a rolling area of many acres. Long before the appointed time, 10:45 o'clock, for the arrival of the president the green sward was covered with people. The colors of holiday dresses were there. Pretty women in prettier gowns helped to enliven the more somber

It was 7:30 o'clock in the morning when the people began to arrive at the park, men, women and children, some with babies in their arms, some with boxes of luncheon. All were happy and all those who anticipated a great time possessed one wish—that the weather would be favorable. During the speaking it was intensely warm, but hardly a cloud appeared to threaten any interference with the program. At an early hour some crowded close to the grandstand to be in a position to catch each word spoken. Others lounged about the stands, while some sought the shade.

Thousands went directly to the orchard to witness the children's sports, and while the president was speaking of the country's future the youths upon whose shoulders this falls, were watching a high kick or a broad jump over in Snyder's orchard.

Even though all these thousands were early on hand there was space for thousands of others. They came with the president. It appeared as though some commanding general had brought up a great army of reinforcements. They rushed into the breach and when the president smilingly bowed his acknowledgments of a hearty greeting it was difficult to find a patch of green amid the many colors represented in that great panorama of enthusiastic humanity.

As a Curtain Raiser.

Just before the band played the familiar strain of "Hail to the Chief," there was a commotion away out across the sea of happy Americans in the vicinity of where the black flagstaff throws a dark line against the horizon. It was Mme. Zeno's chance and she accepted it. Her balloon soared heavenward until the object dangling at the rope's end seemed but a speck away up in the clouds. The great crowd was silent. Suddenly someone heralded the fact that the parachute had been cut loose. There was a drop of several feet and of thousands of hearts. Then the immense umbrella came to the rescue, spread its saving folds and allowed the fair aerial artist to float toward earth. There was a ripple of applause for her daring feat and then she was forgotten.

The music of the bands told that the president was arriving and the parachute jump was but an incident of the day.

The President Arrives.

The stand was well filled with prominent people when the band began playing "Hail to the Chief." With one accord the vast audience rose to its feet. Out on the hillside men and women stood shoulder to shoulder as if they had been placed there by an expert packer. Here let it be said that they remained there during the hour or more of the exercises and the blazing sun did not appear to wear them out.

At last the president appeared on the north steps to the stand. Around him were Attorney General P. C. Knox, Secretary G. B. Cortelyou and Recorder J. O. Brown. They advanced across the stand, with Recorder Brown in the lead. The president, with uncovered head, was acknowledging the plaudits of an admiring constituency. The ovation continued until long after he had reached his seat of honor in the center of the stand. The first thing he did was to pounce upon the ice water pitcher and slake a thirst.

Drinking Inspiration.

His attention then centered upon the great audience before him. It was as if he were searching for some particular face in that assemblage, so intent was his gaze. He appeared to be drinking from the fount of inspiration. Never will a better opportunity be afforded.

Gov. William A. Stone followed the president into the stand. Behind him came his staff and a host of distinguished guests and prominent citizens. Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker and ex-Gov. Robert E. Pattison, the rival candidates for governor, walked to their places together.

The president kept his gaze directed out over the human field, occasionally returning the salute of someone, but apparently content to gaze and benefit.

At last all was in readiness for the opening of the greatest day in the greatest county of the union.

Recorder Brown Presides.

Recorder Brown stepped to the front of the stand and waived for silence. He said: "The hour for the opening of the exercises has arrived and you will now listen to the invocation by the Rev. Dr. Prugh." The prayer offered by the Rev. Dr. John H. Prugh, pastor of the Grace Reformed church, Pittsburgh, and president of the general synod of the Reformed church in the United States, which church Mr. Roosevelt attends in Washington, was as follows:

> Almighty God! Our Fathers' God! Thou God of our republic! With grateful hearts we turn to Thee, on this glad day.
> We confess that we have not always done that which was pleasing in Thy sight. And we humbly acknowledge our national shortcomings.
> But, we rejoice that Thou hast not dealt with us according to our sins. And for the inspiring Fourth of July memories and for the years since 1776, we thank Thee.
> We thank Thee for the line of splendid men, noble exemplars, faithful servants of the people—the God-fearing presidents of our republic.
> We rejoice in the glorious privileges of American citizenship. We rejoice in the growing, national sense of responsibility to the civilized world. And we thank Thee that the United States of America—now a world power—is having part in uplifting the uncivilized parts of the earth.
> We heartily thank Thee, Heavenly Father, for the life and character of our chief magistrate. O God, continue to bless our president. Imbue him with the spirit of wisdom, goodness and truth, and so rule his heart and bless his endeavors, that law and order, justice and peace, may everywhere prevail.
> Preserve us from national sins and corruption. Make us strong and great in the fear of God, and in the love of righteousness, so that being blessed of Thee we may become a blessing, not only to the islands of the sea, but also to all nations, to the praise of the glory of Thy grace, through Jesus Christ. Amen.

The President's Fervent Amen.

As Dr. Prugh concluded his prayer the president uttered a fervent amen.

Gen. Willis J. Hulings of Oil City read the Declaration of Independence. As a preface he told of the troubles leading up to this remarkable declaration. The general has an excellent voice and the vast audience was greatly entertained.

Recorder Brown brought gladness when he announced: "It is now my very great pleasure to introduce his excellency the president of the United States."

The president stepped forward. His face was wreathed in smiles and those beautifully white teeth the cartoonists so often bring into prominence never showed to a better advantage. There is a resoluteness about the snap of his jaw that proclaims him to be the great fighter he proved himself to be on San Juan hill.

Ovation for Roosevelt.

There was an ovation for the president, the like of which has never before been seen in Pittsburgh. Flags, hats, handkerchiefs and umbrellas were waived in the air and a mighty cheer went up for the man the people like to call "Teddy."

In his introductory remarks the president showed that he was not familiar with the local political trouble in Pittsburgh, for in addressing Recorder Brown he said, "Mr. Mayor."

The president referred to the splendid reading of the Declaration of Independence by Gen. Hulings and brought the first applause by this remark.

"Words are good if they are backed up by facts, and only so."

Applause was almost as frequent as punctuation marks, but there was a tremendous outburst when President Roosevelt announced:

> And it is most appropriate that on the Fourth of July, this anniversary of the birth of the nation, it should be our good fortune to have promulgated the declaration establishing peace in the Philippines and the acknowledgement to the army of the praise so richly due to our fellow Americans who wear the uniform of the United States for all they have done in the tropic islands during the past four years.

Next came this forceful declaration: "We said Cuba should be a free republic and we have kept our word."

At this point some patriot in the audience shouted:

"How about San Juan hill?"

"Teddy" simply smiled.

Reciprocity Must Come.

The people liked the determined way in which the president said things. Especially was this true when he spoke in this way of Cuban reciprocity:

> Cuba must occupy a peculiar relation to us in the field of international politics. She must in the larger sense be a part of the general political system in international affairs of which this republic stands as the head. She has assented to that view and in return this nation is bound to give her special economic privileges not given to other nations. I regret that a measure of reciprocity with Cuba is not already embodied in statute or in treaty, but it will be just as sure as fate.

As he uttered the last sentence he brought the palms of his hands together with a resounding smack.

There was an outburst of approval and genuine pleasure when Mr. Roosevelt, in speaking of the men in the Philippines, made this statement, which will be recorded in history:

> Victory came. Today the proclamation of peace and amesty has been promulgated and at the same time our generals have been notified that the civil government is supreme in the islands. Does not that speak well, oh, my brethern, for our army?

Emerging from talk of war his speech became one of peace, and he took occasion to pay a tribute to Pittsburgh.

Struck a Popular Chord.

In speaking of dealing with the problems growing out of the concentration of individual and corporate fortunes the president touched upon a subject which was closely listened to by every person.

It was while on this subject that the president found occasion to compliment his legal advisor, Attorney General Philander C. Knox.

There were cheers for Mr. Knox while the president was speaking and when he had finished the audience demanded that the attorney general come forward. He did so, but just at that moment the German societies started to sing. The president seemed to enjoy the situation and, to use slang, he gave the attorney general the laugh. Finally the singing ceased and Mr. Knox made a happy speech of a very few words in which he thanked the people and complimented the president.

Close of the Exercises.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. T. N. Boyle, presiding elder of the Pittsburgh district of the Methodist Episcopal church. He prayed as follows:

> Our Father who art in heaven. Thou who hast been our help in ages past, and Thou who art our hope for years to come, we approach Thee with reverence, and in the name of Thy Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, we humbly implore Thy blessing upon our free and happy nation, upon Thy servant, the president of the United States, his cabinet, our legislature, the judiciary, the entire citizenship, all soldiers and sailors at home or abroad.
> As a nation may we continue under the guidance of Thy hand, that we may always be worthy of Thy protection, and may perform our part in the establishment of popular and constitutional governments in all continents and in all the islands of the sea. Hasten the time when all that this day means to us may be vouchsafed to and experienced by the entire human race.
> May Thy bounteous mercy be extended to Great Britain while she emerges from the shadow of the dark cloud that has been hanging over her. May her ruler be fully restored, coronated and reign in righteousness.
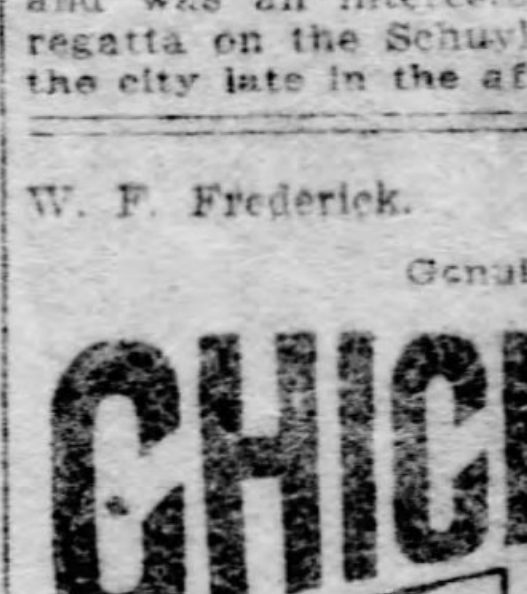
> May the peace of God which passeth understanding keep the hearts and minds of one and all in the knowledge and love of God through Christ Jesus. Amen.

The people in the stand remained standing, while the president passed out to his carriage. Before leaving the stage he bowed a farewell to the people and received another ovation. As he started for his carriage several secret service men left their posts on the stand and gathered about him as a body guard. In a few minutes President Roosevelt was speeding toward the residence of H. C. Frick, where he was the guest of honor at luncheon, and the people were clamoring for a flower from the bounteous floral decorations on the stand.

ALMOST 1,000,000 PAID CAR FARE

Pittsburgh Railways Co. Carried More Passengers Yesterday Than Ever Before in the City's History.



Greater Pittsburgh's greatest Fourth of July was the heaviest day in street car travel in the history of the city. A total of almost 1,000,000 fares was collected from 5 o'clock yesterday morning until midnight last night on the different lines of the Pittsburgh Railways Company.

Despite the fact of the great number of travelers and the crowded condition of the cars no serious accidents were reported. The Pittsburgh Railways Company had over 1,200 cars in operation on their various lines and about 2,200 men were required to operate them. This necessitated the employment of about 400 sub-motormen and conductors.

Of the 1,000,000 fares collected the Consolidated system, which controls all the cars running to and from the East End residence district, received about 300,000. The United system, which controls the Allegheny traffic, carried about 300,000 fares. The Monongahela system receipts were about 175,000. The West End lines showed registers amounting to almost 125,000 and the Birmingham lines carried over 100,000 passengers.

Superintendent John Murphy of the Pittsburgh Railways Company said last night: "It was the greatest day for the various street car systems in the history of Pittsburgh. The employes of the company showed the greatest care in handling the crowds and to this alone can be attributed the comparatively small list of trifling accidents.

"To Oakwood, Kennywood, Calhoun and Southern parks we carried almost 150,000 people, the greatest crowd ever carried to traction parks in any one day since they have been established. The greatest crowds were carried on the cars after 5 o'clock last night. The Mecca of the thousands was, of course, Schenley park.

"If we had issued transfers yesterday the cars would have been blocked at every transfer point. The day cars continued on until 2 o'clock this morning."

GENERAL MILES ORATOR.

Makes Speech at Philadelphia's Little Celebration of the Fourth.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 4.—Patriotic open-air exercises were held in Independence square. The celebration was of unusual interest because of the presence of Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who delivered the oration. Gen. Miles was enthusiastically greeted by 5,000 persons.

After his address he held a reception which lasted about a half-hour. Later in the day the general was entertained by a committee of city councilmen at luncheon and was an interested spectator of the regatta on the Schuylkill river. He left the city late in the afternoon.

GREAT THRONGS IN PARKS

HAPPY CROWDS STOOD DUCKING AT SCHENLEY

Good Nature and Philosophy Were Mingled in Keeping of Tempers.

WANTED TO SEE "TEDDY"

Crowded Close to See the President, but Kept Good Order—The Midway, the Fakirs and the Incidents of a Great Holiday.

As soon as it was good daylight people began to arrive at Schenley park They were the ones who had stands, and they had to be early, because the rain on Thursday after had held them back in their work.

It was not much later before there were stragglers in the park — people who had come in on early trains and had no place to go. At that hour they found the downtown streets deserted, so they went at once to the great objective point. Some of them were hungry as soon as they got there, and many of the stands did a good trade in breakfasts.

As the day increased in age, so did the crowd increase. Cars from all directions began to arrive, and every one was loaded to the guards. There was no delay in the unloading. Everybody was in a hurry to get off, and two minutes after a car stopped, it was off again for another load.

And so it kept up. The crowd increased every minute. It did not show about the Forbes street entrances, because the people so distributed themselves about the park that hours had passed before there was any congestion. True there were many who hung about Forbes street, as if they were afraid that something might happen there that they would not see.

Ambulances Came Early.

One of the incidents of the morning was about 10 o'clock, when the ambulances arrived with their loads of nurses. The public did not appear to understand what it all meant for half a dozen ambulances, with two orderlies on the front seat and six or more nurses inside to drive up, with clanging gongs.

Everybody followed to the main hospital tent in front of the conservatory, where the nurses got out, and were welcomed by the physicians and surgeons who had preceded them. Some of the nurses were later taken to the other hospital tents.

It was not until the soldiers arrived that the abulances really began to do business. Over 50 per cent of the cases in the hospitals were soldiers.

The park was a midway. Stands lined the main thoroughfares on both sides and all of them showed the national colors. Many of these places of refreshment were very neat and presented an attractive appearance. Many were managed by churches and Sunday schools, and as a rule they were supported by their own people. There were many "boosters" for these stands. Young men would mingle in the crowds of doubting and hesitating strangers, in front of the stands, and tell of how good the coffee was or of the big piece of pie for a nickle.

On Grafters' Row.

This kind of "boosting" was perfectly legitimate, and really did a great deal of good, because a stranger could not tell from the appearance of the stand whether he was going to get his money's worth, or was going to draw a blank in the lottery game that was being played.

"It looks like ale, it tastes like ale, and if I told you that it is ale, you would believe me. But I cannot say it is ale. Buy it, try it and see that I am telling you the truth for a nickel." That was his song. It did look like ale, or a drak heavy beer, and thousands probably bought it thinking that it was as the vender represented, and that by some hook or crook, he was evading the law. All were disappointed, because his "ale" was nothing but a poor quality of root beer, and was not very cold either.

"You can't get it any where else, so why go further?" yelled a young man at a coffee stand. On both sides were stands selling the same quality of fluid. Some might have been better than the other, but it was hard to determine.

The most industrious barkers were young men, who probably had never before occupied the same position. It was the assurance of youth that led them on. That, with a gift of gab, caused amusement for those who stopped in front of the stands, and put many a nickel into the cash drawers.

Amusements Were Varied.

Every soft drink imaginable was there yesterday. There was the real old circus lemonade, guaranteed to be made by the recipe that Dan Rice used when he entered the circus business, which was a lemon to a tubful of water. It was there in the natural color of the river water, which is of a rich yellow, and it was there in the beautiful red that always attracts attention in the glass. According to one barker, "It is colored by the pure juice of the luscious strawberry."

The amusement for the children was the merry-go-round. There were three of them. One has just returned from a year in the south, six months of which was put in at the Charleston exposition. It is one of the finest ever made and had liberal patronage. Two others, further on in the park, had all the crowds that could be handled. Plenty of grown people found pleasure in riding. A striking machine that registered blows up to half a ton caught the eye and subsequently the coin of many. Young men who did not look as if they could lift fifty pounds registered blows of 500 pounds and consequently swelled up with pride and tried it again.

All Kinds of "Grub."

There was good "grub" and poor "grub" and all grades between. At some stands the man who laid down a nickel for a sandwich got the food for that price, while the man who asked what it was worth was always told "a dime." Food was reasonable enough. It was the exception rather than the rule that there was overcharging. And there were stands for all classes of people. If one wanted a Presbyterian sandwich he could find it, and if he wanted Baptist coffee it was there. Some stands, managed by negroes, were patronized by people of that color; there were stands managed by Italians and the people from sunny Italy found them.

For those who did not want to patronize the stands there were family baskets in abundance. About dinner time families would gather at some designated place, generally selected by some member of the family, who "held the place," while the others went in search of amusement. There were regular picnic parties there, too. Panther hollow was full of them.

Panther hollow was better patronized yesterday than it was ever before. Way down in its innermost depth people could be found. In the middle of the day there was but little shade except in this famous hollow.

Chade Was Enticing.

The trees on the hills had been preempted early in the day by families who had come to stay. As the sun moved one way the family moved the other. They had shade, while those who roamed the paths and roads could only look on in envy and move on. Down in the hollow there was comfort and rest. Some had been there since early in the morning. They had come in wagons, had brought chairs with them and had made regular camps. They were having solid comfort, while the crowds roamed about far above them on the bridge. Members of the families would venture out for a short time, but the heat soon drove them back.

Everybody was ready when the president arrived. There was the perfection of good order. All persons appeared to vie with one another in keeping order. While the people crowded to the ropes there was no attempt to go further. They were content to obey the rules. The grand stand had long been filled and the hillside in front was black with people. When Guenther's band played "Hail to the Chief," and the president took his place on the stand, there was a cheer that rent the air.

Greeting to Roosevelt.

The majority of the people were content to see the president. They early recognized that they could not hear him, so, good-naturedly, gave it up. Out in the park everything went on as if the grand stand and the illustrious visitor were not there. And it went on and on until "America" was heard. Then there was another rush to good places along the ropes to see the president again.

Crowds became congested at many points, because nobody knew where to go. When it is remembered that Prof. John Morrow, superintendent of the Allegheny pubilc schools, said on Thursday that he had lived in Allegheny county 26 years and had never been in Schenley park, what can be expected of the hundreds of thousands of visitors who also had never been there, and of the thousands of city people who knew not which way to turn to find the race track or Flagstaff hill?

There was no use asking anybody which way to go. Nobody knew. Some people, to reach the race track, walked fully a mile on a road that wound its way around hills and through hollows, and might never have reached there if they had not cut across lots, climbed a big hill and eventually, after being 30 minutes in the hot sun, reached the objective point. Two or three signs that would not have cost more than a couple of dollars would have saved hundreds of people walks, of which the one mentioned was but a sample.

Rain Caused Stampede.

What a scene there was when the rain came at 2 o'clock! Thirty minutes before it appeared there was no sign of it and 15 minutes before the first drops fell there was no indication that the storm would come for hours.

But it came. What a scattering! And to what purpose! There was no place for anybody to go. There was no shelter from the sun, and how could there be from the rain? Nobody thought that they had been hunting shelter from the sun, but everybody was of one mind in an effort to find shelter from the rain.

There was a sea of umbrellas, and that sea was tossing as restlessly as does the sea on a rock-bound coast. It rolled toward the Forbes street entrances and when it encountered a street car for a moment apparently swallowed it up. Really the car swallowed up a wave from the sea and as the car would disappear in the distance the hole it made in the crowd was filled in the twinkling of an eye by the next wave of umbrella-bearing humanity.

Below that sea of umbrellas was an undertow of bedraggled skirts of all colors and hosiery of every description, size, shape and color was shown. Sometimes a surge of the wave would be particularly attractive in coloring and cause comment from the bystanders, who were satisfied to stand and let it rain.

Rush for Cars.

As soon as the rush for Forbes street commenced the dispatchers and inspectors of the street railroad telephoned for more cars. Some came, but the rain was all over before one-tenth of the people who wanted to get away were successful. The rain shook up the crowd as nothing else could have done. The people who were farthest in the park eventually reached the front, and as there were no cars these people mixed with those who had not ventured far or who could not get far because of the crowd.

There were many funny scenes. One young woman was seen to deliberately loosen her skirt, step out of it, roll it up, place it high under her umbrella, and in bedraggled petticoat, below which could be very plainly seen a pair of well-filled blue stockings, make her way as rapidly as possible toward Forbes street. An old lady with three little children lifted her skirt and drew the children under it to better protect them from the elements.

In the inclosure and bleachers of the race track the damage done by the rain was the greatest. It is estimated 40,000 people were watching the races.

Shelter Was Scarce.

A moment after the first drops fell a deluge driven by a fierce gale was pouring over the agitated crowd.

Every available nick of shelter was taken advantage of. Umbrellas were of no use, for the moment one was raised a dozen people sought its shelter, while the rain poured through them without interruption.

Automobiles, fence posts, boards and everything that would offer the slightest shelter from the slanting rain were clung closely to by the people, who huddled like chickens behind one another anxious to keep someone between them and the rain.

But the storm did not last long. The mutterings of thunder soon died away in the south and presently the sun was out again, hotter than ever. The bedraggled ones made the best of it. City people could get to their homes, but the visitors had to make the best of it. Most of them were reasonably dry before night. At 6 o'clock there was another little spatter. This hurried many toward the entrances, but it was past before they got there.

Almost a Tragedy.

Mlle. Zeno made three ascents in a balloon during the day, and the last she made resulted in her having a perilous experience. She had ascended from Fireworks hill during the early evening and after reaching an elevation of 2,500 feet attempted to release her parachute and make the descent to earth. The ropes had become twisted, however, and she could do nothing but hang on and wait. She finally dropped in the East End, two miles from where she went up. She was not injured, as her balloon caught in a tree, breaking her fall. Prof. Highler, who was to have been shot from a cannon while suspended in mid-air, did not come, as he is in a hospital in Louisville because his apparatus failed to work properly.

All this time new crowds were coming as the tired ones were passing out. The cars came loaded and went away in the same condition, but they had changed their loads. The people coming looked bright and fresh. They were the people who had been at home all day taking it easy and had come to see the park for a little while before the fireworks. They were also some of the people who a few hours before had gone home bedraggled and had changed their clothing for dry apparel.

Was Happy Crowd.

It was a happy, good natured crowd all day. There was not a fight of any consequence. True, there was a few little disturbances, but they did not amount to anything, and the offenders were hustled away so quickly that they attracted no attention. Patrol wagons were everywhere, but half of them might as well been at their headquarters. Fully 200 pistols were hauled away in the wagons. In taking them from the offenders the police made no fuss. As soon as a man was seen with a pistol it was wrenched from his hand. If he made a protest he was settled with the information that he could come to headquarters for his weapon. Only 14 arrests were made during the day.

Everybody was at Schenley yesterday for a good time; for a real American celebration of the Fourth of July, the birthday of the country, and if they did not have a pleasant day it was their own fault.

Much disappointment was felt over the postponement of the field events, necessitated by the heavy rain. The crowds were willing to sit and wait in their water-soaked clothing, but the field was a miniature lake and the sports had to be given up.

Good Work of Hospitals.

The hospital corps did most excellent work. The nurses were all volunteers from the hospitals to which they are attached. Their names are as follows: The Misses Hannon, Crock, Smitten, Young, Oberhelman, Anchors, Ruffner, Shomberg, Lassey Patrick, Purdy Lash, McCray and Crosser.

The hospitals were in charge of Surgeon Maj. W. M. Johnson and his chief of staff was Dr. W. M. Wallace. They were assisted by Doctors E. C. Leslie, C. W. Sample, Thomas Welsh, O. B. Prinzler, Milton Goldsmith, F. E. Hernott, J. W. Evans, Thomas Greig, Fetzgar, Ely, Karl Emerling, Ramsey, S. H. Hays and others. There were six hospital tents and they attracted much attention.

William Funk, a member of the Eighteenth regiment and supposed to live at No. 2209 Carey alley, was the worst patient received in the park hospitals during the day. He had heat prostration, complicated with an epileptic fit. He was sent to Mercy hospital in a serious condition. After being worked with for some hours he became conscious for a few minutes. He was unconscious at midnight and really worse than when taken to the hospital.

Long List of Victims.

Among those who were overcome and cared for in the hospitals were: E. Abbott, No. 1124 Brow street, Allegheny; Charles Elder, Eighteenth regiment; J. M. Strower, No. 7569 Susquehanna street; Eighteenth regiment Corporal Van Swin, No. 1817 Forbes street; William Dillinger, Uniontown, Tenth regiment; Clay Davenport, Eighteenth regiment, No. 1212 Race street; Bert Walttower, McKeesport, Eighteenth regiment; Mrs. Gerty Graham, No. 231 Collins avenue; Ida Wangel, Braddock; Clara Varnock, Manor; J. N. Melvin, No. 66 Gloucester street; Mrs. H. B. Johnston, No. 4 Wilmot square; William Bevins; Mrs. Spencer, Harry Muston, Wilkinsburg; Harry E. Lynn, New Castle; Claude Barton, Homestead; J. W. Kuimiham, R. E. Breeneman, F. S. Kellogg, Lucy H. Adams and Mrs. Lottie Conklin, No. 588 North avenue, Allegheny. A boy who said his name was Edward Cromley of Edna street, shot himself through the hand. He was sent home.

Pittsburgh Had Money to Burn.

Pittsburgh had money to "burn" yesterday and it "went off" in flames of many hues to the tune of nearly $50 a minute. "What odds," remarked a weather-beaten chap from one of the rural districts to one of the fireworks firm, as he laid down a ten spot for a bunch of multi-formed rockets. "It's the greatest Fourth of July I've seen in many a year. Let'er burn," and off he strolled as merry as a yearling prancing about the green fields for the first time.

In round numbers Pittsburgh and Allegheny "burned" over $35,000 yesterday, and burned it with such deliberation that it was plainly evident the main thing in view was how to burn it the quickest. These figures were supplied by two of the downtown wholesale houses that for several days have been storing away unburned green, secured from the good-natured public. Never before has there been such a continuous cannonading in this city.

The Big Fires.

This general estimate includes the big bonfire of $5,000 at Schenley park, the orgy of $1,500 by the citizens of the hilltop districts in McKinley park, a fairly good fire to the tune of $2,000 by Allegheny City. Then, of course, the Pittsburgh Railway company loosened up "just a trifle" and amused their patrons by putting in the neighborhood of $3,000 in the flames. Of course the good public had to contribute some "unburned cash" to see this generous flame, but it was all counted in "burnt money," and it was considered an event at any rate to see the traction magnates loosen. In scores of homes, especially of the wealthier classes, there was a private "burning" of, all told, about $8,000. It was a great sight for those who had the opportunity of seeing it.

When you arrive today on this choice new East End property, get your pencil out and see if it is possible to mark down for any other property as many advantages as you see here. Remember in making this comparison, that there are five important points to jot down in favor of this wonderful property:—

The fine traction car service that puts the downtown business district and Allegheny within 28 and 30 minutes' ride.

The new Pennsylvania Railroad that will pass the plan and spend $10,000,000 to give twentieth century train service.

The unprecedented building boom that will in less than two years have the plan completely built up with modern homes.

The class of people that have already established homes on the property.

And the price; yes, especially the price, for no such opportunity in the way of price has been presented on good real estate since the first real estate man in this section of the state hung out his shingle.

It is positively the first time in the annals of the entire real estate business that it was ever possible to buy high-class realty with city conveniences and improvements at anywhere near the prices ruling at this sale, and the only time that a man could get in and buy valuable East End frontage, where families of the highest refinement are living, at a figure really lower than is being asked for lots in cheap suburban plans, where the increase in population is less than 11 per cent as against 328 per cent for this immediate neighborhood, in which nearly 600 houses of quality have been erected in less than a year and an increase of more than 5,000 effected in population.

200 lots could have been sold to speculators and contractors without the formality of a public sale, but the policy of this company is to sell to individuals—to let the masses of the people in on the ground-floor prices—then to raise prices up somewhere in conformity to the figures being asked by owners of adjoining realty.

The BOARD OF DIRECTORS will meet to consider this question as soon as the new Lincoln Bridge, spanning Silver Lake and the Boulevard, en route to the property, has been completed.

You can get a pretty good idea of the class of residences which will distinguish Chadwick Place, and preserve its character as a high-class home site, by examining the new houses on Lemington Avenue, made perfect with complete sewerage, water, electric lights and both gases.

DETAILS OF THE GREAT DAY IN PITTSBURGH

OLD SOLDIERS GAVE SALUTE TO GALLANT LEADER

Survivors of the Civil War Greeted the President Handsomely.

AN IMPRESSIVE SCENE

In a Stand on St. Pierre Street Men Who Fought for the Union Honored the Man Who Now Stands for the Principles They Maintained.

THE great war of the rebellion furnished 600 veterans who looked President Roosevelt squarely in the eye yesterday and saluted as his carriage paused before the stand in St. Pierre street for their accommodation. The hero of San Juan hill looked upon the heroes of Gettysburg, Manassas and the Wilderness, and they recognized each other as equals.

In involuntary homage heads were bared and the veterans took to their arms and hearts the exponent of honesty and directness who now fills the executive chair, as they did their lamented comrade, the late William McKinley.

The long pause which the procession made before the hundreds of veterans was not premeditated, but it happened better than arrangements could have effected. When the head of the column swung around the corner of St. Pierre street and Fifth avenue the remnant of the thousands of warriors Allegheny county sent to the front, arose and received the chief magistrate standing. The feebleness of many of them was forgotten and the thought that the president represented a younger generation and had fought in another war had no place.

Veterans Knew How to Salute.

No set plans were made for a show of homage from the veterans' stand to the president. Those in charge of the stand were content to let that matter shape itself, convinced that the innate respect for the president and the years of unconscious deference to the commander-in-chief of the army would point the way to a suitable reception to the successor of McKinley, and the result sustained them in their trust.

From right to left the veterans dressed as the platoon of mounted police swung past and they stood with covered heads as the citizen soldiery in the guise of the national guardsmen marched steadily by. The veterans had no eyes for these, their successors. They were awaiting the man who more than all others is forcing down the throats of the disaffected a wholesome respect for and appreciation of the deeds of American soldiers.

As the carriage of the president slowly approached the stand Capt. Samuel Duvall, president of the Allegheny county Grand Army association, who was in charge, glanced quickly along the lines and rubbed his eyes. The scene astonished him. Thirty-seven years had rolled back as a curtain and he saw before him his comrades rejuvenated, their sight keener, their perception quicker and their patriotism as great as when they climbed Missionary ridge and Lookout mountain, or swept Lee's infantry at Appomattox.

Every Head Was Uncovered.

Every head was uncovered. Back in the rear rank an ex-marine with one limb gone rose unsteadily to his feet and near him a disabled hoary-headed veteran of Fredericksburg forgot his crutches and his 60 years and stood without support, his cap above his head and his hand raised in salute.

It was the unexpected that happened to President Roosevelt. He evidently had not been prepared for this reception. The stalwart troopers under command of Capt. C. W. S. Jones had hidden the veterans from his view until he was almost upon them. He looked inquiringly at City Recorder J. O. Brown, who explained.

The President leaned forward and was about to order the driver to pause when the carriage stopped. Rising to his feet he bared his head and the hand that swung the saber over San Juan hill was raised in the officers' salute to the [illegible] ranks before him. From end to end of the 200 feet of stand the right [illegible] of each veteran rose to his tem[illegible] and slowly fell. The soldiers of the [illegible] of Allegheny who responded to [illegible] of the man who so named them [illegible]uted the man who is the greatest [illegible]ample of the principles which [illegible]ught to implant and sustain.

Still the carriage lingered, and again the president saluted. Again 600 right hands raised in salute, and as slowly fell. The crowd across the thoroughfare, who were seeing nothing of the president but his broad shoulders, clamored for his attention, but he heard them not. His attention was for none but the tattered remnant of the great army with which Grant and Sheridan, Sherman and Meade had put down armed rebellion.

He viewed with wonder the enthusiasm and almost boyish glee of the soldiers from the state within whose borders the high tide of rebellion was curbed and sent rolling back to southern soil.

Softly, while the people wondered, the strains of "The Conqueror's March" floated upon the air. The president faced about. Two little girls in pure white had risen from the front ranks of the veterans and the clear, sweet notes of their bugles rang in perfect unison, with a skill to which the buglers of the Sheridan troop later confessed envy. The president was interested. He remarked to his secretary that he had heard those bugles before.

Three Cheers and a Tiger Given.

He was correct. The girlish buglers were Misses Margaret and Ethel Dawson, granddaughters of Col. George W. Dawson, commander of the Sixty-first regiment, Pennsylvania Veteran Volunteer Infantry. They sounded "taps" at Union station last September, as all that was mortal of the late President William McKinley were borne slowly through this city. The sounding of the bugles occurred just as President Roosevelt's car was passing out of the station, and at that time he made favorable comment to the newspaper men concerning the [illegible]rsion.

President Roosevelt would have made a few remarks to the veterans, but the exploding cannon crackers about him, to which no attention whatever was paid by the score of police in attendance, prevented anything he might say from being heard, and he wisely did not make the attempt. He bowed again and resumed his seat as the procession again took up the line of march.

Three cheers and a tiger was suggested by an enthusiastic veteran and they were given with a will. The representative citizen soldiery of the great state of Pennsylvania had paid their respects to the soldier-president, and they were satisfied. They viewed with approving eyes the glittering uniforms as they passed them, but interest was dead. The great day was over for them.

Chairman D. L. Gillespie, of the committee on stands, came in for a great deal of commendation from representatives of all the Grand Army posts of Allegheny county, who were gathered there. Abundant preparations were made for the veterans, and the plans developed without a blot upon them. The stand was appropriately decorated, the seats were comfortable, and no impostor presented himself to call for criticism, or for unpleasantness. Legible placards designated the location of the various posts on the stand and H. H. Bengough, assisted by Thomas J. Fording, city superintendent of water assessments, himself a veteran with an enviable war record, saw to it that each veteran was in his proper place. It is bold to say that the arrangements were the best that have been made in late years for the veterans, whose achievements are too often forgotten, but the statement is justified by the events of yesterday.

A stand of 600 capacity was erected. The committee thought it was getting outside the mark. Some of them counselled a smaller stand. But Chairman Gillespie grasped the greatness of the occasion, and with rare wisdom judged that there would be more than half a thousand veterans.

Old Soldiers Did Their Part.

A circular was issued calling upon the veterans to appear, wearing such insignia or badge as entitled them to recognition, and urging them to comprehend the responsibility of showing the president that the Allegheny contingent of the splendid armies that put down armed rebellion from '61 to '65, came from the best bone and sinew of the sturdy pioneers that have made Pittsburg and Allegheny county famous. They rose to the occasion. The president will never forget them.

Veterans came from all parts of the county. The majority of them were attired in the uniform of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Many of them were weak and helpless. Many arose from beds of illness and pain that they might greet the nation's chief executive. Here and there were crutches, with anon an empty sleeve that told of southern battle fields. A few were sightless from the scorching effect of southern powder. But they did not lack attention. For many of them it was a last view of the president of the United States. They could see no greater or more popular chief executive. He is carrying out the policies and hopes of their late comrade, William McKinley. The veterans indorse Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT'S NAME.

It Comes from Holland and Has a Peculiar Pronunciation.

Many thousands of the people of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania having seen the president, it is desirable that they should know how to pronounce his name. The great majority of Pittsburghers pronounce it wrongly. The usual way to speak it is as if it were spelled Roozvelt. Some give it a third syllable, saying Roo-zy-velt.

The name is not pronounced as it is spelled according to English ideas of pronunciation. It is a Dutch name, and in the Dutch, as in the German language, oo is pronounced like long o in English, or like oo in door. Neither does the s have the sound of z. The president's name is pronounced as if it were spelled Roce-a-velt, not Roze-a-velt or Rooz-a-velt. And, by the way, the president is quite particular about the pronunciation and often corrects those who address him wrongly on the occasion of a first meeting.

PANAMA NEGOTIATIONS.

Canal Dickering Will Be Easy, as the Protocol Nearly Covers the Ground—Waiting on Hay.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—The negotiations for the treaty between the United States and Colombia, by which we will acquire the right to build the Panama canal, will begin in about one week, Minister Concha of Colombia having conferred with Secretary Hay on the preliminaries of the negotiations. Mr. Hay will be out of the city for the next few days and on his return the negotiations will begin. Minister Concha has been fully clothed with authority to proceed with the treaty.

The main features of the treaty are pretty well settled, as the protocol signed some time ago was quite full in setting forth the prospective arrangement in case congress acted favorably on the Panama route. The amount to be paid Colombia for a relinquishment of exclusive rights to the United States will be $7,000,000 in gold, payable on the exchange of ratifications of the treaty, and in addition Colombia is to receive an annuity at the end of 14 years, to be determined by mutual agreement at that time. This annuity is expected to be $600,000 a year, as the immediate payment of $7,000,000 covering the period of the next 14 years is considered a basis for fixing the annual rental at $600,000.

There will be a transfer of such jurisdiction over the six-mile zone as will permit the exercise of American authority, with American courts, sanitary officers and police. The question of transferring complete political sovereignty is about the only point which could raise obstacles to the negotiations, but it is expected that this point will be avoided, as the act of congress appears to contemplate a transfer of jurisdiction and not a transfer of political sovereignty.

RECORD BROKEN IN RAIL TRAVEL TO PITTSBURGH

New Mark Set on All Local Lines by Yesterday's Passenger Business.

OVER 250,000 VISITORS

Unexpectedly Large Travel Out of Town Yesterday Morning Due to Excursions and to Dread of Noise Attending the Great Celebration.

Without fear of contradiction it may be stated that the railroads of Pittsburgh yesterday broke all their records in the number of passengers brought into and taken out of Pittsburgh in 24 hours. As yet no exact figures are to be obtained, because the reports are not complete, but the officials say that the number of cars used and the heavy loads make it plain that the Fourth of July celebration was the most powerful attraction, measured by the number of outside visitors, that Pittsburgh ever had. It is likely that over 250,000 persons were brought into the city yesterday from the surrounding country.

It had been prophesied that if yesterday were a fair day the crowds from nearby towns would be phenomenal, and the prophecy proved true. No line enjoyed a monopoly of the business, for all had prepared to take care of it and all had plenty to do. The various divisions of the Pennsylvania lines east and west brought, of course, the greater part of the people. There were heavy excursion trains from points along the Allegheny Valley division, the West Penn and the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, while over the Ft. Wayne and the Panhandle equally large crowds came in. On the regular trains there was extra equipment, while extra sections to all of them and specials were frequent.

At Panther Hollow.

The arrangements of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for handling the crowds by landing them from the Junction road in the center of Schenley park worked admirably. The long special trains of that road from both the east and west were stopped at the temporary station in Panther Hollow, and without hitch of any kind the passengers were placed right at their destination.

Over the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie also there was record-breaking travel. In addition to the regular equipment 75 coaches, obtained from every available source, were pressed into the service of the "Little Giant," and many of the trains on the road made two trips before the day's work was done. It was estimated that 25,000 passengers were carried on the road yesterday into and out of Pittsburgh.

One of the special surprises of the day was the unexpectedly heavy travel in the morning out of the city. The fact that the celebration was to be on such a large scale had its full effect upon the many people who are wont to flee the city on the Fourth of July and seek a more quiet place.

Many Left Town.

In addition there were excursions to Cleveland, and the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors of the Lake Erie road had their annual picnic at Aliquippa park. Fully 5,000 people attended this. There is always a heavy out-of-town travel on July 4 by reason of the holiday giving many young men and women working in the city an opportunity to visit their homes in the nearby towns and country.

The crowded stations and the busy movement of trains was repeated at night when the bulk of the crowd left the city. The trains taking the departing visitors were run mostly without schedules, cars being loaded and trains sent away as fast as the people came.

Incidents of an amusing nature abounded. Many of those coming to the city were evidently obtaining their first view of a large town and were easily bewildered. It was only a matter of following the crowds, however, to reach the general mecca, Schenley park, and the cases of loss of way were few.

Considering the unusually heavy travel and the breaking of schedules on its account the absence of serious accidents is considered remarkable.

POLICE FORCE WAS SELF-ASSERTIVE

STUDIOUSLY DISREGARDED IDENTIFICATION CARDS AND BADGES.

Newspaper Reporters and Committeemen Were Continually Hindered by Inefficiency of Police Officers and Men—Made Big Task All the Harder.

For the convenience, it was alleged, of newspaper men, members of committees and others having duties that would require them to pass police lines during the celebration of yesterday special "police cards" were issued by the department of public safety signed by John McAleese, superintendent of police, and countersigned by A. H. Leslie, director of the department of public safety. They were to take the place of the annual police card issued to newspaper men to facilitate the gathering of news by permitting them to pass lines of police, fire lines, etc., through which the general public must be excluded and where few have any business to go.

These special cards which were issued for yesterday were shown to the police at the various stations when they reported for duty yesterday morning and they were instructed to recognize them. Badges were also issued to newspaper men bearing the word "Reporter" upon them, so plain that even the most obtuse policeman could understand them. They were told that special privileges were to be granted to the bearers.

The result was the usual one. Every other policeman in Schenley park and along the line of the parade yesterday paid no attention. The newsgatherers and committees were hampered in the discharge of their duties by the fatuity of policemen, from captains to patrolmen. Lieut. Grogan of the Oakland district and a number of patrolmen who surrounded the president's stand made themselves especially obnoxious.

Next to viewing the proceedings of yesterday every person within a radius of 1,000 miles of Pittsburgh wants an opportunity to read this morning every detail of the great day. They will do so, but they need give no credit to the management of the police force of Pittsburgh, which hindered where it should have helped and obstructed where it should have made the collection of news an easy matter.

This fatuity was abroad from captains down. Inability to understand orders and the possession of a little brief authority brought their true characteristics to the surface. The wise bearer of a card of authority and a badge of identity paid little attention to the inane excuses of the "finest of the fine" yesterday and tranquilly transacted business despite their threats and menaces.

Those who have worked in Pittsburgh on similar occasions were familiar with the system. The visitors were disgusted until they, too, became calloused and gave the blundering creature in the blue suit and brass buttons the same consideration that they did every other assertive individual who did not know his place.

MEN OF AFFAIRS CELEBRATE THE DAY AT LUNCHEON

Hundreds Were the Guests of the Entertainment Committee.

SANG SONGS OF AMERICA

Three Cheers and a Tiger for President Roosevelt from Enthusiastic Gathering — Judge Pennypacker Greeted as State's Next Governor.

Much of Pittsburgh's greatness, as exemplified in its prominent men, gathered in the dining rooms of the Hotel Schenley shortly after the morning exercises in Schenley park were concluded to partake of a luncheon prepared by the entertainment committee of Greater Pittsburgh's greatest Fourth of July celebration. Two hundred guests ate, drank and made merry from 1 to 3 o'clock in the afternoon, every person present expressing his satisfaction that the weather man had listened to the prayers of countless thousands while the president was traveling the streets of the city and delivering his address to the Western Pennsylvania gathering that greeted him.

Frank Moore, chairman of the committee, and his numerous assistants spared no pains to make every guest feel at home, and nothing that the hotel provided was too good for those who partook of their hospitality. Prominent men from every walk of life discussed the events of the day around the small tables scattered through the three large rooms used for the occasion. Gov. William A. Stone failed to put in an appearance. Most of his staff made themselves at home and thoroughly enjoyed the impromptu affair. They were warmly welcomed.

Judge Pennypacker Wins.

When Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker entered the rooms, followed by George W. Guthrie, many gathered about him, extending congratulations and wishing him success in the fall campaign. He was introduced by his friends as the next governor of Pennsylvania, and spent a delightful afternoon meeting prominent Western Pennsylvania business and professional men. Partisan spirit, however, had no place in the gathering, as men from both political parties jokingly assured each other that the outcome of the campaign was assured.

When the room was filled and all were enjoying themselves rain spattered against the window panes, and renewed congratulations were expressed that it had delayed its coming until the president was safely housed with the other guests of H. C. Frick.

Little groups gathered in various parts of the room telling stories of the day, while waiters hurried hither and thither, supplying each with all the good things on the list.

Impromtu Concert Given.

One group struck a responsive chord in the hearts of all when they commenced to sing "Hard Times Come Again No More," typical of the day and the work of the administration represented by the president in the birthplace of the Republican party.

It was a jolly gathering. W. I. Mustin, ex-Mayor W. J. Diehl, Emil Swensson, John Dimling, W. H. Williams and L. T. Brown were among the vocalists who started the singing. The applause which greeted their first effort encouraged the singers and their ranks were swelled as they took up, one after the other, the patriotic songs of the day—"America," "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Red, White and Blue." Nearly everybody joined in, and after it was all over Judge W. D. Porter of the superior court wisely remarked: "Men must be industrious to produce such results on claret punch," which caused a hearty laugh. Somebody asked, "Who started that?" and his nearest neighbor turned around and said, "'Billie' Mustin; you ought to know that."

Cheers That Were Rousers.

L. T. Brown proposed three cheers for President Roosevelt and Greater Pittsburgh, which were given with such hearty good will that people in the parks thought pandemonium had broken loose. A tiger followed and then Col. A. J. Logan came in for a similar reception for his work as chairman of the executive committee.

And thus the afternoon was spent. It was all impromptu, no speeches and no order of the day; nothing but the good cheer an excellent chef affords and an assiduous committee carries out. Men who never knew how delightful some of their fellows are met them for the first time and spent a pleasant afternoon in their company. Officers in full regimentals strolled about the room, joining small groups here and there, who were discussing the event of the year in Pittsburgh, while judges, bankers and men high in the affairs of state talked of the effect the president's address would have throughout the country. It was a happy termination of many weeks of hard work and the committee fully deserved all the good things its fellows said of it.

PE-RU-NA IS THE WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND,

So Says Mrs. Rose, of New York City,
And Tens of Thousands of Other Women.

Mrs. Jennie Rose, 362 W. Twenty-Second Street, New York City, writes: The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "Peruna is a blessing to suffering women. I suffered with female trouble since I began menstruation, and every month I suffered two and three days of untold agony, and had to arrange my work and duties so as to be in bed every month for two days at least.

"My brother was cured of Bright's disease from the use of Peruna, and so I determined to try it for my trouble.

"Imagine my great joy when I found that it relieved me quite a bit the first month and I was entirely without pain during that period after having used Peruna only four months.

"This is about two years ago and all during that time I have suffered no pain. I can now come and go as I like and consider Peruna woman's best friend and wish that every suffering woman might know that she can find relief through the use of this medicine." Truly yours, MRS. JENNIE ROSE.

Mrs. Ellen Thompson, Battle Town, Ky., writes:

"When I wrote you for advice I was very bad off. When I received your letter I commenced using Peruna and it did just what you said it would. I have had a cough for about fifteen years and your medicine has done me more good than anything I have ever used. I am so thankful to you for your advice to me."—Mrs. Ellen Thompson.

Mrs. James Elghmey, Grape, Mich., writes:

"I have been troubled with pain before and during my monthlies ever since I was seventeen. I was also troubled with other female weakness. I took your treatment, and am now well, and thank you for your kind advice."—Mrs. James Elghmey.

Mrs. John Meyers, Erhart, O., writes:

"I have been a sufferer from chronic catarrh for years and have thereby lost the sense of smell entirely. I had four of the best physicians in this vicinity without receiving any benefit whatever.

"Now I am once more a well woman. I find Peruna to be the best medicine in the world as it has done me more good than my physician could have done for me. My friends say I look ten years younger. I tell them that Peruna did it. I can't thank you enough for your free advice."—Mrs. John Meyers.

Mrs. Ida Baker, Portsmouth, O., writes:

"I am glad to say that I am well. I have taken Peruna and feel better than I have for ten years; have gained twelve pounds and am still gaining. When I wrote to you for advice I had given up all hope of being well again, and I feel that it has saved my life."—Mrs. Ida Baker.

Alice Scott, of Franklin, Ky., in a letter to Dr. Hartman, says:

"For seven long years I have been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the pelvic organs which resulted in displacement of the uterus. I wrote you telling you all my complaints from the beginning to the present, made happy and much encouraged every time by your kind and fatherly letters of advice and instruction. I am now a strong woman, weighing 148 pounds."—Alice Scott.

A Senator's Wife.

Mrs. Verona E. Roach, wife of United States Senator Roach, from North Dakota, writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. Indeed, I know of no other remedy as good. It is a grand tonic, and many of my friends have used it for catarrh with good results."—Verona E. Roach, Larimore, N. D.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus Ohio.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I had been troubled for several years with indigestion, caused chiefly by eating pastry for my lunch, and that led to dizziness and headache. I was unable to go anywhere alone, for I was subject to very severe fainting fits, so severe that for about a half hour I would imagine I saw black cats running around me. One day a friend told me about Ripans Tabules and coaxed me to try them. I finally did, and since then I have hardly been able to find words good enough to express my gratitude. Since taking the Tabules I feel almost, as people say, "baked over," for there has been a wonderful change.

CHURCHES HONOR THE ANNIVERSARY OF INDEPENDENCE

Patriotic Services Will Be Held in Several Tomorrow.

MANY TO MEET IN OPEN AIR

Unusually Attractive Program Is Announced for Schenley Park, While Several Churches Will Hold Evening Services Under Open Skies.

Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal church is to have special patriotic services tomorrow morning, and an appropriate sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. H. W. Rees. His subject will be "Tall Characters and Great Events in American History." In the evening the Rev. Dr. N. L. Brown will speak on religious lessons from the battle of Gettysburg. There will be special music for the occasion. Numerous other pastors have announced patriotic topics for their Sunday sermons.

The Rev Dr. S. Edward Young announces an exceptionally interesting program for the Schenley park meeting tomorrow night. The Homestead Library band has been engaged and this will mark its first appearance in the parks this season. The program will consist of selections from famous authors, including the celebrated organ offertoire from Baptiste, "The Heavens Are Telling," by Haydn; sacred fantasy, "Providence," by Tobin; the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's Stabat Mater; religious fantasy by Benjamin F. Butts, including "I Know He's Mine," "Gathering Home," "Jesus Is Ready; Are You?" and "A Life in the Light of His Face." The chorus under Mr. Butts' leadership will sing "Send Out Thy Light," from Gounod.

As usual, there are to be numerous open meetings in all parts of the city.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY TESTS.

They Are Likely to Be Made in Both Army and Navy Maneuvers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—It is quite probable that the signal corps of the army will use a system of wireless telegraphy in the coming joint army and naval maneuvers. Gen. Greeley has designated a special board to consider what experiments in communication will be attempted at those maneuvers by the army, and the question as to whether the forces will attempt to use a wireless system in their operations will be decided by it.

The navy department does not expect to use wireless telegraphy in the maneuvers this summer, as it has not yet decided upon a system. Lieut. Hudgins of the equipment bureau has been abroad for some time looking into the various wireless sytems developing in Europe and is expected to arrive here very shortly with data which should enable the department to make a selection of some system to experiment with. It is the hope and expectation of the officials that wireless communication can be made a part of the great naval maneuvers which will take place in the Caribbean sea next winter. A part of the material purchased by Lieut. Hudgins abroad already has arrived at the Washington navy yard.

Coal Will Be Dearer.

The anthracite miners' strike has now settled down to a long struggle and there is every probability of the bituminous miners quitting work. Coal will cost more. Why worry or bother with coal when you can use natural gas? Burned economically it costs less than coal. It's clean—no smoke or ashes—and it does not heat up a house in summer. The Philadelphia Company is now making connections and setting meters free of charge to nonconsumers. Ask at 610 Wood street.

The Great Celebration.

Never did Pittsburgh have a more enthusiastic or successful celebration of the Fourth of July. President Roosevelt was greeted with the friendliest warmth; the arrangements were perfect; the program was carried through on schedule time and the thousands of visitors enjoyed themselves in spite of the smart shower that marred the afternoon. No serious accidents occurred in connection with the main features of the day, the casualties reported being such as occur on every Fourth of July, the result of careless handling of explosives.

Committees in charge of the various preparations and the celebration itself are entitled to high credit for what they accomplished. The crowd must be applauded for its exhibition of the proverbial Pittsburgh good nature, the necessary jostling not having caused any ill-humor. From the parade in the morning to the displays of fireworks in the evening, the demonstration was all that could have been hoped for—one that will long be remembered by the hundreds of thousands of participants. President Roosevelt himself must feel that he made no mistake in accepting the invitation of Greater Pittsburgh for an eventful day.

For this success The Gazette takes to itself a measure of credit. It was first to broach the matter of having a rousing, old-fashioned celebration and to propose that President Roosevelt should be invited to attend. On May 6 it gave editorial expression to the hope that this could be arranged and urged Recorder Brown to take immediate steps toward the appointment of committees. The suggestion was acted upon with the happy results that have been noted. The Gazette is always patriotic and in the future, as in the past, will be in the forefront of every movement in the interest of Pittsburgh.

The Business Situation.

The first week in July has brought cumulative evidence of the activity and profitableness of general business during the first half year. At this period large interest and dividend disbursements are made, and it is estimated that corporations whose securities are listed on the various exchanges will pay $125,000,000 on this account this month. In Pittsburgh many banks and trust companies either increased their regular rate or declared extra dividends, in addition to carrying forward comfortable sums to surplus account, and the prosperity of these institutions is but a reflex of the prosperity of their customers, who represent all branches of trade.

As to the volume of business, two great corporations submitted statements bearing upon this point which were not only gratifying, but very impressive. The Pennsylvania railroad reported an increase of $1,500,000 in gross earnings for May on lines directly operated, and an increase of $868,000 on lines west of Pittsburgh and Erie. The United States Steel Corporation reported profits for the past three months of $37,700,000, an increase of more than $11,000,000 over the corresponding quarter last year. These two corporations are representative of their respective classes and may be taken as indicative of the industrial and transportation business of the country. The showing is all the more remarkable, inasmuch as comparisons are made with a period which showed increases over previous years.

The only important development of the week related to agricultural interests. The weather report issued by the government noted unseasonably cool weather over large areas and excessive moisture in others, [illegible] farm work and the grow[illegible] Based upon these report[illegible] by manipulation, corn advanced to 78 cents a bushel, the highest for years, and at one time was quoted above wheat. The latest reports, however, are to the effect that the damage has been greatly exaggerated, and a reaction in the grain markets followed.

Speculation has remained extremely dull, but market values ruled firm. This condition of the security market is not confined to Wall street, but appears to be world-wide. It is a natural reaction from the unprecedented activity of last year and does not necessarily portend any adverse change in general business conditions. The latter, on the contrary, are exceeding the expectations of the most sanguine, and, with an average yield of crops, there is no reason apparent why the finance and trade of the country should not continue satisfactory throughout the coming half year.

National Policies Proclaimed.

President Roosevelt's speech was a model of force and brevity. So many orators, upon a great occasion, diffuse themselves. Mr. Roosevelt does not. Practically his address was confined to three topics, closely welded together in their application to the theme of the day—the duty of the citizen of the present to perform his task with the same honesty of purpose that actuated the patriots who uttered the Declaration of Independence and by their deeds made it fact.

First, of the task almost complete in Cuba. The republic has been created; the foundation of good, self-government laid. There remains the redemption of the obligation to give the new nation industrial life. With much the same emphasis, but without the expletives that characterized the determination of Andrew Jackson, President Roosevelt declared this shall be done. For that resolution all honor is due.

Second, the task in the Philippines. Completed in the first stage with the proclamation of peace and amnesty yesterday. A task well performed by the American army. President Roosevelt's voice rang true in giving praise to the heroes who have performed their duty under difficult conditions. It was the praise of one who fully appreciates the magnitude of the work and the fidelity with which it has been done.

Third, the older, but more difficult problem of regulating our vast industrial and commercial enterprises—the modern giants possessed of such tremendous power for good or evil. President Roosevelt's utterance upon this subject is characteristically blunt and plain. There must be action, but there must be care. Haste must be made slowly. There must be control, but there must not be any attempt to suppress the mighty forces that have built up a glorious nation out of the wilderness. Legislation is needed, but more important is faithful enforcement of the law, regard for exact justice and courage to do right.

Tremendously significant are the words of President Roosevelt in this connection. They are an announcement of the policy of the administration, coupled with merited commendation for the work in that field of Attorney General Knox. They mean that President Roosevelt intends to continue the course of restraining the greed of monopolies without hampering the true progress of industry or commerce; that his policy is to direct the new forces into proper channels, but not to stand in the way of their development. They are the words of wisdom. Publicity, regulation, control, prohibition of interference with the natural laws of trade—such are the means of dealing with the great corporate combinations without producing any shock to the machinery of progress and prosperity.

A Marked Tribute.

President Roosevelt paid a signal compliment to Attorney General Knox yesterday when he practically for a time made Mr. Knox the orator of the occasion. At the time of Mr. Knox's appointment to the office he holds his friends knew that all the ability, knowledge and skill he had previously exerted in behalf of personal interests would be faithfully and energetically exerted in behalf of public interests. So it has proven to be. At the head of the department of justice, Mr. Knox is making his office the efficient instrument of impartial justice, and at a time when the development of political issues is enhancing the responsibility of that office and adding to the delicacy and difficulty of its duties, it is a gratification to all Pittsburghers to know that their eminent fellow-citizen is discharging such important official functions in a way that has merited such a special ecomium as that bestowed by President Roosevelt in his Schenley park address.

Park Comforts Much Needed.

If evidence had been needed to convince anyone that Schenley park is in sore need of improvements, it could have been had in abundance yesterday. With all the temporary refreshment booths and shelters the crowd suffered inconvenience. Of course, it is not deemed necessary to provide permanent shelters for a half-million people, but at least there might have been accommodations for the women and children.

Another thing was notable. The people in the parks were lost. It was not difficult to follow the procession to the speakers' stand at Flagstaff hill, but strangers had much trouble finding their way to the race track, the orchard and other points of interest. The improvements should include suitable signs indicating direction and distance. Schenley is a park of magnificent distances, and in consequence a foundation for one of the best popular pleasure grounds in the world. What it needs is the superstructure of comforts and conveniences. It ought to have them without delay.

The Poet and the Truth.

It is the poet laureate of the coke region that interposes between reports of the glorious Fourth to tell us that "there's a rattle of rusty shackles in the moldy dungeon cell" and that "a yellow Filipino lets a mighty shout and yell as he dances out of bondage." And more of the same, including "bells of old Manila" breaking "bondage cords," "like the bells of seventy-six did."

Which it may be poetry all of it—we leave that to the public conscience—but it isn't in accord with the facts. Because there were no shackles to strike off, and "the moldy dungeon cell," while quite necessary perhaps, for the purpose of fitting a rhyme to the "mighty shout and yell" of the "yellow Filipino," is as unsubstantial as the shackles. The laureate no doubt meant well, but dealers in old iron whose imagination may be fired by thoughts of all those rusty shackles had better wait for later information, and dealers in moldy dungeon cells who may be expecting a profit in buying up and trading off to cold storage capitalists all those abandoned in the poem by "dungeon freemen" had better stick to the American refrigerator and the American cyclone cellar for real returns.

As a matter of fact, if any "yellow Filipino" is making a loud noise because of the president's release of prisoners it is a "mighty shout and yell" of grief and resentment. For the proclamation brings only trouble and not joy to the "dungeon freemen." Hereafter they must hustle for a living. Heretofore they have lived in elegant retirement and gentlemanly leisure at the expense of Uncle Sam. They have had food and raiment for which they had toiled not and neither did they spin. Now all this is to be changed. No more free board; no more free theater tickets; no more free anything. Nothing but work. Therefore, when the poet laureate of the coke region pictures rejoicing in our Pacific islands because the shackles and the dungeons are put out of commission he will strike no responsive chord in the breasts of George Washington Aguinaldo and others. It is a sad day for them, and they are looking around for a Jeremiah to do justice to it.

The Taxpayers' Share.

The proper sub-committee of the corporations committee of councils, now that the Fourth of July celebration is out of the way, will begin to consider the matter of the taxation of corporations that are in possession of municipal grants. It is to be hoped it will move promptly, with the object in view of having an equitable tax on gross receipts provided before another Independence Day comes around. The traction lines earned handsome returns yesterday, and it must be said that they gave good service. But the city should have had a percentage of the earnings in return for the use of the streets and the police protection that the taxpayers provided, for without these the good service could not have been given. How much the receipts were swelled by the refusal of the traction managers to issue the usual transfers perhaps only the managers can tell, but undoubtedly the increase is in itself a handsome sum. The city should of right be a sharer in this excess, and the circumstance that transfers were refused where they were never before cut off will undoubtedly be taken into account by the councilmen who are committed to taxation and better regulation of the public service corporations. If the traction managers take advantage of a rush of business to curtail the privileges or rights of their patrons and exact from them double and treble the regular fares, they must expect that the representatives of those patrons in the city government will be stimulated thereby to greater efforts to secure needed relief for the taxpayers by laying claim to a share in all earnings, regularly or irregularly exacted. The city cannot claim a share of the money paid in yesterday where transfers should have been given or to the receipts from the straight runs, but if the legislative and executive departments of the municipal government are diligent there may be a return from the receipts of July 4, 1903.

Despite the excellent arrangements in every particular an old-time difficulty intruded itself. Elaborate credentials were prepared for press representatives and their duplicates were issued to others, with the inevitable result that the gentlemen of leisure appropriated the points of vantage before the working newspaper men could get in.

As an orator the president is both incisive and decisive. His utterances carry the weight of personal conviction of the truth of what he is saying.

Yesterday's celebration was all The Gazette hoped for when it started the boom and suggested the invitation to the president on May 6.

Still Aguinaldo's previous character should not be urged against his finding a job and speedily going to work.

President Roosevelt's patriotism rings true to the traditions of the past and the duties of the present.

The man behind the gun is quite an important factor in determining the result of Haitien elections.

The country will now settle down to a prolonged tussel with the heat and the mosquito.

The American eagle has a bad case of "the morning after" feeling today.

The celebration was a splendid success in spite of rain interference.

The boy behind the firecracker had a great day of it yesterday.

OPINIONS HERE AND THERE.

It is quite certain that Admiral Dewey would not care for the Democratic nomination for the presidency on an Aguinaldo-hugging platform.—Washington Post.

We have news of a railroad train in Venezuela being held up and searched; but the searching of a train in Venezuela and the finding of anything in said train are two distinct affairs.—Butte Inter-Mountain.

Probably it wouldn't be a bad idea, in view of the increasing number of young women who are being murdered at out-of-the-way resorts by the young gentlemen with whom they go, if the young ladies who have not yet been murdered were to select their escorts with a trifle more care.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

President Roosevelt signed the isthmian canal bill on last Saturday evening. The dream of 300 years now bids fair to become a reality. A few months ago the Nicaragua route was the only one considered as probable of winning in congress, but sound argument, the logic of facts and good horse-sense won, and there is little doubt that inside of a few months work on the Panama canal will be begun by American enterprise and rushed to completion.—Scranton Times.

FOURTH IS SPENT AWAY FROM TOWN

New Yorkers Prefer to Set Off Their Fireworks in Woods or at Seaside.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, July 4.

Perhaps there never was a quieter Fourth of July in New York than this one. Fireworks have been exploded at intervals ever since the early morning, and flags are everywhere; but the streets have been almost deserted since the early hours, when hundreds of thousands of holiday-makers hustled to boats and trains to spend the day by the seashore or in the woods. For it has been essentially a day for the country. Patriotic the New Yorker is, beyond all question; but he likes to shoot off his firecrackers and celebrate Independence Day generally outside of Manhattan island. He can get to the seashore and country without going beyond the limits of Greater New York, so he does not care to remain in what is known as "town." Broadway today has been a great, sunny desert, and Fifth avenue so empty that one could walk or ride its entire length without being obliged to turn aside for someone coming the other way. That there have been fireworks exploded in Manhattan borough, however, is proved by the records of the hospitals. Every one of them has had hundreds of cases, but none has been serious, being nearly all burns from firecrackers. Boys have been setting off their crackers in streets and back yards, and crackers have a nasty habit of scorching the celebrant if he is not careful. One of the pretty features of the Fourth in New York is the dressing with flags of ships in the harbor. Every big ocean-going vessel, with many others that go only through the sound or along the coast, were bedecked with flags from taffrail to maintruck, and thence to bowsprit, with flags of all nations. Under the glint of the sun the colors shone forth bravely and one could see at a glance that this was a big day. It was noticeable that the foreign craft were as gaily bedecked as those which fly the Stars and Stripes regularly. The many steamers of the British lines in particular were gay in bunting, the Lucania of the Cunard line, for instance, being a mass of flags. Take the Fourth all in all, it has been properly celebrated here, and with the minimum of disaster, considering that 3,000,000 men, women and children have been making holiday.

The Teachers' First Sight-Seeing.

Among the groups of visitors which stopped to gaze at points of interest today none was more pleasant to look upon than the members of The Gazette's European excursion tour. The young women from public schools in Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania saw pretty nearly everything worth seeing in this big city. I do not mean that each individual saw everything, but among them they visited every public exhibition of an educational tendency, every important church, every park and every big building about which they had heard and which might be expected to attract the attention of a bevy of bright young women from another big city. When they got together in the evening preparatory to going aboard the vessel they compared notes, and it is safe to say that the metropolis of America was never before more carefully inspected in the course of a few hours.

No "Long-Talks" from the Great.

Tammany could not get Grover Cleveland or D. B. Hill to give the "long talk" at the Wigwam today. Tammany has tried for the last 10 or 15 years to induce these statesmen to be orators of the day for Independence Day, but they have always fought shy of the job; so no one was surprised when letters of regret arrived at the Wigwam, instead of the well-known figures and faces of the ex-president and ex-senator. Mr. Cleveland has said that he will do everything he can for the Democratic ticket this fall, but he does not care to take part in a Tammany jollification, where he would be expected to hobnob with all kinds of people. As for Mr. Hill, he simply won't do it, and you can make the most of it.

The Excursion Through Gotham Eyes.

The New York Telegram has this reference to The Gazette's teachers' European tour: "Twenty-five school marms, leaving their rods at home, and bent on a joyous voyage across the sea, arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel today from Pittsburgh. They will board the steamer Minnehaha tomorrow and sail away to London town. The teachers are the guests of The Pittsburgh Gazette, and the party is under the guidance of a good-looking city editor, whose troubles are already growing crowfeet under his eyes. The tour was planned with the idea of providing an agreeable summer outing for a representative party of public school teachers, and also of benefiting educational interests in Western Pennsylvania. The members of the party were selected by a system of popular voting. The party will visit London, Antwerp, Brussels, Amsterdam, Cologne, Heidelberg, Lucerne, Rigi, Interlaken, Paris, Edinburgh and Glasgow, and will reach New York on the return voyage August 17."

Comedian Foy as Umpire.

Among the Fourth of July diversions here was a game of baseball played by the attaches of the Knickerbocker theater, with Eddie Foy, the comedian, as umpire. No one knows how the game resulted, but is said that when someone wanted Foy to call the game on account of darkness, it was with the proviso that it would be resumed at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. "It is too important a question to leave undecided," declared the comedian-umpire.

New Yorkers Not Pipe-Smokers.

In spite of the attempt of some up-to-date men who have passed weeks or months in the British isles, to make pipe-smoking popular in this city, there is little of it here. Up and down Broadway one will not find more than one smoker in fifty with a pipe in his mouth. The others are puffing at cigars or cigarettes. The unpopularity of pipe-smoking in this city is said to be due to women, who do not like to see a pipe in a man's mouth, but rather enjoy the odor of a cigar. In college towns, like New Haven or Princeton, it is different. There the pipe is as necessary to the standing and the equipment of a student as the colors of his alma mater or his class pin. If your sense of humor is strong, it will cause you much amusement to stroll along the streets of one of these towns and remark the college youth with his inseparable pipe and his important bearing born of its possession. The pipe with him is the equivalent of his arrival at maturity.

One Pittsburgher on Lucania.

Only one Pittsburgher is on the passenger list of the Cunard liner Lucania, which will sail from this port tomorrow morning for Liverpool. The solitary representative of Western Pennsylvania is S. Kenyon.

"The Defender" Criticised

Talking about "The Defender," the new musical comedy at the Herald Square theater, which was produced last night with a fair measure of success, one critic here says: "Puns and gags that merited reverence, due to their age, gave her a list to starboard. Navvies, longshoremen, coal heavers, stewards and a variegated crew shanghaied on and off the deck as monotonously as buoys nid-nod in the harbor, but with no visible purpose of safeguarding any sort of craft. If Lederer, Hammerstein, Whitney or any able-bodied seaman could overhaul the Defender from truck to keel, leaving only a few of the original spars and standing rigging, she would reach better and fairly skim before the wind. Several brisk novelties have been conceived by her designers and builders, including tissue paper waterspouts ad lib as a finale, pumpkin-head lanterns and the like of that, messmates; but alleged witticisms based on mal de mer and other topics not dwelt upon in polite circles afloat or ashore mar the working plans."

A Basso's Son Misses His Fourth.

They are telling this on William Pruette, the basso, who is as well known in Pittsburgh as on Broadway: The singer's youngest son bothered him so much to buy some fireworks of the noisiest kind that this morning the father promised to take him and his brother to the Bronx for an hour or two before the matinee at the Casino to shoot away a few dollars' worth of crackers. Mr. Pruette had carried several bunches of crackers to his rooms in the hotel and all seemed promising for a good Fourth celebration. With the last of the collection in his coat tail pockets, Mr. Pruette was stopped in the hotel office by a friend. The fuse string of one cannon cracker was showing from behind. Young Pruette saw it and could not resist the temptation to touch it off. When the explosion came there was nearly a panic among the patrons. Pruette had the tails blown off his best coat and his promising son has gone over to his aunt's home in Brooklyn, there to wait until the storm blows over.

Devery Greater Than Mrs. Partington.

"Big Chief" Devery took his first ocean dip at Rockaway Beach this morning. According to a man that was at the beach something like this took place: He put on his bathing dress in his cottage, 1,200 feet from the water, then he jumped into a closed carriage, which sped swiftly down to the sea. Devery is said to have looked, in his bathing costume, like a canvas balloon. Arrived at the water's edge, the carriage door opened and the canvas balloon escaped. Another moment and it was in the water. The sweeping waves rolled on—at least they rolled on until they found out what they were up against. Then they receded, or tried to recede. It was the Big Chief's first dip of the season and he enjoyed the argument with wave and water for five minutes. After that he came forth and declared that it "was the greatest fight of his life." Old Ocean shook his hoary locks and retreated, his "bosom shaken with a sudden storm of sighs." The trembling sands settled down again and all was quiet along the boardwalk.

Quarreled by Note.

An amusing feature of a band concert given in Central park this afternoon was a "comical contest." The various instruments quarreled desperately in crochets, quavers and demi-semi-quavers, with a few ragtime phrases thrown in, ending with a harmonious finale. The idea amused the public at large, and the musicians present almost went into hysterics of appreciation. While technical enough to please the latter class it was obvious enough to tickle the ears of the masses.

An Unlucky Thirteen.

Baseball lovers here are grumbling because the Giants won only one game out of thirteen played in the last series that ended Wednesday. Good natured as New Yorkers are, as a class, they will complain when their ball team falls short, although they should be getting used to it by this time, too.

Patriotism of Aliens.

Not only has a Chinaman been arrested for celebrating the great and glorious Fourth of this free country, but Italians, Slavs, Armenians and Greeks have been seized with the overwhelming spirit of American patriotism. The Chinaman who had a spasm of American patriotism and was having it out in blank cartridges, much to the disgust of an Elizabeth street station policeman, was Charlie Fong. He keeps a store in Bayard street. Fong protested in his gentle and guileless way that "We'll'n't loaded;" but the policeman took him away just the same, muttering that things had come to a pretty pass when "Chinks take to shooting in the streets." This was only an incident, however, and it did no particular harm, not even to the Chinaman.

Death of a Popular Hotel Man.

The hundreds of Pittsburghers who knew Frank B. Thomas, assistant manager of the Waldorf-Astoria, will be deeply grieved over the news of his death, which took place yesterday morning after an illness of typhoid fever of less than two weeks. He was buried this afternoon. Mr. Thomas was one of the best-known hotel men in the country. He came to this city from Utica 12 years ago at the request of George C. Boldt, the manager of the Waldorf. Much of the detail work of the management of the large hotel fell upon him and it was one of his duties to arrange for all the large dinners given there. A widow and two children survive him. He was always on deck at all hours of the day and evening. He told me not long ago that that was incumbent on all hotel managers and that he never regarded the number of hours it might be necessary to be on duty. Handsome, genial and popular, he had plenty to live for, and it is hard to believe that he is dead.

FIRECRACKERS BARRED.

Chautauqua Affords One Spot Where Quietude Can Be Found.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 4.—(Special.)—The glorious Fourth at the assembly ground has been a very quiet affair; in fact, this was attained through malice aforethought. No firecrackers were sold on the grounds, and those that were brought in were not permitted to be fired. Before 7 o'clock in the morning people came here to get away from that sort of patriotic punishment, and the management co-operated with them to accomplish their desire.

There were, of course, the usual patriotic exercises, which included music by the chorus, the reading of the Declaration of Independence by Prof. Clarke and an admirable address by Prof. John H. Finley of Princeton.

Prof. Finley said that while we celebrate the anniversary of our own independence we have special cause for rejoicing that of our own motion, in a spirit of benevolence and philanthropy, we have given a declaration of independence politically to our near neighbors, and it is much to be regretted that the failure of one branch of our congress to measure up to its duty prevented us from granting them a fuller measure of industrial independence; and the recent proclamation of the president gives us cause to believe that in due time we will grant another declaration of independence to our wards in the Philippines.

The subject of Prof. Finley's address was the problem of the relationship of the temperate zones to the tropics. All the wonderful progress of the world in the last century has been along the isothermal lines of the temperate zones. The development of the next century must of necessity be in the tropics. They will not develop themselves, for there is neither the energy nor the necessity which forces action. Therefore, they must be developed by somebody else, and that somebody is the white man of the temperate zones.

But the tropics are no place for white men in large numbers, only in small numbers selected for special fitness. Our part is to keep our motives right at home. It is our duty to put uppermost the thought that we are mere trustees there, and all our successful administrative policies must have their basis in the selfish motive.

Whatever of fuss and fireworks was lacking at the assembly grounds was fully compensated for at the other end of the lake. The boats for Celeron have been jammed, and delightful young Americanism has not been lacking there.

PERSONALS.

"Never in my experience have I run into such noise as on Thursday night in Pittsburgh," remarked W. H. Powell of Chicago at the Baltimore & Ohio station last night. "When I left the station the atmosphere was thick with sulphur and the noise was deafening. During the Spanish war I served on the Iowa, but the run for Cervera's fleet was melody to the din I ran into in Pittsburgh. The noise was soul racking and I did not feel safe until I was within the shelter of the hotel."

J. H. Lane, a business man of New York, passed through the city last night to Chicago. "I expect to stop in Pittsburgh on my return from the west," he said, "as I understand this is a city of smoke. New York is now covered with a black pall and I want to see if Pittsburgh puts out more smoke than our elevated railroads, tugs and manufacturers. Soft coal is going out in smoke all over New York and the law against the nuisance appears to be a dead letter. Our railroad officials say that it is impossible to procure hard coal, but the consumers think that if they would use their efforts to end the strike it could be gotten in abundance."

Ghosts! Why, the world is ghosts!

THE DEATH ROLL.

James W. Cready.

James W. Cready, a member of one of the old families of Pittsburgh, died last night at his home, No. 5 Stamm avenue, Mt. Oliver, in his 82d year. Mr. Cready had been in failing health for some months and his death was caused by ailments incident to old age. Mr. Cready was born on the South Side and was able to trace his family back to 1785, in which year his ancestors settled in the vicinity of Six Mile Ferry. For many years Mr. Cready was a prominent contractor of the South Side. He retired about 10 years ago. Before the South Side district was admitted to the city, Mr. Cready served as a member of the borough school board of the Knox public school. He was a member of the Grace Lutheran church, and is survived by four children: Wallace H. Cready, who served with distinction in the civil war; W. H. and John Cready and Mrs. I. Rosser.

Ruth Annie Patterson.

Ruth Annie Patterson, wife of John W. Patterson, for any years a tipstaff in the court house, died Thursday at the family home in West Liberty borough. She was 74 years old and the ills of age were the cause of her death. She is survived by her husband and several children. The funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Robert Dunlap Fetterman.

Robert Dunlap Fetterman, son of the late Judge C. S. Fetterman and Eliza McElroy Fetterman, died yesterday at the residence of his brother, Dr. J. M. Fetterman, in Boggs avenue, Thirty-second ward. The funeral services will be held tomorrow at the residence of his brother-in-law, J. E. Fulton, at Mt. Lebanon.

It was, doubtless, in accordance with King Edward's friendly policy toward Americans that Queen Alexandra paid Whitelaw Reid and his wife the honor of receiving them first of all visitors, except her immediate family, when she was able to leave the king's bedside, and detained them longer than the time usually given to a formal reception. It was a compliment not only to the American special envoy, but to the nation which he represents, and if it was nothing more than diplomatic tact, it will cement more firmly the good feeling between that country and this.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

EBENEZER GRAY.

He thought he was a Christian—
Did old Ebenezer Gray.
He never missed church meetings
And was always glad to pray.
He did not let religion
Hurt his business through the week,
But on Sunday morning
He was righteous like and meek.

He used to have a manner
That would make a clown feel "blue;"
He used to chill his neighbors,
And his home was chilly, too.
But in church on Sunday
You could never find him late,
And when it came to rooting
In religion, he was great.

He used to skin all comers
Through the week, and liked the game;
Yet claimed to run his business
In the Master's holy name.
He never let the doctrine
Used on Sunday, understand,
Affect upon a week day,
Any deal he had on hand.

Some people called him "brother,"
And great numbers called him names,
The latter people being
Those who fathomed all his aims.
He died in proper season—
Crossed unto another shore —
And this is what St. Peter
Told the fellow at the door:

"While you were good on Sundays,
Through the week, Eb, you were tough;
Hence when I speak your sentence,
Do not think that I am rough.
Now you can spend your Sundays
Here in heaven very well,
But week days, Ebenezer,
We're going to give you ——."

OUR WONDERFUL NEW PITTSBURGH

Old Acquaintances Find in the City Cause for Astonishment.

To a Pittsburgher one of the most interesting of pastimes yesterday was to mingle with the crowds of visitors arriving at the railroad depots and hear their comments at first sight of the city. At Union station, in particular, there was much surprise on the part of people who had not been in Pittsburgh for a dozen or a score of years. They viewed a strange town from the portals of the magnificent cab stand that adorns the new building. The depot itself was a puzzling feature in the landscape, rearing its 14 stories in front of the incoming traveler; the new waiting room with its fine scheme of color and decoration was a revelation; the wide curved sweep of the approach startled eyes looking for the old sheds of the Panhandle yard; the elevated track hid familiar territory from former patrons of the old St. James hotel. Exclamatory astonishment began there, but there it did not end, not by any means.

Not until the stranger's eye wandered out upon the vista spread before him did his surprise attain the height of the great Frick office building, so plainly outlined against the southern sky. That huge pile of granite and marble would be notable in any city—the finest office building in the world—and as it stands out on Grant hill, equaling in altitude the court house tower, it rears itself before the spectator at Union depot, an object that commands attention. At least such was the tenor of comment heard in the crowds thronging about the place. They were able to understand that a new and better Pittsburgh has taken the place of the old Smoky City they knew in the years gone by, even though the busy citizen to the manner born is not always aware of the fact. Pittsburgh has changed wonderfully within a score of years, though the metamorphosis has just fairly begun.

Said one of the visitors with a fine thoughtful face and gray hair: "This is not the Pittsburgh I have known. This is my first visit to the city in 15 years and it does not look familiar. I fear I may get lost on the streets I once knew so well. There is Liberty street, with its railroad track, that looks as it used to, when I glance beyond this new station work. Whenever I get back to it I will have my bearings, for in all the cities I have traveled to I never saw anything like it. I don't think any other city ever permitted a railroad to so occupy its natural principal thoroughfare. But everywhere else I turn my gaze there is change. There are tall buildings where formerly they were low, and I suppose when I go down town that feature will grow upon me.

"When I was last in Pittsburgh, I remember, citizens pointed with pride to a block at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street. If my memory serves me just right it was of six stories and the tallest thing in sight. Why, yonder building that I see must be 20 stories or more, tall stories, too. Of course, I have noted newspaper accounts of Pittsburgh improvements, have even seen pictures of them, but the reality is more than I had expected. That must be the new court house opposite that very tall building out Grant street. It was in course of construction when I was here and I saw a photograph of it about the time of the centennial celebration the next year. I did not dream I would ever come here to see an office building with its roof above the top of that noble tower. The Cathedral spires, too, are overshadowed. They are a landmark to me, but now, I hear, they are soon to disappear. Your Pittsburgh is a wonderful city and I am glad I came on the day you are welcoming President Roosevelt and testifying your appreciation of the blessings of free government and your unexampled prosperity."

Well, really, Pittsburgh is different. I had not thought so much about it until the old gentleman suggested the topic. Pittsburgh is different. The old gentleman's last visit must have been to a wide-open town, just before the Brooks high license law and the charter of 1887 went into effect. Skyscrapers would not be the only surprise for him down town. And then, if he went out to Schenley park, as he certainly intended, to Highland and generally about the East End what a succession of thrills he must have felt. The only park the city owned 15 years ago was that magnificent bit of Second avenue between Grant and Ross streets!

Possibly the old gentleman might find time last evening, I thought, to look up the old park for the purpose of comparison. But I did not see him there. There was "Somethings didding" in that quarter, however, that might have astonished him some more—namely, the celebration of the Fourth of July by the Chinese merchants. This has come to be an annual feature in lower Grant street and is to be depended upon, rain or shine. The exhibition is not as gorgeous as that at Schenley park in the evening, but is far more noisy. They use the real Chinese fire-crackers in belts 15 or 20 feet long, paid out from a second or third floor window. There are large and small crackers, cleverly mingled to give a realistic presentment of a battle in which the rattle of musketry is punctuated by the boom of light and heavy field pieces. To be sure, the Chinaman celebrates his New Year with the same accessories, and perhaps it is more an evidence of prosperity than patriotism that he is willing to burn money on two occasions instead of one. Be that as it may, the Second avenue park fireworks are a spectacle barely second to those at Schenley park and the assembled crowd brings back the reflection that somehow Pittsburgh is different. Time works changes in localities as it does in men.

SNAKE AND FISH LORE.

While drawing water from a hydrant this morning, Mrs. J. D. Daugherty discovered in the vessel a long, slender object that seemed to be possessed of life. A closer inspection developed the astonishing and horrifying fact that it was a veritable water snake, fully 18 inches long, and as thick as the cord used in stores to tie up packages. Mr. Daugherty brought it to the Daily Times office, where it was on exhibition for a long time. It could easily have been swallowed by a person taking a drink of water in the dark.—Kittanning Daily Times.

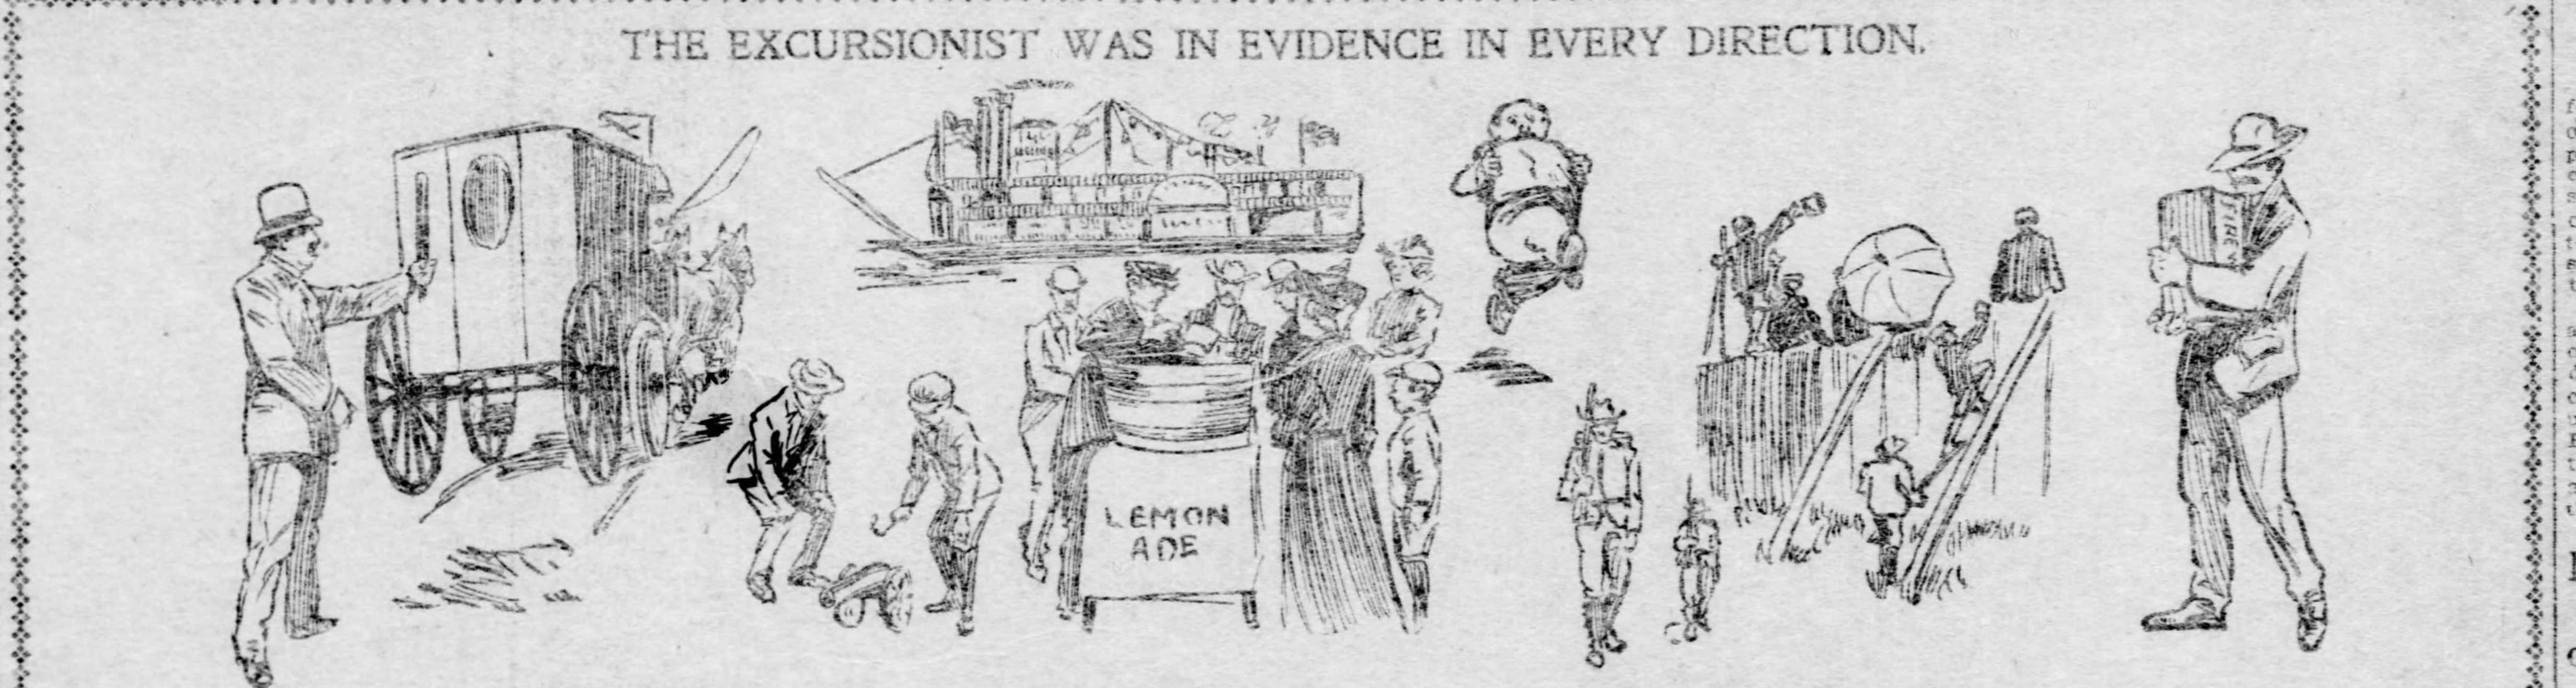
Old river fishermen who know from experience what happened before, predict that the present bass fishing season, which opened on the 15th, will be a poor one, on account of the locust plague. The fish are plenty, but do not bite freely because the locusts which drop into the stream in large numbers have been fed upon by them and destroyed the usually ravenous appetite which makes the bass so ready a biter. Few have thus far been caught around the Susquehanna fishing grounds. Just now the muddied condition of the river interferes with the sport, the rains up state being responsible for this and for the rise which has taken place. It will take but a short time to clear, however.—Harrisburg Patriot.

When the family of William Hughes of Peru, Ind., returned to their homes last Sunday after being away all day they missed the song of a canary bird that had been left in a cage inside the house, and on investigation found a large black snake coiled up in the cage. The snake was killed and opened and the canary found inside the reptile. With the exception of a slight bruise on its head the bird had been swallowed in a normal condition, and the reptile being unable to get out of the cage after swallowing it had coiled itself up to digest the bird. The cage being five feet from the floor and about 18 inches from the wall the family are unable to explain how his snakeship got at the bird.

The Rev. Dr. Lusher, former pastor of the Methodist church at Chautauqua, is an enthusiastic fisherman, and annually since leaving the Chautauqua charge he returns to the lake for his outing and the enjoyment of his favorite pastime. The Jamestown Journal says that last Saturday, while fishing near the Chautauqua docks, he was successful in hooking a muscallonge weighing 19 pounds. It was all that he could do to handle the big fish; in fact, as the sequel proves, the fish succeeded in handling the minister half the time. The fish was finally towed in close to the boat and then a special effort made to lift it into the light skiff, when the craft was overturned and Dr. Lusher and the fish were struggling in the water. Fortunately a number of young men in the Chautauqua gymnasium saw the encounter which had become so unequal and quickly went to the rescue of Dr. Lusher, who was taken into their boat and then to shore. The fish was also secured and proved to be one of the finest specimens of his family secured this season.—Oil City Blizzard.

RECEPTION TENDERED PRESIDENT BY ATTORNEY GENERAL KNOX

THE EXCURSIONIST WAS IN EVIDENCE IN EVERY DIRECTION.



He Took in Everything, and in Some Cases Was Finally Taken in an Ambulance to a Hospital.

DINED WITH THE LEADING MEN OF PITTSBURGH

Attorney General Knox Was the Host at a Notable Evening Banquet.

ROOSEVELT HONOR GUEST

Feature of the Event Was a Talk by the President — Distinguishing Characteristic of the Talk Was Its Americanism—His Departure.

President Roosevelt concluded his busy day in Pittsburgh by last night attending as the guest of honor a dinner at the Hotel Schenley by Attorney General Philander Chase Knox. Over 200 representative men of the county and Western Pennsylvania dined with the nation's chief.

Gathered in the banquet hall were the men who stand in the forefront of the great professional, industrial and business world of their community. Things political were left at the door. Representatives of all parties were there, a fact which was noted by the president in the one short speech of the evening.

Preceding the dinner the guests were received by Attorney General Knox and his guest in the parlor of the Schenley. It afforded an opportunity for these more fortunate citizens to shake the hand of the president and receive his hearty greeting.

Arrival of the President.

The guests were invited for 6:30 o'clock and were present before the appointed hour. So was a great throng of people who wanted another peep at the president. Mr. Roosevelt had spent the afternoon at the home of H. C. Frick and came to the Schenley with Mr. Frick and Mr. Knox, escorted by the Sheridan troop.

A detail of 70 men from the Eighteenth regiment under command of Capt. John B. Guthrie were stationed at the hotel. When the bugle blast announced the arrival of the president, shortly after 7 o'clock, the soldiers were thrown as a guard around the parlors in which the receiving party stood. The guests were passed along the receiving line out into the corridor and then into the banquet hall, the militia forming a wall between them and the people. None but guests could pass along this route. When all the diners had taken their places at the tables the president and Mr. Knox walked into the room.

Guests Remain Standing.

The guests remained standing until the president was warmly welcomed and then all were seated. After an invocation by the Rev. Dr. Charles Smith an orchestra screened behind palms played during the dinner. The banquet hall was beautifully decorated with flags and flowers. On each of the tables were numerous bunches of American Beauty roses.

At the head of the hall was the table at which was seated the president. On the wall in the rear were crossed flags, the Stars and Stripes and the president's colors. In the accompanying cut the arrangement of the tables is shown and with it are given the names of those who were invited to be the guests of Mr. Knox and the places assigned to them.

The menu card was a beautiful souvenir, which will be treasured as the memento of an historic occasion. The front is adorned by a fine photo-gravure portrait of President Roosevelt, with a facsimile of his signature. Embossed at the top are crossed flags—the stars and stripes and the president's flag showing spread eagle in white on a field of blue. On the second page embossed in gold is the following inscription:

Ladies Hear the Speech.

Near the close of the dinner a number of ladies appeared in the gallery in anticipation of hearing a speech by the president. They were not disappointed, although it was not intended to have the guests respond to toasts. It would have been a matter of keen regret to the brilliant assemblage had it not had an opportunity of hearing the president. Mr. Knox proposed the health of the president saying that it would be the only toast of the evening. When the guests had been seated Mr. Roosevelt said:

"Mr. Knox and Gentlemen:

"I am glad to have the chance of thanking you this evening for the courtesy with which you have greeted me today. I can imagine nothing that would be more inspiring to a public officer, that would give him better heart to try and do his duty as it is given him to see his duty: nothing that would make him try to carry out his work, than the experience I have had today in addressing the great audience that met me this morning. (Applause.)

All American Citizens.

"One thing in particular pleased me about it, gentlemen. That was the fact that the audience whom I met then, that you, my hosts and fellow guests, with whom I dine now, represent all shades of political belief, as you represent all shades of religious belief, that you represent every occupation and every industry, and that you come together on this Fourth of July as American citizens and nothing else. (Applause.)

"It has been said, and well said, that our political differences ceases at the water line. That is true, but much more than that is true. In great crisis, whenever the great fundamental issues of our government are at stake, all party differences cease. (Cheers.) And so it is eminently proper that on the great national holidays, and above all, on the Fourth of July, the day that commemorates the birth of the nation, we should come together not as representatives of any one party, but as Americans, as men to whom in the last analysis all that makes Americans nobler and greater is dear as men who are a unit in the principles that must underlie our system of government. (Loud applause.)

Much to Be Done.

"There is an immense amount in public life that has not got anything to do with party at all. There is an immense amount of work to be done in public life in which we are interested purely from the standards of citizenship and of course the greater, the more fundamental the matters are, the nearer they come to being matters upon which there can be no real party differences.

"I do not know that it would be possible to improve on this gathering in any way. You certainly could not improve on it by having any other gathering, but if it would be allowed to paint the lily and guild refined gold, then I should say I would like to have met you here this evening and I should say I would like to have met you here this evening and I would like to have seen that meeting this morning, a large number of other Americans from other localities, became more and more as a man meets his fellow Americans from different localities, I think he is impressed by the fundamental kinship among them.

"I think, gentlemen, that the average American is a pretty good fellow. (Laughter and loud applause.) All that is necessary to find that out is to know you and that the differences that come up among us mainly spring from failure to know one another. Sometimes that causes differences among localities; sometimes it causes difference between two groups of men in the same locality, between employer and employed, between the men of the town and the men of the country, between the men of one occupation and the men of another occupation.

The Way to Solve Problem.

"I most earnestly and fervently believe that the best solvent for all such conditions is bringing the people together, so that one side shall get to understand the viewpoint of the other. (Cries of 'Good,' and applause). I don't say that that will prevent all differences, but I am confident that it will minimize the causes of difference and that it will make the differences far less acute.

gzwwM',shr dlanmf waynp pan mfwanp

"I don't believe that any considerable body of our people really wish ill of any considerable body of our people. (Applause.), and when there is an appearance of such wishing ill I am sure that it springs from some fundamental misapprehension between the two sides, and that the best way of removing the difference, be it real or assumed, is to try to get the two sides together and try to approach the meeting with the honest purpose of looking at the matter that is the cause of the difference from the viewpoints of both. And so, gentlemen, I feel that a meeting such as this tonight, such a great assemblage which I had the honor of addressing this morning, served one purpose—a purpose, the most important of all—the purpose of getting our people together, the bringing them in contact, one with the other, so that they may realize that the differences that divide one from the other are trivial and that the unity among us all is fundamental. (Cries of "Good, good" and applause.)

Brotherhood of Unity.

Perhaps the most valuable lesson taught by the civil war as regards our civil life, apart from the lessons taught in military life, was that of brotherhood, of unity. Wherever I speak of men who have been in the great war, who have been in the civil war such as that body that we passed in the course of the procession this morning, I speak of men who have practically applied for a number of years the principle of brotherhood and who could not apply any other principle. I mean all that the principle of treating a man on his word as a man, with all proper charity for his failings, but with regard primarily with what is real as distinguished from what his accidental qualities and characteristics were.

"There are in this audience, there are in every audiece one speaks to, men who have fought in the great war, the men who got down to the fighting, to the marching, to the long, wearisome months of drudgery in camp, who got to put a pretty good judgment on their fellow that were next to them if it was a fight, and who had to move forward or wanted to be sure that the man next to them would move the right way. (Laughter and applause). They did not care a bit whether the men next to them were bankers or bricklayers. They wanted to know whether they would 'stay put.' (Applause.)

"Now that is what you want in civil life. More and more as one grows older, gentlemen, one comes to feel that it is not in the sphere in which we perform the duty; it is the doing the duty that counts. (Cries of 'Good, good,' and applause.)

How He Judges.

"I do not care what the man's occupation is, or what his standing is. If he does his duty well, he is a good citizen, and if he does not he is not a good citizen. (Applause.)

"Compared with that fundamental question the other questions as to the particular position he occupies in public life, social, financial, any other way—those questions sink into absolute insignificance. (Applause.)

"Now, gentlemen, just one word. The importance of anything that is said can be tested by how nearly what is done afterward to correspond with it. It is a very good thing for us to meet together on the Fourth of July, in order to remind ourselves of what our forefathers did, to refresh our memories as to what our government really means.

"I ask of eachman here that he prove his truth by his endeavor that in whatever line he may be, that in whatever walk of life he may be, that whatever may be the line in which he does his work, try to act throughout the rest of the year as he talks on the Fourth of July. (Laughter and applause). And now, gentlemen, having thus shamelessly requitted your hospitality by preaching a sermon to you I thank you again for how you have treated me and bid you good eyening. (Long and continuous applause).

The President's Departure.

Immediately after the president's speech the dinner was brought to a close. Mr. Roosevelt was generously congratulated and again made to feel that he had found a sunny place in the hearts of the people of Pittsburgh.

With Mr. Knox the president went to an upper room in the hotel where he saw the last of the fireworks. About 11 o'clock he left the hotel for his private car at Shadyside station. He called goodby to a number of people in the lobby of the hotel and then hurried to his carriage in company with Mr. Knox and Secretary Cortelyou. The people in the hotel gathered on the north veranda to wish him a safe journey. He retired immediately and the cars bearing his party were attached to the 3 o'clock train east this morning. POLICE WERE PROMPT IN MAKING ARRESTS

Suspicious Looking Italian and Those Who Shot, When President Was Near, Immediately Seized.

The arrest of an Italian caused some excitement at the Union station yesterday morning, just as the president arrived. The man was commonly clad, rather rough in appearance, and as his face had not been recently shaven, he presented an appearance that led many to think him an anarchist.

He could not or would not speak anything but Italian, and was after a box of explosives which, he claimed, was in the station. He was locked up. He is Joseph Anzolone of Astoria, N. Y., and an employe of Payne, the fireworks man. He proved conclusively that he was what he claimed to be, and was allowed to go.

The order that no shooting of revolvers or fireworks should be indulged in while the parade was passing was very well observed in a limited way. It was very seldom that even one of the torpedo canes was exploded while the president was passing, but as soon as he had gone by the fireworks fiends made up for lost time.

Some persons there were who would not obey the rule at all. Detective Alfred Swineheart and the Allegheny detective, James A. Steele, saw a young man firing a revolver in front of the Seventh avenue hotel. The pistol was pointed directly at the president's carriage and tongues of flame were leaping out in response to pulls on the trigger. The two detectives snatched his revolver away and put him under arrest. At the central police station he gave the name of Jesse Preston, an engineer of New Castle, 25 years old. He says that he was firing in the air. A charge of being a suspicious person was lodged against him. The cartridges were blanks.

Shortly afterward Police Inspector Fred Will caught a young man firing off his revolver, while the president was passing, and took the revolver away from him. Policeman Alexander Walker also took a revolver from a man who was firing in the air, and told him to apply for it at the Central police station today.

Tracey Brought Troops Out.

SEATTLE, WASH., July 4.—At midnight Gov. McBridge ordered Companies B and D, national guard, to assemble at their armory and three hours later the militia, in charge of Col. George B. Lamping, was mobilized. It is understood that Gov. McBride has no intention of calling the troops out unless Convict Tracey should be taken alive, in which case they would be used to prevent a lynching.

LUNCHEON AND PLEASANT REST AT MR. FRICK'S

President Gets Away from Vigilant Guards to Secluded Spot of Clayton.

TWENTY-TWO AT LUNCH

It Was a Prolonged Meal, Elaborately Served, and Mr. Roosevelt Had a Refreshing Siesta Afterward—Inspected Sheridan Troop.

President Roosevelt spent the afternoon, from 12:50 to 6:25 o'clock, at "Clayton," the residence of Henry C. Frick. He spent a longer time at luncheon there than is usual in his busy life, afterward giving himself up to a refreshing siesta. Then he came forth for a walk over the grounds of "Clayton," and a review of the Sheridan troops. Returning from the grounds about the stables of "Clayton" there was a minute or two when the president was well apart from the otherwise constant vigilance of his guard of secret service men and the Pittsburgh detectives.

The Pittsburgh men were following at some distance. The president's own personal guard, "Billy" Burns, was 100 feet ahead in the walk through the grounds. Burns started to return to the west entrance of the Frick residence, and the president, with Mr. Frick at his side, turned in the opposite direction. They went close to the heavy shrubbery separating the Frick and the A. R. Peacock properties. Here they were 35 yards away from the nearest officer. It looked like taking chances. All the afternoon there had surounded the Frick grounds strings of people.

Intruders Kept Out.

There was to be nothing there for the public and not a single person aside from Mr. Frick's guests, and his household and others necessary for the occasion, were admitted to the house. As soon as Burns saw that the president was not in his wake he wheeled about promptly and went near to where the president and Mr. Frick touched the hedge.

He looked a bit anxious, the president did not. Burns was at the side of Coachman John Brooks, who drove the carriage the president occupied throughout the day.

Henry C. Frick joined the party in the president's carriage after the addresses at Schenley park. With the Sheidan troop escort and two carriages of secret service men the party was driven at a trot out the Murdock entrance and the speed was soon quickened into a lively gallop, 15 miles an hour, the chief coachman called it, as the party moved out Forbes street to Beechwood boulevard, along the boulevard to Linden street and along Linden street to Penn avenue, then to "Clayton" at Penn and Homewood avenues. The route originally planned had been changed to avoid crowds. The president, with head bare, was kept busy bowing to the continued cheering as his carriage drove up to the entrance of the residence.

The List of Guests.

Twenty-two sat down at a great circular table, Mr. Frick facing Recorder J. O. Brown opposite. At the right of Mr. Frick was the president, with Attorney General Knox at his left. The others at table were George B. Cortelyou, secretary to the president; W. C. Latta, the president's stenographer; Dr. John F. Urie, the president's physician; Gen. John A. Wiley, Col. A. J. Logan, Col. John P. Penney, Capt. C. S. W. Jones, Henry W. Oliver, Andrew W. Mellon, James McCrea, George T. Oliver, James M. Brown, Charles E. Speer, William McConway, Albert J. Barr, Calvin Wells, George M. Laughlin and H. K. Porter. The Hon. B. F. Jones and former-Judge James H. Reed sent regrets.

There was no speechmaking, the affair being without formalities. The guests lingered at table engaging in personal conversation. It was about two hours later when the president retired to his room for a rest. It had been planned to take him on an automobile trip over the East End portions of the city, but this was given up at the instance of Secretary Cortelyou, who insisted that the president must finish his nap.

The menu cards were of two pieces of heavy white paper board bound with ribbon of red, white and blue. On the outer card was the engraved monogram of Mr. Frick with the following:

Luncheon in Honor of the President of the United States,
Given by
Henry C. Frick,
On Friday, the Fourth of July, 1902, at Clayton.

The menu was as follows:

Sauternes. Melons.
Sherry. Consomme.
Olives. Radishes.
Pomery Sec. Salmon, Mayonnaise.
Sweet Breads with Peas.
Filet Chateaubraine, New Potatoes, Asparagus.
Claret. Roast Duck.
Tomato Salad.
Cheese and Crackers.
Vanilla Ice Cream.
Cake. Fruit.
Cafe.

Superb Floral Decorations.

The dining-room was a profusion of decorations. Forming a massive centerpiece were orchids and 285 of the rarest American beauty roses. About the table was a scrollwork of maidenhair fern and Rambler roses. These scrolls separated each place and encircled the various table pieces of china and silver. On the entrance porch of "Clayton" there was a great embankment of cloxinias and maidenhair fern. The American Beauty roses were shipped from Washington, D. C., and Chicago. They are nearly as rare now as at Christmas time, when they cost as high as $30 a dozen because of the demand. The guest chambers and halls were profusely decorated with flowers. In all there were 350 of the American Beauty roses in the house.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Mr. Frick's guests began to depart. Col. A. J. Logan had arranged for the automobile ride, but it was uncertain as to the hour of starting. Mr. Frick's own automobile is at Pride Crossing, Mass., and the five-horse power motorette of F. T. F. Lovejoy, another of similar make, and two 16-horse power Peerless cars were in readiness. About 5 o'clock Col. Logan announced: "The trip is off. Mr. Cortelyou has refused to allow the president to be awakened."

Inspected Sheridan Troop.

The president insisted on making an inspection of the troop was one of the finest cavalry organization, Sheridan troop. He declared that organization of Capt. Jones' crack organizations he had ever seen. It was shortly after 5:30 o'clock when the president went out on the rear lawn of "Clayton" to meet the men. They were drawn up in line and at the president's request the first sergeant marched them past and he shook hands with each man, saying a few words to every one of them. The review was a surprise to the troop, arranged by Col. Penney and Capt. Jones, who had luncheon with the president.

Before Mr. Frick's guests went to the table the members of Sheridan troop, 20 Pittsburgh patrolmen and others attending to other details incident to the entertainment of the president sat down to dinner in a marquee pitched near the stables. Adjoining was a mess tent for the officers of the troop. The dinner served was as follows:

Oxtail Soup.
Spring Chicken and Peas.
Roast Beef and Boiled Potatoes.
Sweet Pickles and Pickled Beets.
Huckleberry and Apple Pie
Neapolitan Ice Cream. Cake.
Lemonade. Coffee. Cigars.

At the close of this dinner the troopers fed their horses and stood ready for another call to move as the escort of the president. Shortly after 6 o'clock the escort was formed again and the party started for the Hotel Schenley. They came in Penn avenue and Fifth avenue to Amberson street and passed down that street to Ellsworth avenue, passing Attorney General Knox's house.

At this point an accident was narrowly averted. A motorman refused to stop his car until it ran almost within touching distance of one of the carriages. The cavalcade continued in Ellsworth avenue, up Morewood avenue, and then down Fifth avenue to St. Pierre street, where the troop formed line and with sabers at a present finished their task of escort to the president.

DAVIS FAMILY'S SAD THREE MONTHS RECORD

Only One Girl Is Left of Three Sisters and One Brother.

Three deaths within as many months is the record of the Davis family of No. 4736 Maripoe street, East End. The last death to occur in the fast decimated family was that of Miss Jeannette Davis, who died yesterday morning at the family home after an illness of several months. Miss Jeannette was widely known and previous to her illness was an active worker in the First Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh.

The Davis family consisted of three sisters and one brother. Since the death of their father, who was one of the best-known pattern makers in this city, the brother and sisters had lived together at their home in Maripoe street. Early last spring Miss Emily Davis became ill and shortly afterward died. While the friends of the family were preparing for the funeral the only brother, Henry M. Davis, who held an important position with the Central District and Printing Telegraph Company, fell ill. On the morning of the day set for the funeral of his sister, Mr. Davis died. The funeral of Miss Davis was postponed and the remains of the brother and sister were laid out side by side in the parlor of the family home. The sorrow of the family had almost reached the breaking point, for Miss Jeannette, who died yesterday, was confined to her room and was unable to be seen. The many friends of the family took charge of the home and on the day the services were held over the remains of the brother and sister the room was overflowing with many beautiful floral pieces. A double funeral was held, but the only relative of the dead man and woman who was able to accompany the remains to the grave was Miss Caroline Davis, who is now the last surviving member of the family.

Why not? A little vanity is a good thing. Perhaps you can't be hair-vain, your hair is so thin, so short, so gray. Then use Ayer's Hair Vigor. It stops falling of the hair, makes the hair grow, and always restores color to gray hair.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over 40 years. I am now in my 91st year and have an abundance of soft brown hair, which I attribute to the use of your preparation." — Mrs. Mary A. Keith, Belleville, Ill.

Quick relief for Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramps, Cholera Morbus and all disorders of the stomach and bowels.

DILL'S BALM of LIFE

Especially valuable for infants and children

Doctors will tell you that most all such diseases, so widely prevalent during the warm weather, are directly traceable to the presence of germs or bacilli; that such forms of disease can only exist when the stomach and bowels are in what is called an alkalied condition. If changed from an alkali to an acid state the germs will cease to exist—will pass naturally from the system—thus relieving the body of the disorder from which it has been suffering and effecting a permanent cure.

Dill's Balm of Life will do this—and more. It heals and soothes the weakened membranes and imparts a tonic effect to the whole system.

Try it the next time you are ill. It will not be an experiment. The experimental part was accomplished thirty years ago, since which time it has steadily grown in popular favor as a household remedy.

It is now used and recommended by many physicians and druggists in their own families, in hospitals and public institutions as well as in thousands of homes.

Buy a bottle today and keep it on hand for emergencies.

HEARTY CHEERS FOR THE PRESIDENT ALONG THE ROUTE OF PARADE

PRESIDENT GOT GREAT OVATION DURING PARADE

Hundreds of Thousands Cheered His Progress Through the City.

WELCOME A WARM ONE

Parade Was Creditable Alike to the City and State—Many Notables Took Part—All Classes Joined in the Demonstration.

A puff of smoke, a flash of flame and a fanfare of bugles announced to the waiting military yeesterday morning the arrival of the soldier-president of the United States. The flash of flame and smoke came from the guns of Battery B, on Bedford hill, overlooking Union station, as the president's train pulled into the city. The guns of the battery were in echelon, and each replied to its neighbor, in rapid succession, until the president had entered his carriage. As gun after gun volleyed and thundered the president stood uncovered and not until the last echoes had died away on the neighboring hills, did he enter his carriage.

The special train bearing Presidento,- Roosevelt and party, rolled into Union station promptly at 8:45. Massed in the and party, rolled into Union station promptly at 8:45 o'clock. Massed in the waiting rooms and the entrance to the trainshed were thousands of people who had gathered to welcome the chief executive. Outside the station, along the approaches, and far down Liberty avenue were more thousands lined up against the guard ropes waiting cheerfully for a glimpse at the guest of honor.

Thousands Extended Greetings.

With the sun pouring down hot from a cloudless sky, countless thousands of perspiring humanity lined the downtown streets, leading to the Union station, awaiting the first big event of the day—the passing of the president. On the hillside and boulevard above Union station, it was literally black with people.

With the arrival of the president's train at the Union station the real Fourth of July was inaugurated.

When the president's private car, Olympia, drew up at the platform cheer after cheer rose from the waiting crowds. The contagion spread and those who could not catch a glimpse of the train caught up the cheers and made the place echo with enthusiasm. Away out along the lines the tooting of horns and waving of hats and handkerchiefs added force to the chorus of cheers.

For an hour previous to the arrival a strong cordon of detectives and police had taken every precaution for the safety and convenience of the president and his party. A corps of police officers and patrolmen were lined up the whole length of the platform. Five secret service men from Washington were on the train.

All Arrangements Were Perfect.

The trip from Washington was made without trouble of any kind. An easy schedule was arranged and the train stopped for half an hour at Wilmerding to kill time until it should be due in Pittsburgh. No attempt was made at any place to make a fast run. From Altoona the train was under the direct charge of Passenger Trainmaster C. W. Culp and Road Foreman of Engines S. W. Dobson. The conductor of the train was M. W. Forbes, the engineer George C. Crawford, the fireman W. H. Rice and the brakemen B. D. Jones and S. B. Hoover.

The military preparations for the president's reception were perfect. Shortly before the presidential train pulled into the station his escort, the Sheridan troop, Capt. Charles S. W. Jones, took position in the porte cochese. The squadron rode in at a gallop in columns of fours and formed line facing to the left of the entrance to the station.

Gen. John A. Wiley formed the troops in Liberty street, the Eighteenth infantry on the right and the Tenth on the left of the line. The Fourteenth infantry was in the center and the battery was placed at the rear of the carriages containing the visitors. The Boys' brigade and other independent military organizations were formed on the left of Liberty street and followed in column after the national guard.

Troopers Formed an Escort.

Surrounding the president's carriage was the Sheridan troop, with advance rear guard and flankers thrown out. Leading the parade was a platoon of police mounted on black horses and covering the movement was another platoon of police at the rear.

There was no hitch, and the troops took up the route of march at the first command sounded by the brigade bugler. As the long line of blue swung into Fifth avenue the marching column filled the entire street and the cheering of the spectators was deafening. When Smithfield street was reached the alignments of the companies became almost perfect, and as the marching troops breasted the hump the appearance of the column of moving troops delighted the eyes of many old soldiers.

A pleasing scene occurred in Fifth avenue just as the parade turned into it. The war-scarred heroes of the Union Veteran Legion were drawn up in line, and as the carriage containing the president appeared the gray-haired heroes with uncovered heads greeted the man who so gallantly led the Rough Riders. Cheer after cheer went up as the president recognized the old soldiers, and standing upright in his carriage, with his silk hat in his hand, he bowed time and time again to them. Even after his carriage had passed their line the president turned and lifted his hat in final salute.

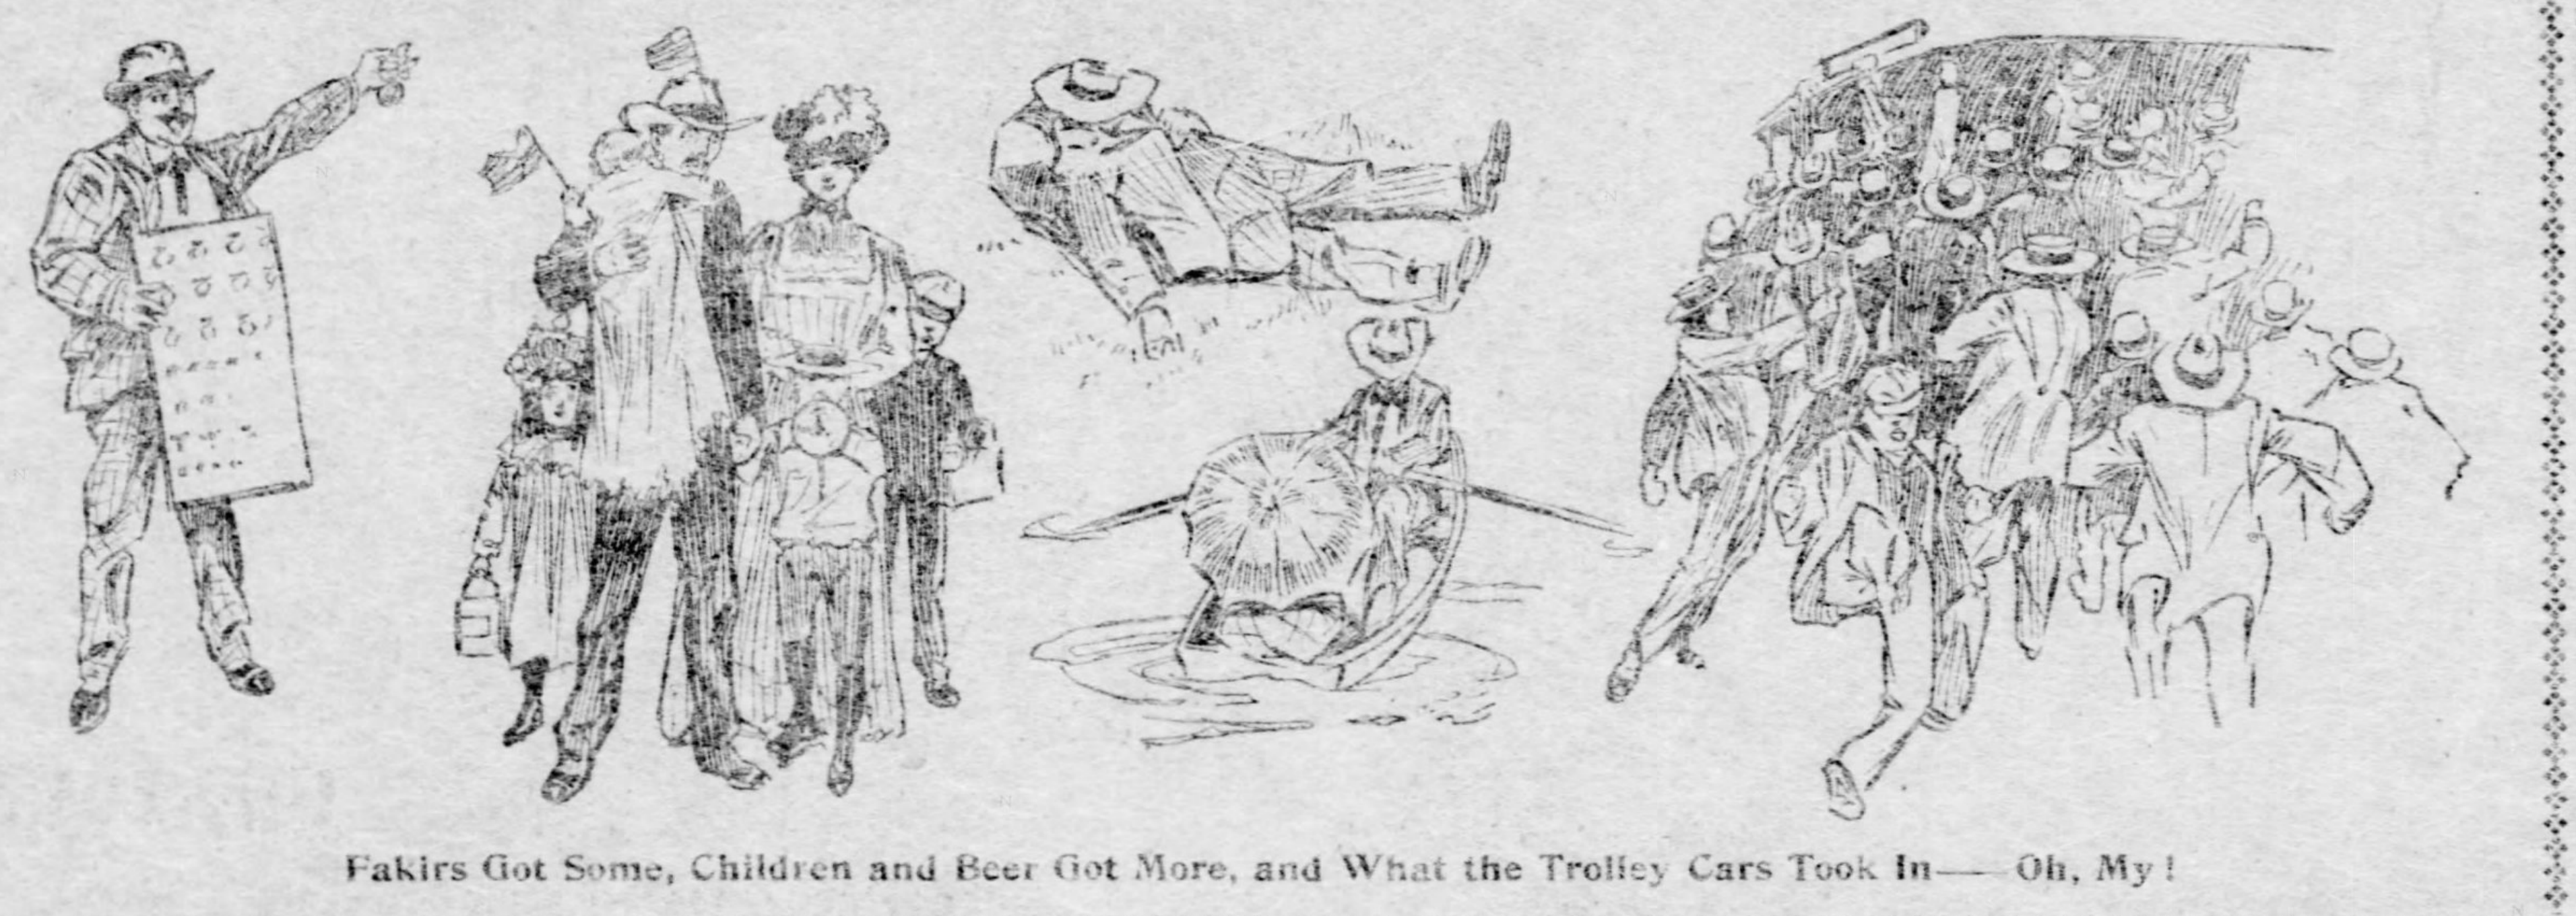
Crowd Was Good Natured.

Accompanying the president's carriage as his personal aid was Col. John P. Penney. Col. Penney was mounted on a very spirited light chestnut, and horse and rider presented a handsome appearance. The independent military organizations turned out their full strength and received a fitting ovation along the line of march. The Washington infantry in its handsome dress uniform attracted much attention.

Before the procession entered Fifth avenue the police had succeeded in forcing every unauthorized person out of the police lines and onto the sidewalks behind the ropes. The police had very little trouble in doing this. The crowd was good-natured and then it was not as large as the record-breaking masses that turned out to greet the Tenth regiment and President McKinley when they marched up Fifth avenue.

On each side of Fifth avenue the windows in the houses were filled with sightseers, and looking down the street from Grant street it seemed as though every spectator in the windows was a woman, for the edges of dress skirts in all colors projected beyond the window framing, and occasionally female heads, hatless as well as bedecked with gay headgear, leaned forward to gain a better view. The windows of the First National bank building and the Park building were filled from sidewalk to roof, and in the Frick building people looked down from windows so high that only the top of the president's head could be seen even when he was some distance away.

THERE WAS A CHANCE TO SPEND NICKELS AT EVERY TURN.



Fakirs Got Some, Children and Beer Got More, and What the Trolley Cars Took In—— Oh, My!

The president's drive up Fifth avenue was an ovation from beginning to end. He was on his feet nearly all the time. Sometimes he sat for a moment, but as the cheers grew in volume he rose to his feet and lifted his hat. The manner of presidential salutes varies with the individual. Grover Cleveland had his way of responding to the plaudits of the multitude. President McKinley on his last visit here had his. As McKinley rose in his carriage he doffed his silk hat with a sweep. As he bowed his eyes traveled downwards from the windows of the second story of the houses down to the people on the sidewalk, lingering there for a moment; as he turned his face to the other side his eyes swept the sidewalk and ascended to the people in the windows. Every man in the crowd thought that McKinley looked directly at him.

President Roosevelt's method of saluting is different. Occasionally, while still sitting, he removes his hat and bows to a citizen in a window, but as the salute is extended to greater length he rises, puts his hand to his hat and lifts it off his head, brings it forward until the rear brim is flush with his forehead, and then tilts it slightly. While he performs this evolution his eyes are level. Seen as he approaches Mr. Roosevelt's salute apparently takes in a greater sweep of people on the sidewalks than did McKinley's, but no single individual catches his eye, as each individual thought he caught President McKinley's eye.

Roosevelt's Salute Is General.

Mr. Roosevelt's salute is general, and no man may feel slighted; but it has not that intimate personal effect that McKinley, with many years of experience, had learned to impart to the lifting of the hat and the bow. McKinley frequently smiled; Roosevelt looks serious while he bows.

The president's reception, as stated, was enthusiastic all the way up the street, and frequently, besides the continuous cheering, there were calls for "three cheers." The president smiled now and then, apparently at the various pronunciations of his name. The men who called for cheers indulged in various mispronunciations.

The police arrangements for handling the crowd after the tail-end of the procession had passed were fine. As soon as the last file went by a rope was hurriedly stretched across the line of march and the paraders had gone fully a block ahead before the rope was removed and the crowd that now filled sidewalks and streets was allowed to go forward.

Those Who Rode in Carriages.

The president's carriage was a new landau drawn by four black horses, with gold-mounted harness. With the president rode Recorder J. O. Brown, the Hon. P. C. Knox and Mr. George B. Cortelyou. Following came carriage No. 1, in which rode Gov. William A. Stone, Adjt.-Gen. T. J. Stewart, Recorder John R. Murphy and Edward C. Gerwig, the governor's secretary.

No. 2 contained Congressman John Dalzell and W. H. Graham, H. C. Frick and William McConway.

No. 10 contained the Rev. T. N. Boyle, and the Rev. John H. Prugh.

No. 11, Maj. A. P. Burchfield and Gen. A. L. Pearson.

No. 13, Col. W. C. Connelly, Jr., Walter E. Clam, Charles A. Cotterill and R. H. Hazzard.

No. 16, Frank Moore and William Gibson.

No. 17, J. P. Barbour, Jr., Dr. J. Guy McCandless, W. C. Latta and W. A. Carr.

The column was formed in the following order:

First Division.

Brig.-Gen. John A. Wiley and staff.

Second Brigade band.

Eighteenth regiment, N. G. P., Col. Frank I. Rutledge, band and 12 companies paraded in three battalions, 450 men.

Fourteenth regiment, N. G. P., Col. W. E. Thompson, band and nine companies, paraded in three battalions, 400 men.

Tenth regiment, N. G. P., James E. Barnett, one battalion of four companies, 200 men.

Sheridan troop, N. G. P., Maj. C. D. W. Jones, the special escort to the president, 62 men.

The president's carriage in a hollow square formed by the Sheridan troop.

Carriages containing the governor and his staff, the invited guests and the executive committee.

Battery B, N. G. I., Capt. W. T. Rees, 60 men with four field pieces and cassions.

Second Division.

Allegheny county veterans of foreign service, 40 men.

Col. H. P. Bope, commanding division and staff.

Third Pennsylvania Boys' brigade band.

Third regiment Boys' brigade, Col. John A. Clark, 14 companies, 500 boys.

Swift's mission band.

Swift's Mission Boys' brigade, First Presbyterian church, Allegheny, Maj. E. M. McCombs, five companies, 250 boys.

Humboldt school cadets, Capt. W. F. Lank, 40 boys.

Knights of Pythias band.

Washington infantry, Capt. Wm. R. Gelfus, 40 men.

Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, Col. Scott Dicert, 250 men.

A battalion of the Tenth regiment, N. G. P., Lieut.-Col. S. P. Bierer, band and four companies, 200 men.

Platoon of mounted police.

Gallant Tenth Cut Up.

In all but one respect the column was formed as planned. The solitary exception affected the Tenth regiment. Four of the companies and the band were detained en route and when the parade moved Col. Barnett took his place without music and with but four companies. It was unfortunate, as all his companies were very strong in numbers and the regiment would have presented as fine an appearance as it ever did. The battalion with Col. Barnett got a great reception. The others did not fare so well, as marching on the left of the column to the greater number of people they were not recognized as the favorite Tenth.

The ride of the president was an ovation that extended for the full three miles of the route. When his carriage was driven down from the approach to the Union station to Liberty and Gen. Wiley brought his brigade to present arms. The salute was acknowledged by the president and then the troops formed column of companies and the march began.

There was a total disregard of the police edict against the use of explosives and in too many instances men fired blank cartridges from revolvers which were pointed directly at the president.

Enthusiasm All Along the Avenue.

Going out Fifth avenue the streets were filled and there was a continuation of the enthusiasm. At Soho a different class was met. The people had come down from Gazzam's hill and up from Twenty-fifth street, but they were as noisy and as greatly given to applaud as the crowds down town. It was noticeable, too, that the shouting stopped at Soho and no more of it was heard until the park was reached. A feature all the way up Soho hill was the number of women of advanced age who stood and cheered as the president passed. Through Oakland and up to St. Pierre street the crowds were large and the applause never stopped.

At no place along the route was he allowed to pass without a warm greeting. "Teddy, Teddy," was the usual cry. "Three cheers for the president," and "Three cheers for the president of the United States," were frequent and one old lady on Soho hill varied it by crying in a good strong voice, "Three cheers for my president." The house that was not decorated was an exception, in some cases the work being quite elaborate. In every respect the president's ride was one that would please his admirers.

Things That Pleased the President.

Several times when he saw displays that pleased him the president rose up in his carriage and waved his hat in that direction with the enthusiasm of a boy. In one instance he was especially pleased. At Fifth avenue and Magee street there was a long streamer fastened on the front of the corner residence and on it there was an inscription, "Welcome Chimney Butte Ranch." When these letters caught the eye of the president he rose in his carriage and demonstrated his appreciation by waving his hat and laughing out, "Ha! ha! that is fine."

When his carriage passed the office of The Gazette his eyes caught the figure of the "coon." A broad smile played over his features, and turning to Attorney General P. C. Knox he said: "Why, there's that coon!" He and the cabinet officer had a great laugh over it. At Washington avenue there was a halt for a few minutes and the crowd ceased cheering.

This is in the Hebrew district of the city. One enthused young man grabbed a megaphone and yelled to the president: "Teddy, you are all right! Now everybody," he continued, "give three cheers for Teddy Roosevelt." The crowd took the signal and a shout rang through the air that seemed to shake the streets and buildings. This reception greatly delighted President Roosevelt, and rising in his carriage he turned to the young man and acknowledged this effort with a low bow.

Attorney General P. C. Knox and Recorder J. O. Brown pointed out prominent buildings to the president, and his secretary, G. B. Cortelyou. He seemed to take great delight in responding to the demonstration that was made from the school buildings. At the Fifth Avenue High school there was big preparation made for him. The children waved to him from every window in the building.

On the whole, however, the part taken in the reception of President Roosevelt by the school children of Pittsburgh was a small one, except as individuals. The idea of having 2,000 children massed at some point on the parade route was suggested at the first meeting of the executive committee.

RECORDS BROKEN AT TRACTION PARKS

THE ATTENDANCE IS ESTIMATED TO HAVE REACHED 145,000.

Crowds Had to Seek Shelter from Showers, but All the Parks Had Throngs of Visitors—Some Novel Attractions Were Presented.

The Pittsburgh Railways company officials estimated the attendance at the four traction parks — Kennywood, Calhoun, Oakwood and Southern—at 145,000. Of these 70,000 passed through the gates of Kennywood, 30,000 at Calhoun, 25,000 at Oakwood and 20,000 at Southern. These figures beat the record made on Decoration Day, when the crowds at the trolley parks were heavier than on any previous holiday. Yesterday's figures are remarkable, considering the attractions at Schenley. Several minor mishaps were reported, but there were no accidents of consequence.

The drawing cards at Kennywood were the American Mechanics' annual picnic, Phinney's band, aerial artists, ball games, etc. The fall of rain was especially heavy at Kennywood, but the people took refuge in the dancing pavilion, Casino and other buildings. The travel to the park began as early as 8 o'clock. Cars from down town Pittsburgh were run via Second avenue and the Glenwood bridge. Yesterday's program will be repeated today.

Calhoun park had a novel entertainment in the shape of balloon races between a man and a monkey. Post's band of Kent, O., gave concerts all day and will repeat the program this afternoon and evening. The dancing pavilion where the Mozart orchestra held forth, was packed to suffocation almost all day. The rain was very heavy at this park, but all the people found shelter in the numerous buildings.

Very little rain fell at Oakwood park where the attractions included balloon ascensions by Prof. Robinson, concerts by the ladies' brass band of Providence, and free dancing. At Southern park, there was a rainstorm in the forenoon, and but an ordinary rain with an occasional flash of lightning in the afternoon. The attractions were the Chicago Newsboys' band and the diving dogs.

There was a slight delay to the movement of cars caused by the bursting of a water pipe in the Suburban power house, but connection was quickly made with lines on other divisions and other power secured. On the long South Side hill, men were stationed at intervals, to keep the cars proper distances apart and avoid accident.

INCIDENTS OF THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT

He Called Judge Pennypacker a Fellow Dutchman and Shook Hands With Trainmen.

The greeting yesterday between President Roosevelt and Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker, the Republican nominee for governor, was extremely cordial. It also showed that the president is keeping close tab on public affairs.

The two men had never met. The judge went with the reception committee to the presidential train. When he was introduced to Roosevelt he was thus greeted:

"How do you do, my fellow Dutchman?"

Roosevelt adhered to his custom yesterday of always shaking hands with the men who haul the train on which he travels. The parade had to wait while he stopped at the cab and grasped the hands of the engineer and the two firemen.

Judge Pennypacker leaves for Philadelphia on an early morning train and will not see Senator Quay during his stay here. Gov. Stone goes east on the same train. He says that he has no appointment with Quay.

Senators Penrose and Quay will be at Hotel Duquesne today to receive friends from Western Pennsylvania. Neither of these senators were in Pittsburgh to meet the president yesterday.

TWO LIVES ARE SACRIFICED TO FOURTH OF JULY

In Addition Over Fifty Persons Were Seriously Injured.

CANNON CRACKER'S WORK

It Is Largely Resposible for List of Wounded Although Revolver, Toy Pistol and Torpedo Cane Are Close Contestants for First Place.

The enthusiasm with which Pittsburgh and vicinity celebrated the anniversary of the nation's birth yesterday is shown by a list of casualties that far exceeds any former record. Although only two deaths were reported yesterday, several of the victims were seriously hurt, and many amputations were necessary, so that the list of dead is likely to be increased by future developments.

In addition to the accidents, due purely to fire-crackers and other methods of celebrating, several heat prostrations and street car accidents must be charged up to the Fourth.

Everything considered, however, the absence of any great catastrophe is a subject for congratulation, as the overcrowding on highways, street cars and railroads was greater than ever before. The list of victims follows, but does not include a score or more, who met with accidents at Schenley park:

JOHN NOTCH, 10 years old, shot on Thursday afternoon, died at the West Penn hospital at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. His father, Michael Notch, of No. 16 Laurel street, holds nobody responsible for the boy's death. FIREWORKS ARE WITNESSED BY 400,000 PEOPLE

Crowd at Schenley Park Last Night Broke All Previous Records.

WAS BRILLIANT DISPLAY

Hillsides, Stands and Buildings Swarmed With Throngs of Good Natured People, Who Saw Last Act of Pittsburgh's Greatest Fourth.

Probably the largest crowd that ever assembled in Schenley park gathered last night to witness the magnificent display of fireworks. It numbered some 400,000. It was a thoroughly good-natured crowd. In spite of the fact that a majority of them had suffered from the afternoon downpour, and that the glamour of the Fourth was fast changing to a weary longing for a day of quiet the thousands of sightseers plodded back and forth bent upon getting the full benefit of the greatest Fourth that Pittsburgh has ever witnessed.

Long before the lights appeared in the booths Flagstaff hill was covered with people. Across the ravine, where the fireworks were to appear, every path leading up the hill was thronged with tired climbers. On the other hill, where the races had been interrupted in the afternoon, the bleachers were lined with those who had gone over the bridge early to get choice seats. From the bridge to Forbes street the street in front of the booths presented the appearance of a Midway packed with gaily-dressed strollers.

Hundreds of visitors secured seats in front of the band stand, where they could listen to the concert and at the same time get glimpses of the pyrotechnic displays.

Crowd Was Impatient.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the band on the hill opposite Flagstaff hill struck up a lively air and the Indian performance began. The fireworks were delayed a few minutes waiting for darkness to settle, and the crowd grew impatient. Volley after volley was fired from pistols of spectators lined up on the banks. This seemed to be the favorite way of expressing impatience and disgust. As one after another of the first balloons fizzled these expressions of disappointment and chagrin went up on all sides. Later the fine effects that were produced elicited rounds of applause, and the appearance of the flag, with the red, white and blue colors clear and distinct was the occasion of a general cheer all over the hill.

The crowd broke up earlier than usual, chiefly on account of the dampness of the ground, which made it necessary for most to stand. As the procession started homeward, about 9:30 o'clock, it filled the street from the speakers' stand to Forbes street for over an hour. The keepers of the booths, who had reported large sales for the day, took this opportunity to close out, and their shrill cries of bargains resembled a country fair.

Crush at the Finish.

The best efforts of the street car officials failed to make any visible lessening in numbers for some time. To get a car near the park was impossible. The crowds surged across to Fifth avenue and up Forbes street to Craig street before they could get a chance to clutch the railing. Every car as it rounded the Craig street corner was loaded to the bumper and made no stops except for the conductors to gather in the nickles. Scattered along Forbes street, near Craig, and filling the grounds about the Hotel Schenley, was a motley array of vehicles, intended for quick transportation to the city. Busses, carriages, meat wagons, hay wagons, drays and delivery wagons were quickly filled with impatient waiters, who were told by the wily drivers that there was "no chance to git no kyah heah dis ebenin'." A large force of street car police guarded the tracks and the utmost care was taken to avoid accidents. The crowd had all been moved by midnight.

Superintendent of Police John McAleese, who paid special attention to the crowd, estimated that there were at least 400,000 persons in the park last night to witness the fireworks display. All of the set pieces were displayed upon the green opposite Panther hollow, and owing to the location every one had an opportunity to witness the whole pyrotechnic exhibition, which was considered the greatest ever given in the city.

FIFTEEN ARE KILLED IN STREET CAR WRECK

Collision on Electric Road Near Gloversville, N. Y., Is Disasters. Twenty-Nine Are Injured.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

UTICA, N. Y., July 5.—On an electric railroad near Gloversville last night there was a collision between two cars crowded with passengers by which 15 persons were killed and 29 injured.

For a distance of four miles north of Gloversville the Mountain Lake Railway, an electric road, connects Gloversville with a popular place of resort or picnic ground.

Last night the cars were filled with people coming home from the grounds. At 10:30 p. m., at a distance of about 2½ miles north of Gloversville, there was a collision between two cars. They came together head on with terrific velocity. As a result the 15 persons were killed outright and 29 injured.

City Recorded Frank C. Wood of Gloversville had his back broken and is in a very critical condition.

WALES RECEIVES HINDU PRINCES IN KING'S STEAD

Indian Office Decorated With Magnificence to Outrival a Fairy Palace.

ROYAL FAMILY PRESENT

Gorgeous Costumes of Ladies of the Nobility Outshone by the Brilliant Gem-Covered Attire of Oriental Representatives of Monarchy.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, July 4.—The prince of Wales, in behalf of King Edward, received the Indian princes in London at the India office tonight.

The entertainment was one of the most brilliant ever witnessed in London. Queen Alexandra and the royal family were present and occupied a private box overlooking the main hall. The guests of the evening included all the royal representatives to the coronation of the king who are still in London, as well as the greater number of the English nobility and notable personages of London. The decorations of the building were magnificent and cost, including the furniture and hangings, not far from £50,000. The flowers alone cost £8,000. The great reception hall was transformed by palms, ferns and orchids into a semblance of an Indian garden.

A feature of the decorations was an immense ceiling cover, painted to represent the Indian firmament, in which the stars and constellations were accurately depicted. Electric lights behind the cover utilized to make each star scintillate in a realistic manner.

Three thousand incandescent lights were employed in the illumination of the buildings. The rooms were cooled by mountains of ice clothed with masses of rare plants and flowers.

Three thousand guests were invited to attend the reception. All the gentlemen wore uniforms or court dress and the ladies were clad in most elaborate and bejeweled costumes, but they were all outdazzled by the gorgeous attire and the profusion of jewels worn by the Indian princes.

Such a picturesque spectacle had never been witnessed in London since the visit of the Sultan of Turkey, 30 years ago. So many people who applied for invitations were disappointed that the India office has decided to illuminate the rooms for their benefit tomorrow night.

The following bulletin, posted at Buckingham palace, at 7 p. m., attests the continued improvement of his majesty:

Beginning July 6, only one bulletin a day concerning his majesty's condition will be issued. This will be posted at 9 o'clock in the morning, and the arrangement will be continued until his majesty is entirely convalescent.

Was a Pitiable Case—A pitiable case of destitution was brought to light yesterday when Mrs. Henry Smith, who lives in the rear of No. 4811 Harrison street, asked the police at No. 5 police station to bury her 9-months-old baby, which had died early Wednesday morning. The child's body had not received any attention since it died, and it was in a decomposed state. The department of charities will be notified today.

THE ALLEGHENY'S SUDDEN RAMPAGE

RIVER ROSE ALMOST TEN FEET IN AS MANY HOURS.

False Work of Ft. Wayne Bridge Carried Away—Big Coal Shipment Tomorrow May Bring Total of Week to 22,000,000 Bushels.

Almost a flood stage of water was reached on the Allegheny and upper Ohio rivers yesterday in Pittsburgh. The sudden rise came from the headwaters of the Allegheny rivers and by 8 o'clock last night had reached a stage of 18 feet at the Sixth street bridge. In the Monongahela river the stage of water at the same hour was 17 feet. On both the local rivers the water was still rising at 9 o'clock last night, but it is not expected that a stage of over 20 feet will be reached on this rise. The damage from the rising waters was wholly confined to the railroad and river interests along the lower Allegheny. No damage is anticipated to property along the shore, as the flood stage is 22 feet on the water fronts of both rivers, and it is not thought the water will reach within two feet of the danger line.

The rise out of the Allegheny river came fast and with the appearance of the crest the current became very swift, and at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was estimated that the current was running at the rate of about 15 miles an hour.

Monongahela Backed Up.

The rush of the water out of the Allegheny backed up the water coming out of the Monongahela and caused the latter stream to rise even into the upper pools. No coal was sent out during the afternoon, as the current on the upper Ohio river was too swift to allow for the shipment of barges and boats without risking damage to the fleets.

From the Monongahela river no damage was reported, but on the Allegheny side things were different and for several hours yesterday afternoon and evening there was danger of property tied up along the Allegheny shore being swept away by the water. The new Fort Wayne bridge of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, which spans the river above Ninth street, was damaged to a greater extent than any of the other property along the lower Allegheny. Almost with the first sweep of the water the rise took away the false woodwork of the Fort Wayne bridge.

Bridge Work Carried Away.

When the crest of the rise struck the bridge the woodwork erected between the second and third piers from the Allegheny shore began to crack and weaken. The noise made by the loosening of the woodwork attracted the attention of people, who were on the river front, as far as the Sixth street bridge, and soon the bridges were lined with people to witness the work of destruction.

A flat loaded with iron was tied above the Fort Wayne bridge and its mooring lines gave way. The flat swung out into the river and rushed toward the Ninth street bridge, passing the middle pier like an arrow. It passed safely under all the bridges and out into the Ohio river where it was lost to sight.

With a crash the woodwork used in the construction of the new Ft. Wayne railroad bridge gave way. The false work went down almost in a heap into the water. While the wood was whirling about down came a derrick, and this was followed by a most unique sight.

Boiler Swept Away.

After the derrick had fallen a pile driver and a steam boiler slowly slid down from the top of the bridge into the water. When it struck the water it was intact and when righted by the current started down the river with smoke pouring from the chimney. This wreckage also passed under the bridges without mishap.

In the Pittsburgh harbor there is still considerable coal craft loaded and as a stage of not over 20 feet is expected today there will be time for dropping more coal pieces down into the harbor before the rivers settle down. By tomorrow a coalboat stage will have been reached on the upper Ohio river and there is every prospect that several more big fleets of coal will be started down the river.

The river interests have been waiting for the opportunity for some weeks. The Sam Brown, Josh Cook and Fred Wilson left their tows of coal at Middleport yesterday and are coming back light to take out more coal.

May Reach 22,000,000.

Other towboats are expected to return today and there is a possibility of a shipment aggregating from 20,000,000 to 22,000,000 bushels of coal within the next few days. Since the last shipment the following boats have gone out with fleets: Juniata, 5 barges; Little Fred, 10 barges; Charley Clark, 7 barges; Volunteer, 2 coalboats, 4 barges; Charles Hook, 5 barges; John Moren, 6 coalboats; Cruiser, 10 coalboats; Maggie, 8 barges. Up to date all the coal companies have shipped 375 coalboats and 382 barges, containing 14,7[illegible],000 bushels of coal.

The water in the Allegheny was almost up to the level of the tracks of the Pittsburgh & Western railroad on the north shore, but the movement of trains was not delayed by the high water.

A portion of the outfield of the Exposition baseball park was inundated and during the afternoon the big crowd witnessed a lively game, during which the outfielders played knee-deep in water. It is expected that the water will have fallen sufficiently to allow the playing of the regular game this afternoon.

MANY FLAGS DISPLAYED

Leipzig, Germany, July 4.—The United States ambassador, Andrew D. White, according to his usual custom, responded to the toast of "The President" at the dinner of the American colony here tonight, at which the United States consul, B. H. Warner, Jr., presided. The ambassador cited the German historian Neumann's remark: "In what age or country will you find so large an array of rulers, everyone of them a man of integrity and everyone of them a man of high capacity, as in the case of the long series of presidents of the United States, everyone, even by the avowal of his enemies, a man of high character and ability?"

Mr. White alluded to President Roosevelt's originality, surpassing that of any known president except Lincoln, and to his variety of gifts, unequalled by any predecessor except John Quincy Adams. Like Jefferson, he added, "he has a decent respect for the opinion of mankind."

PARIS, July 4.—The Fourth of July was celebrated in this city by a reception at the United States embassy held by Mrs. Horace Porter, wife of the United States ambassador, Gen. Porter, who is in the United States. It was exceptionally well attended, practically the whole American colony being present. Taft of the Philippines, held the Fourth of July reception at the embassy today. It was attended by over 100 Americans. Later in the day Mgr. Seton of Jersey City gave a reception to Cardinal Satolli, at which President Roosevelt, the pope and Cardinal Satolli were toasted with great enthusiasm.

News of the Rivers.

Capts. P. R. Budd and P. J. Forsythe are in Cincinnati on business.

The steamer Virginia was due in port early last night and leaves today for Cincinnati.

The advance guard of the coal fleet should commence arriving at Cincinnati some time today.

The Elizabeth took an excursion to Economy yesterday and then left at 6 p. m. for Morgantown. All of the excursion boats took large crowds down the Ohio river.

Capt. Max Seibl is at Louisville, looking after the interests of the coal combination. He will have exclusive charge of the starting of towboats from that point to New Orleans.

Business was exceedingly dull on the Monongahela wharf yesterday, save for the movement of the excursion boats. No freight was delivered to any of the packets, but they were crowded with passengers.

If the prediction of Theodore Poe for a big rise on July 27 is realized, there will be water for the packets all during the present month. The packet men are delighted over the trade they are having just now.

After the Parade Passed

there was a rush to the traction parks. Another big rush tonight and tomorrow to Kennywood, Calhoun, Oakwood and Southern. Shows at all four parks tonight. Free.

Society.

THE opening of the summer playgrounds on Monday will inaugurate another season of work by Pittsburgh club women in the interests of the little children of the city. All the playgrounds will be opened at the same time and will be fully equipped for the entertainment and instruction of the little folk. Tons of sand are being distributed to the different school yards, to be used for the playgrounds; one firm in the city has donated 1,000 little tin pails, as many small shovels have also been otherwise provided and the little ones will be initiated into the pleasures of playing in the sand.

The materials for use in the sewing classes have been collected, the Central Young Women's Christian association gives the use of its cooking plant for some of the cooking classes, while several features of the work in manual training will be auspiciously opened at the different playgrounds next week, these pleasant forms of work being for the benefit of the older children, whose greatest desire is for something to do.

The following list indicates the women's clubs that will take a personal interest and supervision over the work in the various playgrounds conducted under the direction of the joint committee of women's clubs:

Springfield school—The Travelers club, Miss Carrie Phillips, chairman.

Forbes school—Sorosis club, Mrs. H. T. Wright, chairman.

Duquesne school—The Ben Avon King's Daughters.

High school, Bedford avenue—The New Era club, Mitten club and Tourists club, Mrs. Mattie Patterson, chairman.

Third Ward, Allegheny — Colloquium club, Mrs. Howard Morton, chairman.

Soho school—The Epoch club, Mrs. Francis D. Glover, chairman.

Riverside school—The Women's club and the Noetic club of Ingram, Mrs. E. Miller, chairman.

Fifth Ward, Allegheny—The Summer Work club, Mrs. John Cowley, chairman.

Monongahela school—The Knoxville Library club, Miss Grimes, chairman.

Birmingham school—The Wimodausis club, Mrs. Samuel Miller, chairman.

Ninth Ward, Allegheny—The Sewickley Valley Woman's club, Mrs. James Adair, chairman.

Ralston school—The Twentieth Century club, Mrs. E. B. Scull, chairman.

Sylvan Avenue school—Women's club of Wilkinsburg.

It is interesting to know that Boston comes forward with the statement that in proportion to the cost of its maintenance the largest returns in the work among the city children of the poor are to be derived from the summer sand garden. This is but another name for the summer playground with its sand heap. Boston also claims the credit for establishing the first sand garden in this country, when in 1886 the Massachusetts Emergency and Hygiene association opened three small sand gardens in the most crowded and squalid tenement quarters of Boston. It was an epoch-making event, and started the movement of summer playgrounds for city children which in the last few years has grown to such dimensions.

Pittsburgh this year will require $7,000 for the maintenance of its summer playgrounds, the greater part of which has already been secured with the hope of receiving some belated contributions before the season is over. The central board of education this year appropriated $2,000.

For Music Lovers.

The final rehearsals have been held and all arrangements completed for the concert to be given by the immense choir of the State Christian Endeavor convention in the tent in Fifth avenue next Monday evening. At the Thursday evening rehearsal, held in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, the attendance was very large and the program was gone through with an enthusiasm and surety that promises very well indeed for the first appearance on Monday evening.

A feature of the program will be the singing of three national airs, those of America, Russia and Germany. The chorus numbers are the "Hallelujah," from "The Messiah," the "Gloria," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass; Gounod's "Send Out Thy Light," and "Pontifical March."

The Pittsburgh Orchestra club will play the accompaniments and further contribute to the program an overture by Suppe and orchestral numbers by Mendelssohn, Rubinstein and Mascagni. Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson will sing Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer," Mrs. Carrie Angell Baker will sing Bonne's "Hossannah" and Miss Christine Miller will be heard in a fine solo by Dudley Buck.

Director McCollum is enthusiastic over the work already done and says that few choruses of the size of this one (800 voices) could have done the work in such a short time.

Coaching Party a Success.

Prof. and Mrs. John A. Brashear, with their daughter, Mrs. McDowell, intend leaving today for their summer home, Isle Urania, Muskoka Lake, Canada.

A Sharon Marriage.

Miss Belle Elliot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Elliot, of Sharon, Pa., was married Tuesday evening to John Pressler, of Allegheny, Pa., by the Rev. Mackey of Sharon. Miss Elliot's only attendant was her sister, Miss Marie Elliot. Mr. Pressler was attended by Joseph Barker of Allegheny. A wedding dinner followed the ceremony. Quite a number of guests attended from McKeesport, Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

Price—Ball.

Miss Lillian I. Price, one of Pittsburgh's well-known school teachers, and George L. Ball of Allegheny were married on Wednesday, July 2, at noon, at the residence of the officiating clergyman, the Rev. C. S. Beatty. The young couple left immediately for their wedding trip.

A July Wedding.

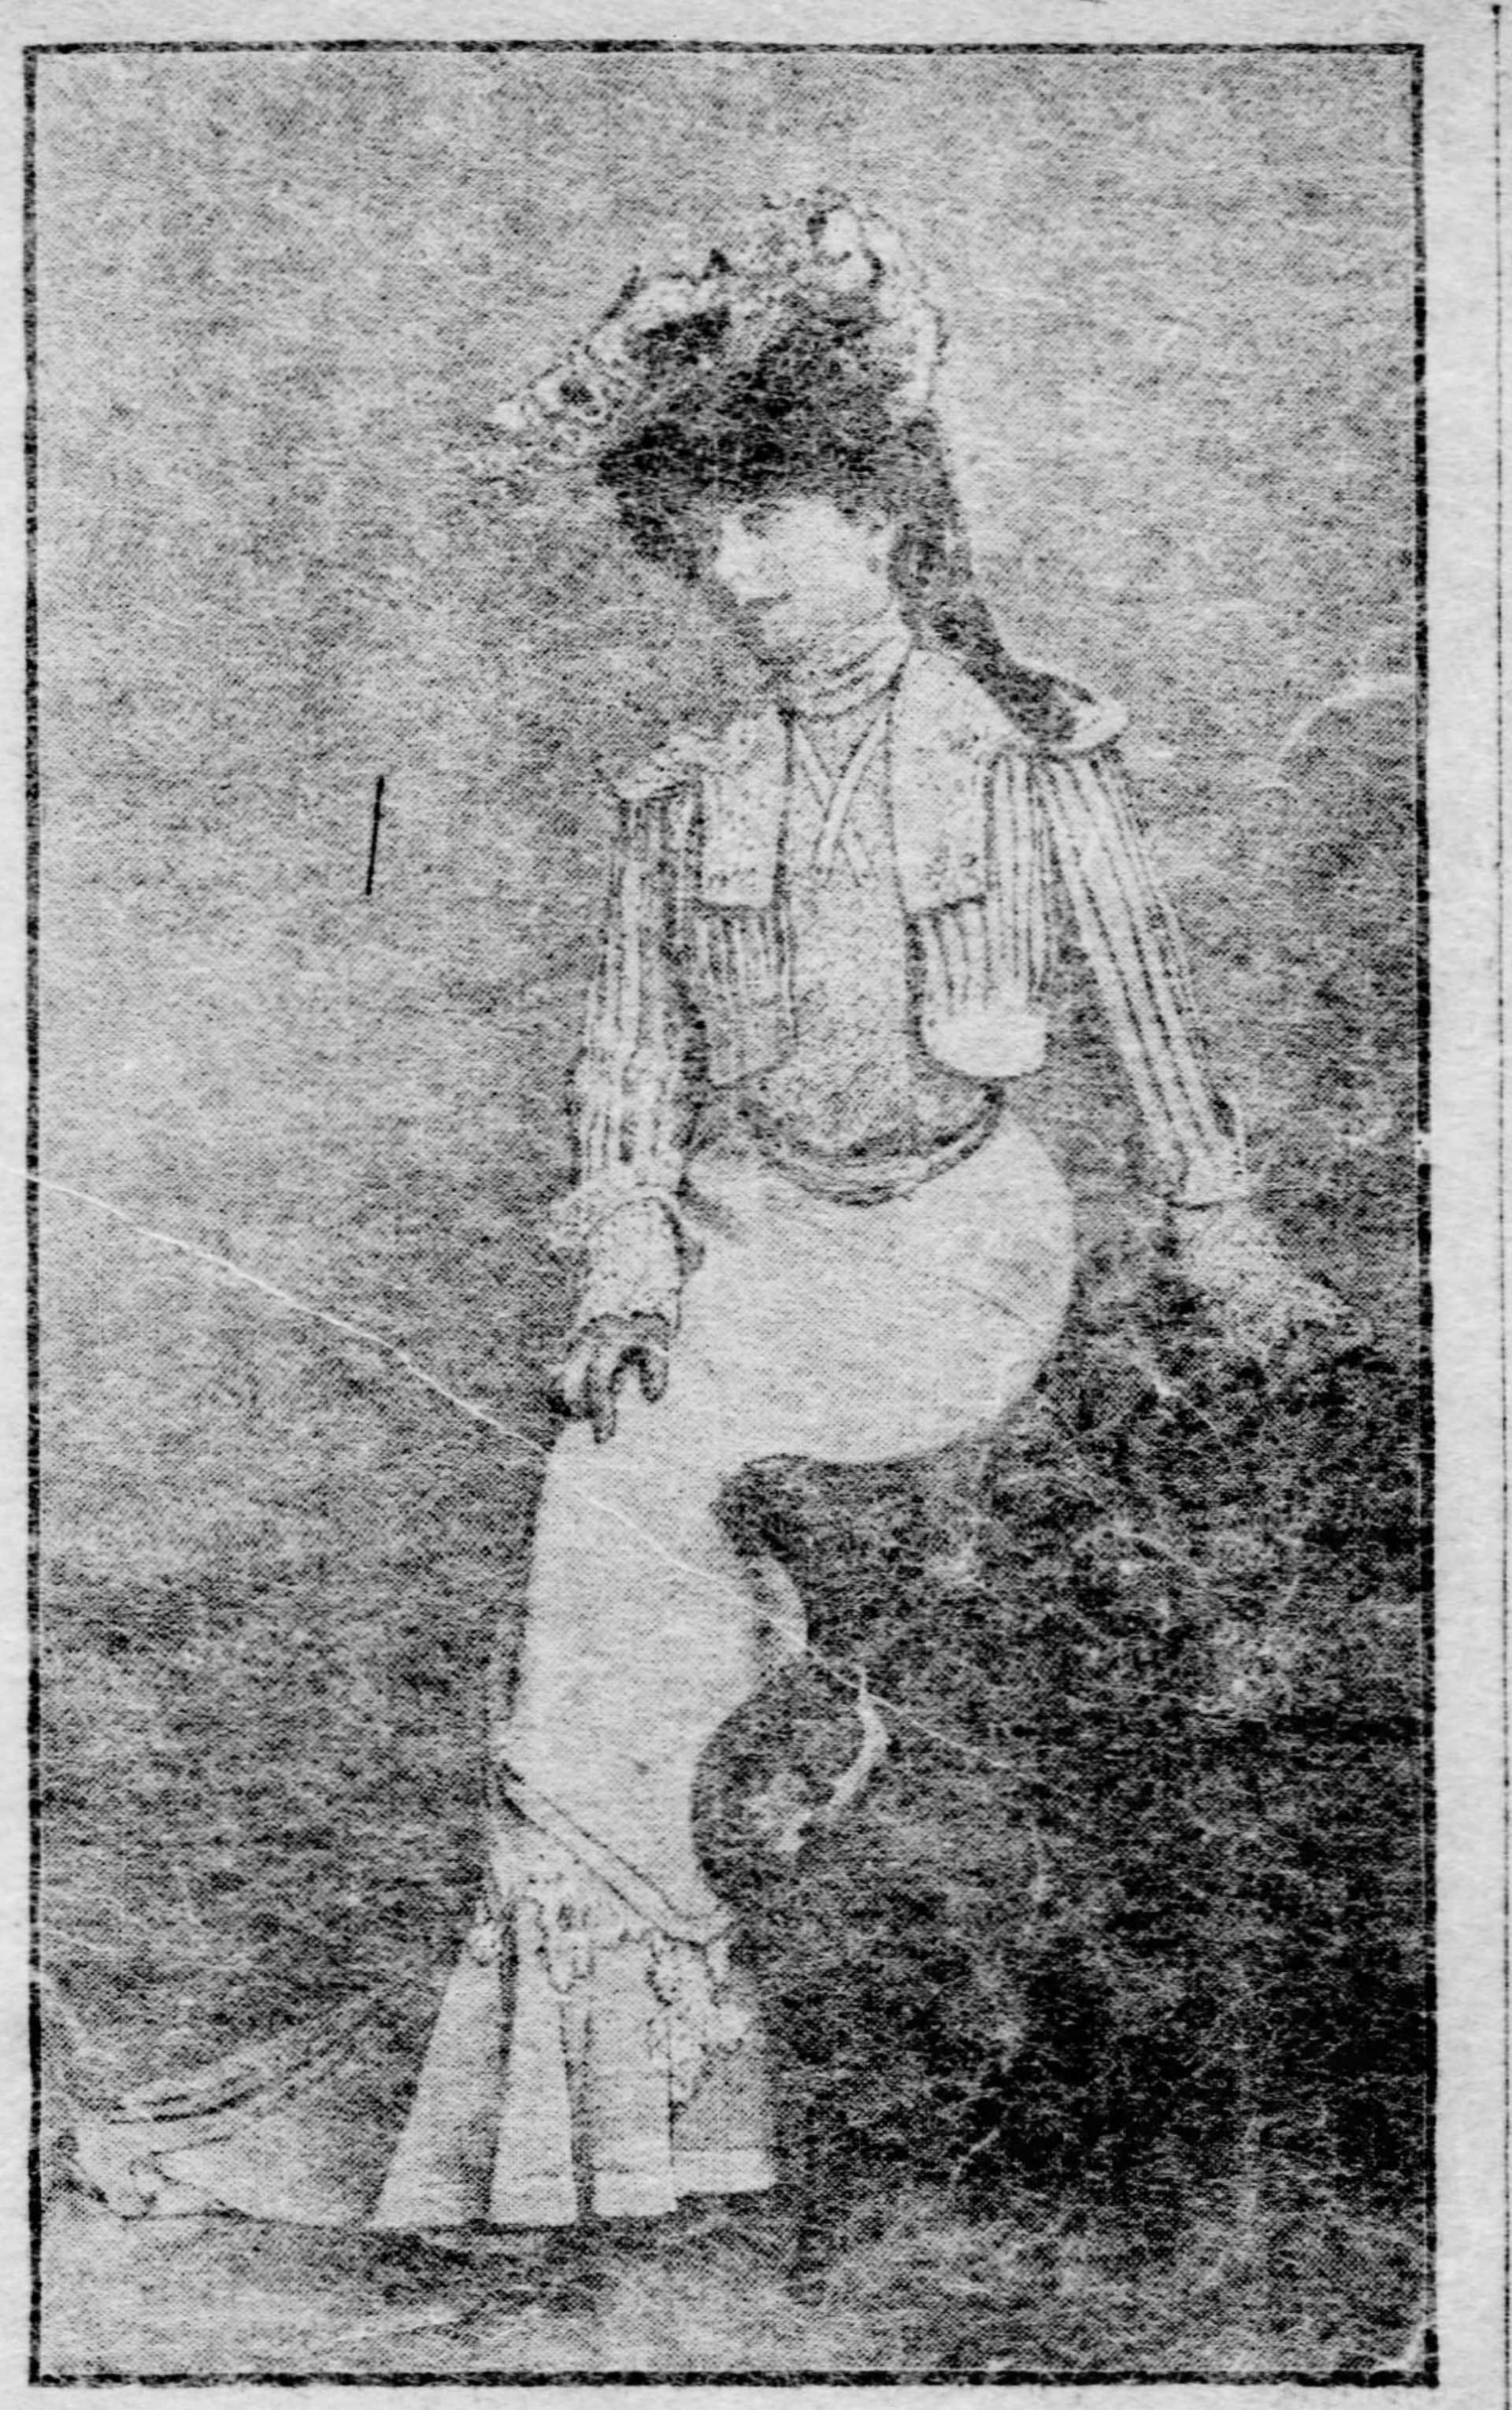
One hundred balloons will be let go; attached to 20 is an order for some piece of furniture at Pickering's. Some of the others will contain an order for one year's subscription to our paper. Watch for the excitement.

Excursion to Ohio Pyle Tomorrow.

Special train leaves B. & O. R. R. depot 8:20 a. m. Rate $1.00.



THE NEW BOLERO AND BLOUSE FRONT.

A little critical glance into the gown before you would show something that is different. It is the introduction of the embroidered blouse. The new plaited sleeves, the folds of silk on the plain etamine skirt relieving the appliques of lace, are especially new features. The dainty soft effect of these etamine dresses is certain to produce for them the heaviest possible demand among the lovers of graceful gowns.

PRISCILLA'S PENCIL

During an hour in a downtown modiste's "studio" yesterday secured some preliminary hints for autumn styles which will make their appearance early next month, to "try the taste," as it were. One of the chief ideas which has filtered from Paris shops is the moire coats, resembling the coats of taffeta and pongee which are worn for traveling and evening now. These moires will come mostly in black, though some grays and browns are prophecied, and they will be made on the simple flowing lines which has distinguished the spring and summer garments. They will have large painted or enameled buttons. One set just sent home for an early coat of black moire are of cut enamel, the figures standing in open contrast to the silk beneath. Cut steel will also be fashionable, but only in very large sizes, set on something after the directoire fashion without any pretense at use.

For Straight Haired Maidens—There is a little novelty shown at some of the big shops which will prove a friend indeed this summer. It is a "curler" of rubber, made with a slit in which the end of the lock is caught, and provided with a loop and button to fasten after the hair has been properly rolled. Compared with the hideous curl papers, and with the scarcely less hideous "kids," these little articles are beauty itself. Their prime charm, however, is that they are comfortable, no matter when or how they are arranged, being too soft to make lumps on the head and too small to drag the hair.

Handkerchief Monograms — Are now set in a ready-made medallion of embroidery or lace which is provided with a fancy stitched border by which it may be readily attached to the handkerchief. A simple whip stitch makes the neatest kind of a finish, while a bit of feather stitching and a French knot or two provides for elaborate adornment.

Summer Underskirts—Of nainsook or fine cambric are provided with removable ruffles. This is not for economy in washing, but for ease in ironing. A ruffle with multitudinous frills is much easier to laundry when separated from the skirt than when made fast. Some of the better skirts are provided with tiny buttons on which the ruffles may button, but the most are simply to be basted on.

Soft Silk Ties—Which go twice around the neck and knot under the chin have fancy embroidered figures on the ends. The schoolgirl wears the flag of her class, the athletic girl wears a tennis racquet or a golf stick, the "horsy" maiden is content with a horseshoe and the girl of no speciality has her monogram—which latter is the prettiest of the lot.

Summer Hose—Are shown in the thinnest of lisle and silk with embroiderd figures on the front. The simple clocking has developed into elaborate patterns across the instep and up the ankle, while detached flowers, rose petals and bright hued butterflies are to be found on some of the ultra-elegant examples.

In Floral Wear—The spick carnation and the delicate sweet pea hold the fort these days. Roses for hand or bodice bouquets are not in highest favor, while the little bunch of carnations, tucked inside the belt, or pinned high on the left shoulder, is seen so often that it appears to be more than a passing whim.

A Soft Pillow—Made by embroidering over the pattern in a colored breakfast cloth looked very inviting on a summer couch the other day. The ground of the cloth was red and the pattern was of clover leaves, embroidered in green silk.

With Fair Hair—A bit of sapphire blue velvet ribbon is charmingly vivid by contrast. The all black bows which most girls wear by day, may give place to the colored snoods at night, and wherever there is a merest hint of golden locks, the blue should be used. For brown hair verging on auburn, a bronze colored velvet, as a deep cherry red, is full of possibility. The secret of smartness in the combination is to choose a shade contrasting with or distinctly darker than the hair.

In Candy Boxes—There is a new idea just come from New York—no less than a exact imitation of a trimmed hat, a sailor, a shirt waist hat or the popular panama, draped with scarf and all, but holding a pound or two of sweets in a receptacle which snuggles in the crown and is inclosed properly in tissue paper and pasteboard. Some of these hats are dainty enough to be exhibited for themselves, and all are of the newest, Frenchiest fashion. The popular girl who brought the idea home from a New York visit last week, admits that she had a hat trimmed after the model presented by her first candy box, a light straw, with drooping brim and poppy-red ribbon, and a new line for millinuery skill is thus opened by the candy fad.

PANDANDLE TIED UP.

Heavy Rain Causes Washouts and Traffic Is Blocked in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., July 4.—The main line of the Panhandle railroad has been blocked since last night by serious washouts at Hanover, 40 miles east of Columbus. BEAUTY.
HOW IT CAN BE OBTAINED

How to Make a Marvelously Perfect Complexion and Restore Youthful Looks.

HOW TO REMOVE PIMPLES, FRECKLES, MOTH, BROWN PATCHES, BLACKHEADS, OILINESS AND ALL DEFECTS FROM THE FACE, NECK AND ARMS.

There is nothing more beautiful than the human face with its vivacious countenance, its sparkling eye, its pleasant smile and perfect symmetry.

But the crowning glory of the face is a radiant complexion with its lively glow, its youthful tinge, and its fine, smooth texture.

But the question is can such a complexion be attained?

In this wonderfully progressive age of art, literature and science; of the steam engine, the mighty cannon, the electric motor, the wireless telegraph and the ponderous fabric-making machines; what is there that is impossible?

By a careful study of the nature and texture of the skin, and a thorough research in the realms of chemistry and compounding of ingredients, a remedy has been at last perfected that will accomplish these results.

This remedy is Mme. A. Ruppert's Face Bleach.

WHAT FACE BLEACH IS.—Face Bleach is not a cosmetic to cover up, but it absolutely removes once and forever all the discolorations and blemishes to which the complexion is subject. I can positively guarantee every woman it will do all I claim. Its action on the skin cannot fail to remove every defect. It's a well-known fact that the blood in order to cleanse itself is constantly throwing off its impurities through the pores of the skin; now if the pores are not kept open, the impurities of the blood cannot escape, but collect below the surface, and produce all manner of skin troubles, such as PIMPLES, FRECKLES, MOTH, SALLOWNESS, ECZEMA, ACNE AND NUMEROUS OTHER SKIN DISEASES AND DISCOLORATIONS.

ACTION OF FACE BLEACH.—Now Face Bleach has this two-fold action; first, it has a magnetical action, which attracts and draws to the surface the impurities which have collected under the skin; and, secondly, a chemical action which removes by scaling off (in the form of a fine dandruff) the surface of the outer, diseased or dead cuticle, leaving the under skin—beautiful, youthful-looking and delicately tinted by nature—clear, smooth and perfect. This method is perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, as it harmonizes with the laws of hygiene and nature, the two factors which we must adhere to and follow if we wish to permanently improve our personal appearance.

THOUSANDS BENEFITED.—Thousands of patrons, who were annoyed and vexed with most miserable complexions, have been delighted with the grand improvement Madame Ruppert's Face Bleach has produced in their skins. Many complexions, covered with pimples, freckles and eczematous eruptions (itching, burning and annoying) have been changed to bright, beautiful skins, and the improvements made in their looks were simply marvelous. There is scarcely a defect to which the complexion is heir which will not succumb to this wonderful remedy. Premature wrinkles and lines—those inroads of beauty—are quickly effaced, and those muddy, disfiguring, sallow, jaundiced skins are quickly transformed into clear, wholesome ones by its use. Flabby skins—which also mark the ravages of time—become firm and smooth after a few applications. Skin troubles which have baffled the most skillful physicians have been removed and cured promptly, and many have expressed, personally and by letter, their heartfelt and profoundest thanks for this wonderful Face Bleach.

A positive guarantee is given if Face Bleach is used according to the new special directions, which are furnished with each order, that it will remove every discoloration and impurity from your complexion.

All of Mme. A. Ruppert's world renowned preparations are sold by us at reduced prices.

League Games Today.

Brooklyn at Exposition park.
Boston at Chicago.
Philadelphia at Cincinnati.
New York at St. Louis.

Not even a flood could stop those champions of ours from a proper celebration of glorious old Independence Day. The boys were not permitted to turn out and do honor to the president, so they fixed up a little celebration of their own which was attended by 20,790 baseball patriots, who cheered them on as they dipped their brushes in a whitewash bucket and splattered the calcium all over the patriots from Brooklyn. In fact, they were submerged in it. The score of the morning game was: Pittsburgh 3, Brooklyn 0, and the afternoon game: Pittsburgh 4, Brooklyn 0. That was a pretty good day's work, thank you.

For a time it looked as though the afternoon celebration would have to be called off, not because of that 2 o'clock rainstorm, but because the Allegheny river took a notion to do a little celebrating on its own account, and even condescended to pay a visit to the ball park. This inundation started with the opening of the morning game and continued inundating until the afternoon game was over. In the morning the water that got into right and middle fields was but ankle deep, but in the afternoon there was almost enough of it to float a battleship.

Was a Water Polo Game.

Of course this trying to do fielding stunts in Paul Boynton suits is not what it is cracked up to be; neither is it a pleasant duty to be compelled to wade knee-deep in water in order to do fielding stunts; yet that was the dose handed out to Lefty Davis, Ginger Beaumont, Wee Willie Kepler and Dolan, whose duty it is to guard that particular portion of the ball field during contests. Davis, Beaumont and Dolan got along swimmingly, but Wee Willie wasn't going to take any chances on being drowned, so he pressed into service a small boy, who rolled up his trousers to the thighs and waded in after the balls that Wee Willie was afraid to go after.

It is rather remarkable that under such circumstances a shut-out game could be played, but it was all right and there were 10,290 people present to testify to that fact. There would have been at least 5,000 more on hand to help cheer the champions, but that rainstorm frightened them off. Still there were enough on hand to answer all purposes, and they made noise enough for double the number. Everybody who had a hip pocket seemed to have a small cannon of some kind concealed therein, and at a given signal they produced their firearms and blazed away in chorus. This blazing away business was continued at frequent intervals—in fact, almost every play was accompanied by a chorus of shots.

Good Thing They Were Blanks.

It was a mighty good thing the fellows with the guns used blank ammunition, or else the elect who occupied the seats in the boxes on the roof of the grandstand would have been fit subjects for the morgue. The fellows who didn't have shooting irons, as an old sleuth would say, were loaded with firecrackers and other implements of torture, and they got into the chorus all right, all right. Still at that it was a good-natured crowd both in the morning and afternoon, and the blue-coated minions of the law who were on hand in large numbers had nothing more to do than hunt out a shady spot and watch the progress of the games.

The double shut-out was an awful blow to the happy hopes of Ned Hanlon, who came here claiming his team was going to wallop the pea-green stuffing out of the champions. The only thing wrong with your Uncle Edward was that he got things twisted, and instead of being the knocker he was the knocked. It was an awful blow to Eddie. Still, his club's share for the admissions from that large crowd will act as a sort of a soother to the club owners at least, and the players have no kick coming because it made their salaries sure.

Morning Game Was a Beauty.

The morning game, which was witnessed by 10,500 people, was by long odds the better contest of the two. It was a pitchers' battle between Jesse Tannehill and Dr. Newton—and the little Pirate walked off with first honor, as he allowed but two base hits and not a Brooklyn runner got beyond first base. It was a remarkable display of clever pitching on the part of Tannehill and the support accorded him was in keeping with his clever twirling. The game was filled with pretty bits of fielding by players on both teams, and the interest in the game never lagged from the time the first batter faced Tannehill until the last one was put out.

For six innings neither team got a man near the home plate, but the Pirates broke the ice in the seventh when Bransfield reached first on Dahlen's wild throw, went to second on Ritchey's out at first and scored on Leach's timely two-bagger to center. In the eighth Tannehill started off with a hit, but was forced at second by Davis. Lefty got second when Flood dropped Ahearn's throw. Clarke stopped one of Newton's benders with his back and walked to first. Beaumont then drove the ball against the right field bleachers, scoring both Davis and Clarke, and that ended the run-getting.

It Was Fun for the Crowd.

The afternoon game, so far as the Brooklyn players were concerned, was more like water polo than baseball, and the big crowd had lots of fun watching the antics of the players in the water. Happy Jack Chesbro was doing the twirling for the locals, and he suited his job. He had the visitors guessing all the time. Kitson, who has heretofore been a puzzle the Pirate batters could not solve, was an easy problem yesterday afternoon, and his curves were given an awful bumping. There was a ground rule which made a hit into the water good for only one base, no matter how far the ball was hit.

The Pirates started off with one run in the opening inning, when Lefty Davis led off with a single, took second on an out at first and scored on Wagner's two-bagger to left. Leach scored the second run in the fourth inning, when he reached first on a single and got around on singles by Chesbro and Davis. In the sixth two more were scored on singles by Chesbro, Davis, Beaumont and Wagner, Chesbro and Davis scoring the runs. The scores of both games follow:

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Harry Smith was in rare catching form in the morning and the display put up by him has never been excelled on the local grounds.

Irwin was the first player to take advantage of the ground rule and in the first he tipped a little fly into Beaumont's territory which the auburn-haired boy could not reach.

The Brooklyn team received quite an ovation when it came on the field shortly after 2 o'clock. Then the fireworks started and they never stopped until the last man had been retired in the ninth.

When McCreary fouled out to Leach in the first the fireworks opened up in earnest. Blank cartridges were fired, fire crackers exploded and torpedoes were put off in almost every section of the park.

"We must play this afternoon," said Charles Ebbetts, one of the Brooklyn owners, just after the shower. "The boys are anxious to get at the champions for a second game and we will play hard to win it."

"Why, Jack, this is just like a fresh roll of country butter from home," said Tommy Leach when Dolan walked up to the pan in the third. He proved to be very easy, going out on a little grounder to Kitty Bransfield.

Cosy Dolan brought a round of cheers from the crowd in the morning game when he chased ankle deep into the flood and captured the long fly sent out by Wagner in the seventh inning. It was a great catch, sure enough.

"Oh, why don't Mr. Dreyfuss get skiffs for the players," was the casual remark dropped by a fair admirer of the game at the park. "I am sure the yachting in the Ohio in that ball field would be great. Wouldn't it, Charley?"

In the seventh a liner from Tommy McCreery's bat struck Happy Jack Chesbro in the ribs. The blow was a stunning one, but through pure instinct he picked up the leather and threw the Beaver player out at first and then almost fainted.

"Sorrel Top" Beaumont made the fans cheer again and again in the last half of the ninth when by a wonderful running catch in the water he succeeded in capturing Dahlen's high fly. After getting the ball Beau fell backward, taking a deep dive.

In the fifth inning of the morning game Tim Flood made a perfect bunt and it looked good for a hit. Harry Smith chased out and just as he got the ball slipped, and while falling he made the throw to first and got the ball there just a second ahead of the runner. This play almost set the crowd wild.

The afternoon game was a splendid contest for the spectators to witness, and many of them expressed the greatest pleasure at being present. There was not a kick or protest of any consequence during the entire contest, and Bob Emslie's job was far from what it has been in times gone by at Exposition park.

A man with a wheelborrow loaded with soft drink boxes caused a lot of amusement in the third inning. He tried to push the borrow across right field in front of the new bleachers, but got stuck in the mud and the game had to be delayed until Willie Keeler went to his assistance and helped him out of the difficulty.

Jack Chesbro gave Pitcher Kitson a slight demonstration yesterday of what it is to play ball with his head, as well as his hands. When the balls got water-soaked the Pittsburgher secured a pocketfull of sand, which he proceeded to use to the greatest advantage when the horse hide became slippy and almost uncontrollable.

Pitcher Kitson had great trouble with the balls. When they touched the water he insisted on Emslie throwing him new one every time. In the fourth Emslie had replaced two balls and threw the used one's to the Pittsburgh bench. Honus Wagner returned one to Bob and as he threw it back said, "What do they want on it, Bob, Sugar?"

Zimmer was out warming up just before the game and an amusing incident occurred in the field. One of the boys who chases balls around the lot in order to gain his admission to the park, walked up to Clarke and said, "Say, Cap, is Foxy Grandpa going to catch this game?" The fans in the grandstand heard the crack and a general laugh was the result.

The Pirates played very dopy ball in the first inning of the first game, and it more than offset the poor work of the Brooklyn infielders, who piled up three errors. Manager Clarke made a bad break when he tried to steal third, and Ahern fooled Beaumont on that old trick of a bluff throw to second. It was a very poor display of base judgment by the champions.

Before the game started in the afternoon a ground rule was established that a ball hit into the water was good only for one base. Umpire Emslie could not see the river line in left field and he asked Clarke for an interpretation of the rule if the ball went into his territory, in the third inning. Clarke yelled back, "Its good for a base when you see it splash."

Middle Fielder Dolan of Brooklyn was in the game at every stage yesterday afternoon. He was compelled to stand in water to his knees, and his work under these adverse circumstances was of the most sensational. His one-handed catch of Clarke's high fly to deep center in the fourth was one of the leading features of the game. He was vociferously applauded by the crowd.

Tommy Leach was the little Johnny on the spot in the morning game. The little fellow not only put up a Cracker Jack game in the field, making several brilliant stops, but he was right there with his bat. It was Tommy's slashing double to center in the seventh inning that brought Bransfield home with the champion's first run, and the crowd cheered little Tommy to the echo.

It is doubtful if Jesse Tannehill ever pitched a prettier game than he did yesterday morning. He had speed, control and everything that a first-class twirler should have. The Brooklyn batsmen were as helpless as infants before his masterful delivery, the best evidence of which is the fact that not a Brooklyn man got as far as second base. It was a magnificent pitching performance.

The morning crowd was a typical holiday one, everybody being out for a good time, and they had it with a vengeance. When the first batter stepped to the plate one would have thought there was a Mt. Pelee eruption. It sounded as though every person on the ground had a revolver and all let them go at the same time. Every good play made was punctured with shots, and in this respect the shooters were kept busy. The Pirates' first run was greeted with a perfect fussilade.

The Reds and Quakers Made an Even Divide.

CINCINNATI, July 4.—Both teams played poor ball in the first game, but Cincinnati was luckier in bunching hits. Fraser went up in the air in the last three innings, but previous to that both men pitched fine ball. Peitz's hitting was the feature. Attendance 2,500. Score:

RAIN WAS CAUSE OF STAMPEDE AT THE FIELD MEET

Fourth of July Sports Were Rudely Interrupted at Schenley Park.

FIVE HEATS WERE DECIDED

Immense Crowd of Spectators Was Caught Without Shelter by the Storm and Many Ludicrous Incidents Resulted.

Around the Schenley park bicycle track yesterday afternoon the young fellows were speeding in a desperate finish to a heat of the mile novice race, when as suddenly as though the skies had been torn open a perfect deluge of water was poured on them and the watching thousands around the big oval. One of them pluckily pedaled away to the finish, but the others incontinently fled to the training quarters.

Such was the finish of the field and track meet at the park yesterday. Long before the time came for the events to be called the stands were a surging mass of sweltering humanity and the crowds encroached on the field and track. When the lithe young sprinters who were to compete in the 100-yard dash made their appearance fully 40,000 people were struggling for a chance to see them.

Three heats of this race and two of the bicycle race had been completed when the downpour came.

The scene in the unsheltered bleachers and field baffles description. The thousands of spectators had let pass unheeded the warning mutterings of heaven's artillery and the darkening clouds that blew up from the northeast and there was no preliminary sprinkle about that deluge. As the crowds were intent on the young riders a few big drops fell, followed without a moment's hesitation by a drenching rain.

Stampede Resulted.

Mothers with flocks of children made vain efforts to seek shelter under the bleachers. Young fellows peeled off their coats and threw them over the shoulders of their best girls, who were togged out in holiday finery. The few thoughtful ones that had umbrellas put them up and dozens of dripping heads sought the shelter of each.

None of the artifices were of any use. The water came straight down in bucketfuls and went through the stoutest umbrella as though it were one of the numerous summer shirt waists.

In a second the field and track was a miniature lake. Through it scurried thousands of spectators, seeking the distant and feeble shelter of the trees. The scene was most undignified and ludicrous, but there was no sympathy in sight for any person, because all his neighbors were in exactly the same position. The incidents of that wild scramble for shelter were amusing to the participants a few hours afterwards when old Sol had dried out their bedraggled finery, but at the time were too serious for laughter.

In front of the bleachers was a Dutch housewife with a flock of six little children. The rain caught her without warning, like the rest of the crowd, but she stood her ground bravely, the rain running from her hat down over her face, while the youthful half dozen found a partial shelter under her ample skirts.

He Was Popular.

A supposedly lucky man, with a big green umbrella, was a center of attack from all sides, but a dozen young women who were sitting nearby reached him first and he was the most popular man in the park for the next 20 minutes.

One tot of 6 years became separated from an older sister and while running across the field fell in several inches of water. She was almost drowned and covered with mud, when fished out, but was still holding grimly to a big slab of yellow taffy.

After the rain had been in operation about a half-hour it stopped almost as suddenly as it came, and the officials in charge of the meet looked sadly at the puddles and ponds that disfigured the arena and called the rest of the program off until this afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the unfinished events will be run off.

The crowds in the lower portion of the park were not notified of the change, however, and kept thronging in to the field all afternoon. Most of the out-of-town contestants who were to have taken part remained over last night and will compete today.

The sun shone brightly all the rest of the afternoon, except for a slight shower about 6 o'clock and the crowds soon became dry and happy and amused themselves by watching the balloon ascensions and other amusements that had been provided for the afternoon.

But Five Heats Decided.

But five preliminary qualifying heats—three in the 100-yards dash and two in the one mile novice bicycle—had been decided when the deluge fell upon the heads of the contestants in the third heat of the novice. One of the riders, Scott Johnson of Youngstown, O., managed to finish this heat in spite of the pelting rain, to the immense amusement of the crowd. He certainly deserved to qualify on the strength of his mud-pushing feat, but the heat will be run over today.

There was an immense crowd of out-of-town riders, and on account of the confusion attending such a large entry list it was nearer 2:30 than 1:30, the hour announced, when the program was started. The running track was slow and R. G. Deevers could make but 12 seconds, according to the watches, in his heat, though he is good to run under 11. The time of 2:28 1-5 for the first heat in the bicycle was good for novices. In the heats of the dash decided, Westminster college joined with Wilmerding in bagging the honors, Deevers and Lambie, the two winners, both being from Wilmerding, and students at Westminster. The results:

The Children's Sports.

The children's sports attracted a big crowd to Snyder's orchard, where Prof. H. W. Fisher had prepared for all comers. There was a long list of events and a great many entries. The sport began at 10 o'clock and continued until noon. At 1 o'clock they were renewed, but in a little time the rain came down and it looked as if they must be abandoned. The sun got around again and as the ground dried rapidly Professor Fisher was enabled to start the fun and finish the program. The results were as follows:

HAIR-RAISING ACCIDENT IN MOTOR RACE

Charles Turville Collided With Tandem and Was Hurled Down Track.

LAWSON'S MACHINE BROKE

He Was Following Single Motor When Turville Attempted to Hang to the Big Tandem—Freeman Received Race as a Gift.

A thrilling accident which happily escaped serious or fatal results occurred in the motor paced race at the Colosseum track last night between Howard Freeman and Gus Lawson, which was to have gone for 20 miles, but ended at the fifteenth. It was in the seventh mile, after Lawson had lost the advantage of his tandem pace, that Charles Turville, who was pacing Lawson on a single motor, collided with the rear wheel of Freeman's machine and went rolling to the bottom of the track, while Lawson, who was following him closely, only escaped the mix-up by the most skillful kind of wheel management. Turville though badly bruised was able to walk from the track.

On account of the failure of Lawson's pacing machine the contest was disappointing almost from the start. In the third mile the big machine gave out and Lawson was lapped five times by Freeman, before Turville picked him up with the single in the fourth. The race was ridden pursuit style with the contestants starting from opposite sides of the track.

Lawson Showed Pluck.

Lawson was heartily cheered for his plucky riding behind the disadvantage of the single, but the cheers changed to groans when just as Freeman was attempting to lap Lawson in the seventh the accident happened. Turville tried to tack on to the big machine with the single, but the tandem turned down with unexpected sharpness, after climbing the bank at the end of the track and Turville went into the rear tire.

Lawson rode on unpaced and Freeman lapped as he willed until the eleventh when both riders used the same tandem. In the 13th Freeman again cut loose and the contest was closed in at the 15th mile, the time being 24:58.

The fastest time made was in the first mile of the race with 1:27 3-5. The contests in the amateur races were close and interesting, several out-of-town riders taking prominent parts. Percy Brown's chain broke in the heat of the two-third mile.

WILL BE A GAME.

River Is Lowering and Pirates' Owner Says Only a Deluge Will Stop the Game.

There was considerable apprehension among the baseball admirers last night least the flood in the Allegheny river, which invaded the ball park yesterday, would prevent today's game with the Brooklyn team from being played, but there need be little fear on that score.

President Dreyfuss said last night that his advices from along the Allegheny show that the river was then falling and would be down low enough this morning to allow the sewers to empty and thus get the ater out of the park. Mr. Dreyfuss will put a force of men at work and by game time all traces of the flood will be chased away.

The Pirates' owner was in a jolly humor last night as a result of yesterday's game, as well as over the big turnout of the people. He said nothing but a deluge would prevent today's game, as the boys are anxious to show Ned Hanlon how few runs his team can secure of them in a series of games.

NO LET-UP ALLOWED.

Local Golfers Have Another Busy Schedule for Today.

The golf play today will again keep the golfers busy, there being no recognition of the fact that yesterday was the national holiday and a gala occasion for the golfers. On the Allegheny Country club course there will again be two cups played for, making six within two days. Today's trophies are offered by H. R. Rea and O. D. Thompson as prizes in a two-ball foursome competition.

On the Edgewood course there will be competition for two cups. The final 18-hole match will be played for the club cup, for which the semi-final was decided yesterday, while a new cup, offered by J. D. Duff, is also up. This trophy is to be taken with seven points, with three for each first; two for second, and one for third place in each contest.

On the new course of the Country club, Beechwood boulevard, there will be an 18-hole handicap contest for the cup offered by J. R. Taylor.

The Edgeworth club members at Sewickley will compete in an 18-hole handicap match against "bogey," for the cup offered by R. D. Haworth. On the Logans Ferry course of the Westmoreland Country club the final match for the Governer's trophy will take place, as well as an 18-hole handicap sweepstake for golf balls.

At Highland a sweepstake event is also scheduled and a new cup goes on at Brighton.

The entry lists for both the open tennis tournament and the open golf tournament to be given by the Allegheny Country club next week will close tonight with Secretary O. D. Thompson. Both events are open to players throughout the country and promise competition between some of the leading experts of the east in addition to the local cracks.

The golf tournament opens next Tuesday and will continue Wednesday and Thursday, while the tennis play will open Monday and conclude Wednesday. A cup and a medal for runner up are offered in the singles and two cups in the doubles, both for men. A first cup—a consolation trophy and a gold medal for best gross qualifying score—are offered in the golf tournament. As the national game opens at Chicago July 14 many eastern golfers have entered who will stop over to see the strong Country club course on their way west.

THE AMERICAN DERBY WINNER, WYETH, BEATEN

Aladdin, Who Finished Third in Big Event, Won the Sheridan Stake.

RACE WAS A GREAT ONE

Horses That Finished One, Two, Three in the Derby Race Were Against Each Other—Winner Had the Best of the Weight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, July 4.—In the presence of 20,000 people G. C. Bennett's Aladdin this afternoon won the Sheridan stake at Washington park, defeating the American derby winner, Wyeth, and the colt which finished second in that race, Lucien Appleby. By a singular coincidence only the three colts which ran one, two, three in the derby started in today's stake, which had most of the Western derby colts as eligibles, and the result brought out as victor the colt which had come in third in the big event on June 21.

Under the conditions of the race Aladdin had seven pounds the better of the weights, as compared with Wyeth and five pounds as compared with Lucien Appleby.

There Was Great Enthusiasm.

The smallness of the field did not detract from the interest in the contest. It seemed rather to add to it and the enthusiasm at the finish was almost unprecedented. The distance of the race was one and one-fourth miles, one-fourth of a mile shorter than the derby. Wyeth opened in the betting at 7 to 5, Aladdin at 2 to 1 and Lucien Appleby at 12 to 5. At post time Wyeth and Aladdin were each 9 to 5, while Lucien Appleby's price remained about stationary.

New Well Extends Limit Of Pine Grove Field

Northeast of the Pine Grove development, in Wetzel county, the South Penn Oil Company has completed its test well on the Mary E. White farm and has an 80-barrel producer, natural. The location of this well is a half mile in advance of development and in the direction named extends the producing limits the distance named. This district for more than a year has been the leading factor in supplying new production in the lower southwest. Six months ago it was thought its producing limits had been defined, but E. H. Jennings & Bros., drilled in a second test on the John Ruth farm and got a good producer. Later the South Penn drilled in a good well on the Dulaney farm and now the same company's strike on the White farm advances the producing lines still farther to the northeast.

Still a Mystery.

The Carter Oil Company's wildcat on the Underwood farm, four miles southeast of Wellsburg, in Brooke county, is still a mystery. The owners had one tank up when the well was drilled in and are erecting two more. It is said the tank contains only about three feet of oil, which would amount to less than 100 barrels.

Operators holding leases in the vicinity of the Three Joes Oil Company's gusher on the Elroy Wigner farm, in Clay district, Ritchie county, are hustling to start new work. Within the next two weeks there will be a dozen rigs up on the Wagner and adjoining farms.

There are five rigs building in the vicinity of Spencer, Smith & Co.'s new well on the T. E. Dye farm. This is not gusher territory, but the initial well shows good staying qualities and is holding up at 45 barrels a day.

North of Center Point, Doddridge county, the Carter Oil Company's new Big Injun strike on the Daniel Harris farm is holding up at 100 barrels a day.

Wildcatting a Feature.

Wildcatting is becoming quite a feature in many parts of the lower southwest. Operators are coming to the conclusion that one or more dry holes do not condemn any large amount of territory. All of the pools discovered within the past three months have been found in localities thought to have been condemned by test wells drilled long ago. All of the territory in the vicinity of the new strikes made recently in Ritchie county, W. Va., was at some time under lease to the big companies and after drilling one or more dusters, surrendered.

Near Smithfield, on Fallen Timber run, Grant district, Wetzel county, Trees & Co. are building the rig for a test well on the Z. T. Francis farm. In the same district the Philadelphia Company is building the rig for a test on the Jacob Fisher heirs' farm.

H. L. Smith & Carnahan have made the location for a test well on the W. H. Showalter farm. The Philadelphia Company has also made a location on the east side of the Robinson & Hoge 1,100-acre tract, near the Ice farm, on which the South Penn Company completed a good producer last week.

New Talent at Work.

New talent is trying conclusions in territory that has been tested and rejected by old operators, located principally in the lower counties. The Big Sandy Oil & Gas Company has just completed a test on Horse creek, near Madison, the county seat of Boone, and got a duster. This company is composed of Chicago and Dayton parties. The well was drilled to a sufficient depth to reach the Berea grit, but neither that nor any of the well-known producing formations was encountered. The same company has completed the rig for a test well on Big Sandy creek, Geary district, Roane county. This location is three miles west of the gas streak, running northeast and southwest.

Judge C. W. Hall and other Charleston parties are drilling a test well on Sand run, a short distance from where this stream enters Elk river. This test has reached a depth below where the Big Injun should have been found, but that formation was not encountered.

Another Charleston company, of which C. B. Couch is the leading member, has recently completed a test well at Cheshire, Gallia county, O. The well has been packed and is said to flow about four barrels of dark green oil each 24 hours. It gets its production in the Berea grit at a depth of 1,700 feet. The same parties are drilling another well in that locality. There are two other wells in that section that have been drilled in and packed within the past two years, and each is producing about a barrel a day, with great regularity. It is thought that in time a development of small wells will be opened in that county.

In Wirt county, W. Va., a number of test wells are drilling in the Grant district. The Hudson Oil Company's well on the Bernhimer farm is producing 25 barrels a day.

In the Harris district, Wood county, a local company has the rig completed for a test on the Eaton farm.

SERIOUS EYE TROUBLE CURED

John Trappen, Fair Haven, Pa., states as follows: "I began to suffer about two years ago with itchiness and burning of the eyes. This condition came on suddenly and in an incredible short space of time I could not see to read and could not use my eyes at close range without giving me intense headaches. I had dizzy spells and flashes of color before my eyes and at times could see bright spots floating across the field of vision. This was accompanied by neuralgic headaches and a certain amount of mucus expectoration. I consulted several doctors and was advised by nearly every one of them to use glasses. This I hesitated to do, but instead consulted Doctor Tucker, who diagnosed my case and prescribed for me, and as a result my eyes are now restored entirely to their normal condition. I can see to read even by artificial light. The itchiness and burning have all disappeared and my entire system has been benefited by this most scientific course of treatment. I wish to recommend Doctor Tucker as a specialist who treats diseases of the eye, for I know what wonderful benefit I have derived from his treatment."

CURED OF SERIOUS STOMACH TROUBLE WITH HEART COMPLICATIONS.

C. W. Merriman, 2719 Eighth avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa., Assistant Foreman in Cold-Drawn Shafting Works of that city, states as follows: "For over three years I had been a very sick man. I had pains in my stomach, bloating after eating, and cramps that were almost too much for me. I took frequent colds and my system was so run down that I began to realize that I needed more skillful medical attention than I had been able to get from at least a half dozen regular physicians. My hands and feet were as cold as ice all the time. I read in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Doctor Tucker and made up my mind to go at once to see him. This was three months ago and when I consulted him I thought I could not live a month. I am now perfectly well and feel better than I had felt for many years. I wish to recommend this doctor to any person suffering as I was, for I know that by so doing I am helping to promote the best health-giving institution in Western Pennsylvania."

A CORRECT REPRODUCTION OF A LETTER WRITTEN TO DR. TUCKER BY A GRATEFUL PATIENT.

"I am writing to you this morning to state that I am feeling so well that I believe it is not necessary for me to take any further treatment. I know and believe that I would have been dead if I had not had that treatment from you. I recommended your treatment to a lady friend of mine and understand that she placed her case under your care right away. I am glad that she has done so as I believe you can cure her if any doctor can. If other sufferers can be encouraged by my statement, you may use it, as I believe it is my duty to give it to you." Signed,

MRS. GEORGE GLUNT,
Newtonsburg, Pa.

The above patient suffered with a complete breakdown of the general system, due to catarrh which affected particularly the bronchial tubes and the stomach and liver. She was a complete wreck when she first consulted Doctor Tucker and her communication shows what wonderful results can be derived from correct medical methods.

SUFFERED FOR 6 OR 7 YEARS AND WAS CURED BY DRS. BYERS & TUCKER.

Mr. Conrad Brooks, Mutzig P. O., Allegheny, Pa., who drives a delivery wagon for Charles P. Johnson, Liberty street commission merchant, adds his testimonial to that of thousands of others who have been cured by Doctor Tucker's methods. He says that for six or seven years he had been troubled with stopping of the nasal passages, mucous expectoration, severe pains in the head and a feeling as though the flesh in the back part of his throat was all diseased. He consulted a number of physicians, and, while he was tortured considerably, he did not receive the slightest benefit. He presented himself at Doctor Tucker's office and was immediately told that he had tumors in his nasal passages and that an operation would be necessary. It was hard for him to make up his mind to submit to this operation, as he had been so brutally treated before, but on being assured that Doctor Tucker's superior skill would overcome the difficulty to a great extent, he submitted to the operation, which was most successful and almost painless, and after being treated for a period of three months the disease has been entirely cured, and Mr. Brooks is glad to give this testimony and to recommend any person to Dr. Tucker for treatment.

SERIOUS COUGH THREATENED THIS MAN'S LIFE—NOW HE IS WELL AND HEARTY.

Edward C. Walls, 1007 Wylie avenue, plumber, states as follows: "During the unfavorable months of last winter I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and bronchial tubes, and which threatened my life. I went to a physician who told me I had pleurisy and who prescribed for me, but with no good results. In a couple of weeks' time I had lost a number of pounds in weight, my shoulders had become stooped and I had a terrible cough. This, associated with night sweats, made me so weak that I really felt there was no hope for me. I was recommended, however, by Mr. Jos. Mazetti, head chef at the Duquesne Hotel, to go to Doctor Tucker, who, he said, had treated successfully both himself and other members of his family. Doctor Tucker told me that I was in a serious condition and would not promise any favorable result from the use of his treatment. He started to treat me by means of Nebulized oils, which I inhaled right into my lungs and he gave me medicines which seemed to act like a miracle. It is now three months since I placed myself under his care and I am strong and well in every way. I am working at my trade and am exposed to all sorts of unfavorable conditions, but in spite of these facts I am as strong once more as any man."

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Quotations Steady at Thursday's Figures — Produce Trade Is Heavy.

As the markets were all closed, east and west, yesterday, as well as in Pittsburgh, there were no changes made in quotations from the list published yesterday morning. There was no call at the Pittsburgh grain and flour exchange, and jobbing houses were all closed, except for about two hours in the morning, to attend to the wants of a few buyers who failed to supply all their requirements on Thursday. The trade preceding yesterday was phenomenal, especially in fruits and produce, dealers having been rushed with business.

REFERRED TO MR. KNOX.

Attorney General Will Pass Upon Pacific Cable Company's Offer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—The offer of the Commercial Pacific Cable Company to finish the work of laying a cable across the Pacific ocean a year earlier than first promised, and give the government the benefit of reduced rates for communication in exchange for information developed in the soundings taken by the United States steamship Nero in her survey of 1899, has been referred by Secretary Moody to the attorney general for an opinion. Admiral Bradford, chief of the naval bureau of equipment, under whose jurisdiction the matter falls, reported in favor of the company's offer, though, it is said, under conditions which are regarded in some quarters as rather stringent. The matter at this stage has assumed a phase which the secretary regarded as of sufficient complexity to warrant its submission to the head of the law department of the government.

EXCHANGES AND BANKS CLOSED.

All the stock and grain exchanges, as well as the banks and other financial institutions in the United States, were closed yesterday in honor of "The Fourth." The exchanges will remain closed today, but the banking houses, except in Chicago, will be open as usual. Monday at 10 a. m. all will resume.

THE FIRM CELEBRATED.

Haugh & Keenan Opened New Warehouse—Guests Saw Fireworks From Roof.

Haugh & Keenan celebrated the Fourth and incidentally gave a very pleasant evening to over 500 invited guests by making a formal "opening" of their fine new warehouse at Nos. 5914-5916 Center avenue. Shortly after dusk the officers and employes of the company, a number of newspaper representatives and those friends who had been invited assembled on the roof of the big building to view the fireworks.

The building is six stories high, 50x175 feet, and afforded an excellent view of Schenley park and the crowds that thronged the streets. The managers had provided a brass band, which furnished music till a late hour.

The new warehouse of the Haugh & Keenan Company is designed especially for the storage of merchandise and household gods. It is absolutely fireproof in construction and probably the finest building of its kind in the city. It was designed by Architect Ellsworth Dean and will cost, when completed, about $125,000. The lower floors are now ready for the storage of goods and it is expected that the entire structure will be completed by August 1.

Senator Scott's Program.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—(Special.)—Senator Scott of West Virginia will leave here in a day or two for Wheeling and on July 10 will attend the convention in Representative Dovener's district, at which Mr. Dovener doubtless will be renominated. Mr. Scott will then make a two-weeks' tour of the southeastern part of his state and about August 1 will go north to join Mrs. Scott. Later he will go west.

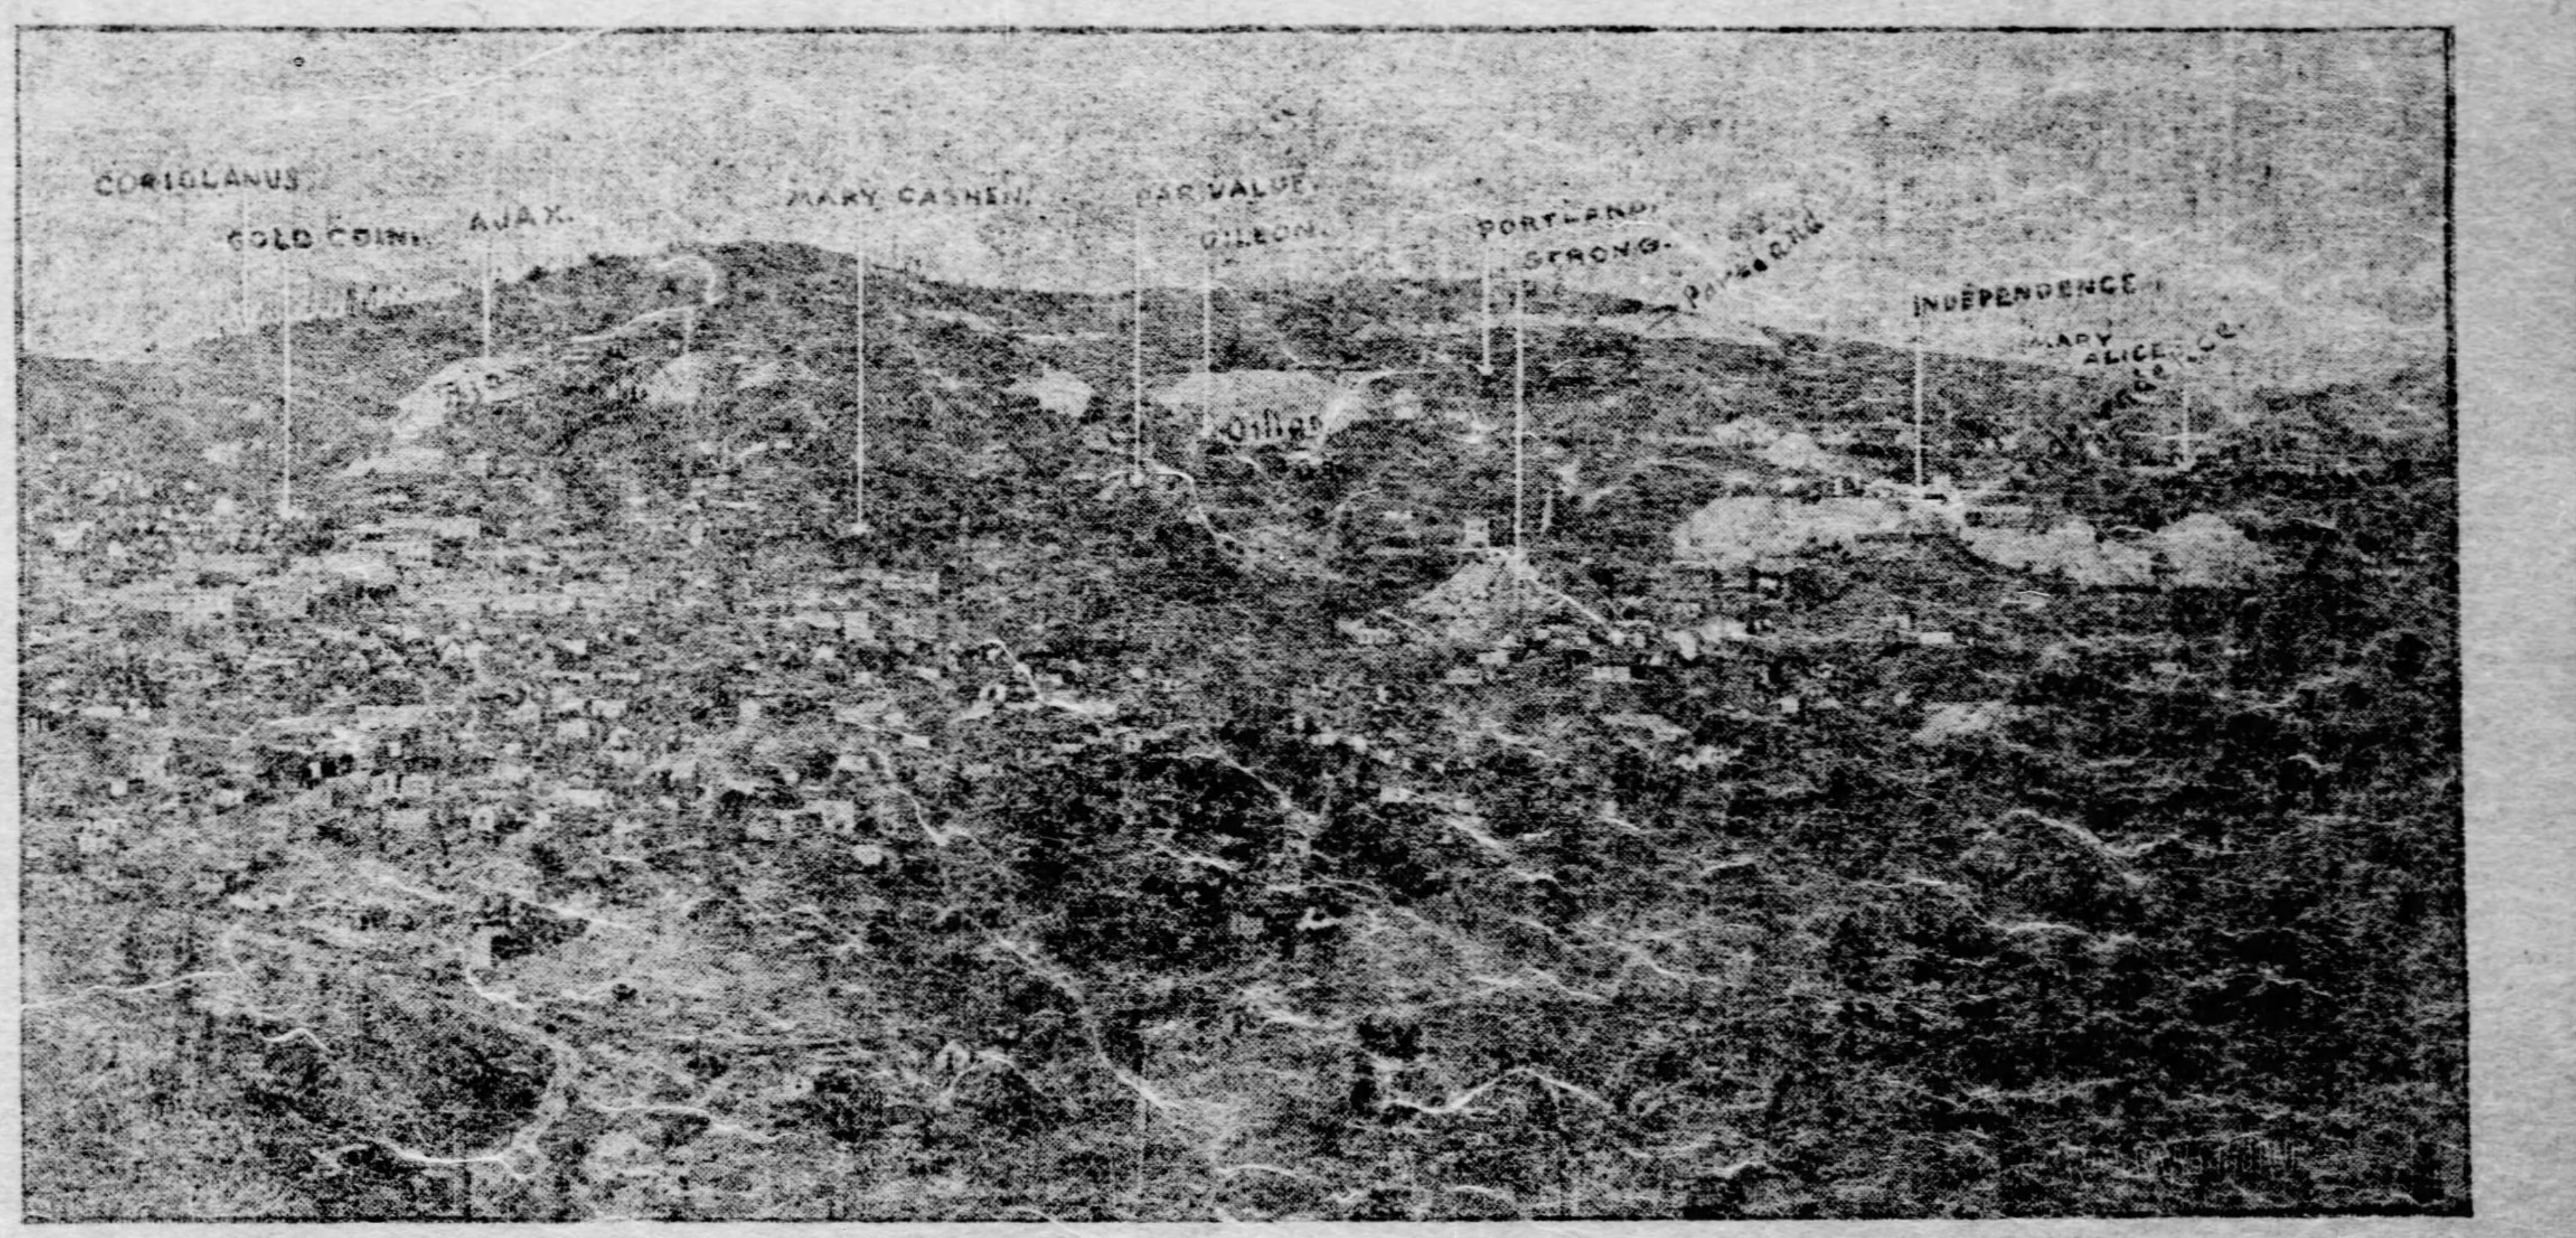
BETWEEN THE BEST MINES IN THE WORLD.
Properties of The Par Value Gold Mining Co.



Victor, Colorado and Battle Mountain, Cripple Creek District, showing the Coriolanus, Mary Cashen, Par Value and Mary Alice Mines of the Par Value Gold Mining Company, and their relation to the Ajax, Gold Coin, Strong, Portland and Stratton's Independence, America's best mines.

The company has been established and in active operation two years. The stockholders include a large and representative class of investors and the management is in the hands of competent and reliable business men.

Four of the properties adjoin or are surrounded by the Gold Coin, Strattons Independence, Portland, Ajax, Granite and Vindicator, the greatest mines in the Cripple Creek district, and another comprising 120 acres close by.

The company owns 650 acres of valuable mineral land and it controls by lease four of the best mining propositions besides, which are located in the Cripple Creek, Colorado, district. It has EIGHT MINES equipped with necessary plants, most of which are developed to the point of production by over 2,000 feet of shafts, and much drifting, representing an expenditure of nearly $200,000, including plants and machinery.

It expects to earn and pay dividends, beginning at an early day, of 2 cents per share per month, equal to 24 per cent. per annum on the stock. ORE IN SIGHT. SHIPMENTS COMMENCED. The entire proceeds of the sale of stock goes into the development of the mines.

It is a business enterprise, conducted by business men on business principles in the interest of all the stockholders alike. There is no more profitable investment in the world than a good mine, and this company has EIGHT. It is largely a Pittsburgh enterprise. Only a small amount of stock for sale for additional development.

THE TEACHERS THIS MORNING ON THE OCEAN

They Put in a Day of Sightseeing in New York Before Embarking.

SEE CARNEGIE'S MANSION

Each One of the Party Presented With a Purse Full of English Money—One Will Remain Abroad to Study Music.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, July 4.

They are off. When these lines are read Saturday morning at Pittsburgh's collective breakfast table the school teachers of Western Pennsylvania who are guests of The Gazette and The Chronicle Telegraph will be on the open Atlantic, with Sandy Hook just fading from view. It was 9 o'clock this evening when the party went gaily up the gangplank of the good ship Minnehaha of the Atlantic Transport line, one of the largest and stanchest ocean steamers that plies between New York and Great Britain.

All day they had been sight-seeing in New York; so they were tired when they found themselves aboard the great vessel which will be their home for a week, and even before the farewells were said to the large number of friends that came to the pier to see them off, they were looking into their state rooms to see what the sleeping accommodations were to be. The general expression was that nothing better could have been devised than the apportionment of berths.

This is not as easy a task as it looks and The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph's personal representative may be congratulated on having pleased every member, especially when it is considered that some berths were a little more desirable than others, on account of having port-holes, or being a little spacious.

On the Hudson River Ferry.

It was a little after 7 of a most beautiful summer morning when the Pennsylvania railroad train rolled smoothly into the depot at Jersey City, exactly on time. The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph party, which, with friends and relatives of the teachers, aggregated about 50 persons, had been up and dressed for some time. With that pleasant bustle which gives zest to a holiday jaunt they hurried from the Pullman cars across the platform to the waiting ferry boat and soon were speeding up the North river to Twenty-third street. The weather was perfect. They admired the shipping, dressed in flags, the sky-line of gigantic buildings on the Manhattan side, and the beautiful rural homes in Hoboken opposite, while in the distance, up the Hudson, the long gray line of the towering palisades could be discerned. That the party thoroughly enjoyed this 20 minutes' ride on the ferryboat was proved by the frequent exclamations of delight.

At the Twenty-third street station of the Pennsylvania railroad in New York city carriages were in waiting and soon the party was at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where Mr. Webster, the manager, gave the party a hospitable welcome. Breakfast was ready and in a remarkably short time after entering the front door of the grand old hostelry the teachers and their friends were at breakfast, discussing plans for the day's enjoyment.

Individual Sightseeing.

They were told that it was the desire of The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph that they should spend the day according to their individual preferences, with the request that they would be at the hotel for luncheon and at dinner.

The party dispersed after breakfast, and soon there were very few of them in the hotel. When they assembled again in the parlors, about 1 o'clock, it seemed as if they had been everywhere and had seen everything in the city. The Metropolitan Museum of Art was one of the places they sought, but they found it would not be open until the afternoon. Failing this, they rode along Fifth avenue and saw the mansions of the wealthy people whose names are known all over the world, and it may be set down as a fact that Andrew Carnegie's new home in millionaires' row, facing the park, was inspected by nearly all of them.

Churches, Columbia university and other buildings of architectural beauty were sought and admired, and most of the visitors made it a point to reach Riverside drive, whence one of the most delightful views of the Hudson and adjacent country is to be obtained.

After luncheon the circulation manager of The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph, who had preceded the party to New York, requested everyone to gather in one of the parlors of the hotel, where he had something to show them. The "something" proved to be a handsome purse for each teacher, every purse containing 10 English sovereigns, with silver money bringing the amount up to the equivalent of $50. In addition, there was $2.50 for each of The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph guests in American currency. This last was to carry out the agreement of The Gazette and Chronicle Telegraph to pay all expenses back to Pittsburgh, and the $2.50 will buy a Pullman ticket between New York and Pittsburgh on the return trip.

There was much laughing confusion over the money in the parlor, as the young women figured out, with pencil and paper, what their English money was worth in United States currency. One of the puzzles was the English half-crown. Although everyone knew the 2-shilling piece by sight, the half-crown, with its arbitrary value of 60 cents, was not so easily comprehended. However, after some complicated arithmetic, accompanied by much tapping of pretty teeth with pencils and wrinkling of otherwise smooth brows, the money question was settled and each fair owner of a purse put it away to listen to a short speech by I. F. Bailey, the circulation manager.

The Teachers' Response.

Mr. Bailey told the teachers that he had been commissioned to say that George T. Oliver regretted his inability to be present in New York to see them off on the steamer, but that another engagement made it impossible for him to leave Pittsburgh today. He assured them that they would best please him by enjoying their trip to the utmost. Nothing was to be left undone on the part of the two newspapers to that end.

Mr. Bailey's remarks were heartily applauded, and after many expressions individually of their appreciation of The Gazette's and Chronicle-Telegraph's generosity, Prof. G. G. Hertzog, on behalf of the teachers, responded neatly, requesting the speaker to convey to The Gazette and The Chronicle-Telegraph the deep sense of their guests of their efforts on their behalf, and saying he had not the least doubt the trip would be educational and delightful and of lasting benefit to those fortunate enough to be included in the party. There were cheers for The Gazette and The Chronicle-Telegraph, none the less hearty because decorously feminine.

At dinner, which was served at 6:30 o'clock at the Fifth Avenue hotel, there were more anecdotes of the fun that had been found in going about the city, the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, having been included in the itinerary this time, and the Eden musee coming in close second. By this time everyone was ready for dinner, and that function was honored in a way that must have brought pride to the heart of the chef, as it certainly did pleasure to the representatives of the two newspapers who were present.

On Board the Steamship.

After dinner there was not much time before it would be necessary to depart for the steamer, the time having been set at 8:30 when carriages would be at the hotel entrance. The last hour after dinner was spent by the teachers in their rooms, some of them taking that opportunity to write a last farewell letter to relatives and friends at home, which will be delivered about the same time as this copy of The Gazette. In the meantime, all the trunks and other baggage had been transferred to the Minnehaha, and there was nothing to be carried individually to the ship except bouquets of flowers, certain boxes of candy and other little matters which the average young woman considers indispensable for an ocean voyage.

Miss Edith J. Latshaw, one of the most brilliant musicians of Pittsburgh, who is a guest of The Gazette and Chronicle-Telegraph, with her mother, Mrs. Sophia Latshaw, who will accompany her to Europe, will not return with the rest of the party. After visiting all the places in The Gazette's and Chronicle-Telegraph's itinerary, she will go to Munich, to remain there for a year, studying music.

The Misses Anna and Elizabeth Cooke of Canonsburg sailed on the Celtic today. They will join The Gazette party in London and make the tour of the continent with them.

NOTABLE EDUCATORS.

Hannis Taylor, Justices Brewer and Harlan to Teach Higher Law Branches.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 4.—Hannis Taylor, author of notable works on constitutional and international law, and formerly United States minister to Spain, has just been elected to the chair of English constitutional and common law and of international private law in the school of comparative jurisprudence and diplomacy of the Columbian university.

Dr. Taylor will divide with Justices Harlan and Brewer of the United States supreme court the teaching of constitutional and international law in that institution.

ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN MEN IN THE GUARD COMMANDS THE TROOPERS

Capt. Charles S. W. Jones.

One of the most picturesque military figures in the parade yesterday was Capt. Charles S. W. Jones of the Sheridan Troop of Tyrone. He is the oldest cavalry commander in the Pennsylvania National Guard and commands a squadron that has few equals in the regular service. Capt. Jones is a veteran of the civil war. He enlisted as a private in Troop F, Second Pennsylvania Cavalry shortly after the breaking out of the rebellion. In 1863 he was appointed quartermaster sergeant, and first sergeant in 1864. In February, 1865, he was commissioned captain of Squadron B. On July 15, 1871, he was elected captain of the Sheridan Troop of Tyrone, which commission he has held continuously since.

Capt. Jones has been complimented time and time again by officers of the regular army sent to the encampment of the National Guard. During the annual encampments no troops in the field have less time to themselves than the troopers from Tyrone. When they are not doing guard and patrol duty they are on the drill field, and at their head is Capt. Jones, instructing them in cavalry maneuvers.

GOLFERS SPENT BUSY HOLIDAY IN SPITE OF RAIN

SMITH WON HOLIDAY CUP

Close Competition at Highland for Gala Day Trophy—New Country Club Course Was Active—Brighton Golfers Played Four Events.

The visit of the president or the visitation of a rainstorm will neither of them deter the local golfers when their enthusiasm is aroused, and a heavy holiday schedule was carried out on the local links yesterday.

The strong course of the Allegheny Country club back of Sewickley took the honors of the day for activity, with the heaviest day's play which has been offered to members this season. There were four cups up for competition in two events, one played in the morning and the other in the afternoon. Henry Sproul and W. N. Kerr offered the trophies in the morning for the lowest net scores under 18 holes of handicap medal play, while Mr. Sproul again offered the leading cup in the afternoon. The second cup was offered by E. M. Byers and the play was handicap competition against "bogey."

The scores in the handicap for the Henry Sproul and W. N. Kerr cups were:

BUSY AT EDGEWOOD.

Robert Rutherford Won "Bogey." Joseph Hill and George Wurzell Winners in Match Play Rounds.

Play for two cups offered by the club furnished the competition on the Edgewood course yesterday. In the play for the first cup, for which eight qualified last Saturday, the first round and semifinal round were decided, the final to be played today between Joseph Hill and George Wurzell, the ultimate victors yesterday.

For the second cup there was no play and the sole match will be played today between J. F. Guffey and H. S. Fisher. Professional Nichol Thompson, in defeating W. H. Duff 3 up yesterday, made records of 36 and 37, using nothing but a cleek. His course records are 31 and 32. Yesterday's results:

First cup—Joseph H. Hill beat Robert Kester 4 up and 3 to play; George Wurzell beat John Flenniken 5 up and 3 to play; F. X. Barr defeated E. E. Rankin 2 up and 1 to play; G. R. Harvey beat W. H. Duff 5 up and 3 to play. Harvey played the course in 79.

Afternoon round—Joseph Hull defeated F. X. Barr 6 up and 5 to play; George Wurzell beat George R. Harvey 3 up and 2 to play. Wurzell made course in 37 for first round and 39 for second.

In competition against "bogey" for Greens cup Robert Rutherford won, being even from scratch with medal score of 80 strokes.

FOUR EVENTS PLAYED.

Weather—Showers. Saturday, July 5, 1902.

Our Saturday Half Holiday Begins Today at 1 P. M., and a few remarks take the place of our regular store-news.

The week closing has been a remarkable one, according to business standards. Our Clearance Sale, which began last Monday with as disagreeable a day as could be well imagined, unexpectedly resulted in tremendous business, clearly showing that inclement weather has no terrors for people who study the principles of economy. Each of its successors showed the same splendid results, but with much more favorable weather.

Our Monday morning news will go into details regarding the second week of the July Clearance.

Of today we kindly ask all who can to do their shopping in the morning, as the store will close at 1 P. M., thereby permitting us to extend to our 1,500 employes, for the fifth season, their regular Saturday half holiday.
